Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Since all of the snow cover is now gone before the end of February we all agree that this is not a normal winter in Bittinger. I used to jump snow drifts on my horse well into March and early April. This kind of weather that jumps back and forth between cold and warm temperatures seems to be a fine atmosphere for sickness. I know of several residents of Bittinger who have been at home sick with flu symptoms.

Carolina and Rhiannon Dodge were quite sick. I woke up Sunday morning with a high fever plus all the symptoms of a classic cold with the added attraction of a very sick stomach. Meredith was hit with the same thing and she is recovering at home with me. Do I get any sick days from writing the column? I don't think so.

EASTER RAFFLE TO BENEFIT GCMH — The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Loar Auxiliary is sponsoring an Easter raffle to benefit the hospital. The first prize is a basket of 16 Ty™ Beanie Bears, pictured above, second prize is a trio of bunnies, and third prize is an assortment of six Ty™ Basket Beanies. Tickets may be purchased for $1 at the Loar Auxiliary Gift Shop, located in the lobby of the hospital.

These days have been pretty quiet in Bittinger, even with the 50th birthdays of Rodney Glotfelty and Cindy Stanton, which did not attract too much attention.

My little brother Barry is recovering from his back injury and was able to come up last weekend. Probably good for him that we didn't have any snow or he would have been sad that he couldn't go out skiing again.

It was exciting for my family to watch Maryland fight off a strong challenge from Wake Forest on Sunday afternoon. No ACC game win is a sure thing for any team, even Duke and Maryland. Maryland is now ranked number two in the country.

As for the Olympics, I was surprised to hear two Garrett County names in the hockey coverage. On one team a guy named Housley played, but according to Ellen he was no relation to Sam. The USA super-goalkeeper was Mike Richter. He probably deserved the MVP for the USA in their march to a silver medal. But nothing even close this year to the scene a few years back with Tonya Harding crying to the judges and showing them her skates. That was priceless.

Cindy Stanton is quite busy working on the planning of a wedding. Lea is now engaged and plans a November wedding. Since she is still going to college in Towson until August, Cindy will have to get busy to start planning for Lea's big day. I think the Bittinger folks need to save money for a whole bunch of wedding presents with the gang of "Bittinger Babes" ready to graduate from college, as we'll hear the wedding bells soon.

Ken Buckel underwent outpatient surgery to remove his gallbladder on Monday morning at Memorial Hospital in Cumberland. He returned home on Tuesday morning. Ruth DiPaolo visited him and Harriett in the afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Buckel Jr., Chestertown, visited his parents, Ralph and Ethel Buckel, over the weekend.

Bonnie Buckel, Mt. Airy, spent the weekend with her parents, Ken and Harriett Buckel. Bernadette Hessen from St. Albans, W.Va., also visited the Buckels.

Dale Glottelty and Rhea Hetrick, Sahsbury, Pa., attended the funeral of Carvel Wiley Bostion, Baltimore, last week. They were Wednesday overnight guests of Helen Englar, Westminster.

Helen Englar is visiting her brother, Dale Glotfelty, and was planning to attend the funeral of their cousin, Rhoda Miller, Springs, Pa., on Wednesday.

Oops, here it is Wednesday morning and the snow is back and colder weather has arrived again. So much for the weather.

Aid Available To Families Dealing With Alzheimer's

Certain families in need of financial assistance to care for a relative with Alzheimer's disease or some other form of dementia can now get help paying for the Alzheimer's Association Safe Return program for wanderers. Minority or rural families in Allegany and Garrett counties with incomes below $31,119 may apply for assistance in paying the $40 registration fee.

Safe Return is a national program of the Alzheimer's Association that provides personalized identification bracelets and other identification materials, and stores a person's contact information in a national database. The program enables police, community service agencies, and private citizens to identify people with Alzheimer's disease who have wandered and help them return home.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, 98% of those using the Safe Return program are found within 24 to 48 hours. The return rate drops to 43% among those who are not registered in the program. These people are at risk because of weather, traffic, and people who prey on the helpless. Some have died from exposure only a short distance from their own doorsteps, said a spokesperson for the association.

Nearly 60% of the 8,700 people with Alzheimer's disease who live in western Maryland will wander at some point during the course of their illness. They may be searching for someone or something familiar, such as a friend or where they used to live or work. They may need something, such as food, water, a bathroom, or companionship, but they cannot communicate that need.

To register a person in the program or learn more about how to prevent or reduce the likelihood of wandering, persons may contact the association at 1-800-696-6830 or alzwmd@aol.com.

Resources Police Make Drug Arrest On North Branch

Two men face drug charges filed by Natural Resources Police this weekend after they were observed smoking a suspicious substance on the shore of the North Branch of the Potomac River in the Potomac State Forest.

Arcady B. Zinkewych, 49, Ellicott City, and John R. Eakin, 48, Linthicum, were each charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia in the wake of their 5 p.m. arrests near Lost Land Run. An NRP officer had observed the pair passing an unknown type of smoking device between them before he approached the pair.

Both men were subsequently released on their own recognizance.

Rev. Lewis Joins Staff At Local Church

Rev. Steve Lewis recently became the associate pastor of Maranatha Assembly of God. He is a licensed minister in the Potomac District Council of the Assemblies of God, and his duties will include adult teaching and youth ministry, as well as assisting the senior pastor, Butch Morsberger.

Lewis is a native of Garrett County and said he "received the call to ministry at the age of 10." Growing up, he attended Crellin Assembly of God, where he was active in youth and music ministry. He graduated from Central Bible College in Springfield, Mo., in 1995. While at CBC, he traveled around the United States as a member of the Revivaltime Choir and was a featured soloist on several selections of the group's recordings.

He has also appeared on national television with the choir. Since graduation, he has served as part-time youth pastor at Rocky Drean Assembly of God and LaVale Assembly of God, while performing in concert around the area. He also works part time at Northern High School as a substitute teacher.

"I have a passion to reach out to this generation with the gospel," Lewis said. "I believe this is the church's greatest and final hour to reach this world for Christ."

125th Anniversary

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, DR. SEUSS! With special readings and Cat-in-The-Hat parties, students around the county celebrated the birthday of the late, legendary Dr. Seuss (Ted Geisel) on March 1. First grade students at Broad Ford Elementary School commemorated the special day by inviting guest readers to their rooms and listening to stories by the beloved author. Dr. Jim Jones is pictured above (the one in the hat) as he reads Fox In Sox to some avid listeners, including his daughter Sara, who is perched on his lap. Other guest readers were Principal Doug Gaither and Assistant Principal Suzanne Sincell. The youngsters shared birthday cake and promised to be life-long readers — with the help of Dr. Seuss, of course.

Garrett Leaders Receive, Seeking Grant Funding

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting last week, hearing from 15 departments and agencies. The main topic of discussion was funding. Several staff leaders reported they had either received funds from various grants or were applying for funding.

Phil Rook, assistant director of emergency management, reported the Maryland Terrorism Forum had allocated $58,500 from a federal grant to Garrett County. Rook said Brad Frantz, director of emergency management, would be attending a state meeting on the funding's guidelines this week in Baltimore and would know more then about how the money may be used.

According to Governor Parris Glendening, the funds will be used "to ensure first responders have resources they need to react to situations quickly and effectively, while also protecting the safety of our response units." The total

STEIN REPEATS AS STATE CHAMP - Pete Stein won a Maryland state high school wrestling championship two years ago when he was a sophomore, and he repeated that accomplishment this past weekend at the Maryland Class 1A/2A Championships at Western Maryland College. Stein, who was among seven members of the Northern High School team who qualified for the state event, captured the individual title in the 125-pound division. Two years ago he won the 103-pound division title. He is pictured above in Saturday's title bout, in which he defeated 28-1 Justin Bradley of Mardela High School. Teammate Darric Kamp finished second in the 145-pound division, and Trey Brenneman placed third in the 275-pound division. As a team the Huskies placed fourth among over 60 schools that were represented. See sports pages for additional photos and story. Photo courtesy of Del Carpenter.

Budget Woes Plague Legislators; Bills Requesting Funds In Doubt

Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer hosted their annual mid-legislative session meeting on Saturday at Garrett Community College. The legislators gave an overview of the state's budget woes and updates on the status of bills they have introduced to the Maryland General Assembly. They were not hopeful that legislation requesting funding for local projects would pass this year.

"It's starting to get hectic," Edwards said about the legislative scramble to find monies for various projects, given the state's economic climate. Hafer explained that the governor was taking funds from "40 pots of money" in an attempt to balance the budget. Some of the "pots" being taken from are the Maryland Auto Insurance Fund, the Injured Workers Insurance Fund, the Emergency Management System, plus dedicated construction funds.

"That's just the tip of the iceberg," Hafer said. "That's what George and I and the rest of us [in the General Assembly] are up against. It's a hot issue with me." The senator added that some bills are not even being heard by committees and are rejected on first readings. But matters may get worse. According to Hafer, the state could be facing a $1.2 billion deficit

The Republican, A Rich Source Of Garrett County History, Turns 125

by Mary Sincell McEwen

There were no planes in the air, nor were there electric lights. No one dreamed humans would ever step foot on the surface of the moon, or discover anything as magical as the antibiotic. No world war had raged as of yet, although the memory of the recent Civil War still had a powerful sting. The year was 1877, and The Republican newspaper was printed for the first time.

Every week since that first paper, dated March 3, 1877, The Republican has been printed, distributed, and read by Garrett Countians and those in the surrounding communities. Throughout the month of March, we here at the paper will be celebrating the century-and-a-quarter milestone by reprinting articles, editorials, advertisements, and photographs that have appeared sometime in the newspaper's history. All readers are asked to participate in the Readers' Survey, found today on page A-17. The survey will be included in the newspaper throughout March.

Times have changed dramatically in 125 years, of course, and the paper has gone through a number of transformations. There have been just four editors in its history, however, beginning with Captain James A. Hayden. Hayden was a veteran of the Civil War, having fought at Gettysburg, among many other locations. He commanded Company F of the 11th Pennsylvania Reserves, and his name is among those thousands etched on the Pennsylvania monument at the Gettysburg Battlefield.

Because of his experiences in that bloody conflict, Hayden was a strong supporter of the Republican Party and did not hide his views concerning the Democrats. Many an article in the early issues of the paper decried the sins of the opposite party, and called upon the support of all good Republicans. He adored the late President Abraham Lincoln, who was responsible for the emergence of the Republican RECOGNIZED FOR SAVING CHILD'S LIFE — Brad Frantz, director of emergency management, recently recognized emergency medical dispatchers Mike Saunders and Glenda Baker for saving the life of a 2-year-old. On Feb. 7, Saunders received a 9-1-1 call from Urie Kanagy, Bittinger, reporting that his son Jadon was having problems breathing. Baker alerted Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and Bittinger fire department, which responded to the scene in five minutes. However, before the department could reach the scene, Jadon stopped breathing and became cyanotic. Saunders, following emergency medical training protocol, talked the Kanagy family through the steps to resuscitate Jadon. Urie received the instructions from Saunders and relayed the information to Jadon's older brother Jeffrey, who resuscitated the 2-year-old. By the time firefighters arrived, Jadon was responsive and breathing. "This is the heart of what we do," said Frantz about the incident. Though usually not as dramatic, Emergency Medical Dispatch (EMD) staff members handle numerous life-saving calls a year, added Frantz. The director also recognized EMD coordinator and assistant director Phil Rook for providing the staff members with training and the Garrett County commissioners for providing funding to have two staff persons answer calls during the day and evening shifts. By having two dispatchers on duty, one is able to handle the calls, while the second dispatches the first respondera, Frantz explained. Pictured above, left to right, are Frantz, Rook, Saunders, Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, Baker, Commissioner Fred Holliday, and Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

Meeting Set To Gain Input For Economic Plan

It was in 1996 that a strategic plan for economic development in Garrett County was prepared, and efforts are now under way by the Garrett County Development Corporation and Department of Economic Development to review, revise, and update that plan. An opportunity for the general public to provide input for this project will be a county meeting that is scheduled for Thursday, March 21, at Garrett Community College.

"This meeting will help us ensure that the strategic plan reflects the views and ideas of the residents of the county," stated Jim Hinebaugh, Garrett County's economic development director.

"Many of the initiatives identified in the 1996 plan have been completed or are well under way," added

Two Indicted By Grand Jury Are Arrested

Arrests have been made concerning two of the three indictments handed down this week by the March term of the Grand Jury. Sheriff's deputies arrested Michael Anthony Inglese, 52, and Phyllis Marie Inglese, 51, Oakland.

Both Ingleses are charged with possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine), possession of cocaine, possession of marijuana, possession of CDS paraphernalia, and maintaining a common nuisance. Michael Inglese is also charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney for Garrett County.

The charges arise from evidence seized by officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, and Maryland State Police who executed search and seizure warrants at the Inglese residence and business properties in January. The warrants were originally for evidence of gambling violations.

Library Board Submits Budget, Requests 20 Percent Increase

Garrett County Ruth Enlow Library Board of Trustees presented its FY 2003 proposed budget request to the county commissioners this week. The trustees are asking for $630,000 from the county, which is 20 percent more than they received last year. Cathy Ashby, library director, cited the need for staff salary increases, new books, and a computer technician position as some of the reasons for the additional funding.

Henrietta Lease, who has been evaluating salary and benefits, indicated that staff salary increases were needed to make them more equitable to other state librarians' and county employees' wages. "We want to reward long-standing employees," she said. Lease recommended a 1 percent cost-of-living increase for Ruth Enlow employees, with a possible merit raise of up to 4 percent for those with excellent evaluations.

Marilyn Moors, president of the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library, noted that the library system also needed many more new books. "The book budget has taken hits over the years," she said. "Every time the library comes up short, the book budget suffers."

"Our library needs better funding," said Ken Gotch, Oakland. Gotch said he home schools his children and has to request some materials from other libraries that are not available at the Ruth Enlow.

Ashby said additional funding was also needed to hire a computer technician to be a systems administrator for the library. She noted that she and other staff members do not have adequate training to "trouble shoot" computer problems.

"I would totally support any funding for the library," said Kathy Johnson, Oakland, who attended the meeting to voice her support for the library. She said many children do not have their own computers and depend upon the library's computers being available.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel noted that the library's budget had increased 62 percent over the past years, while other agencies' bud-

STILL WORKING ON TAX DIFFERENTIAL — The Garrett County commissioners, county administrator, and Oakland town council met again Monday night in an attempt to finally settle their differences on how the town should be compensated for the parallel services and programs it provides. Town officials have pointed out that since the county would provide these services anyway if Oakland were not incorporated, town residents are paying for them twice, through both county and town taxes. The issue has been an item of contention for some time between the two entities. The officials have disagreed on what formula to use to calculate how much Oakland should receive in compensation. The commissioners have wanted to use a formula that would benefit the county, while the council has wanted to use one that would benefit the town. Though discussion between the officials Monday night was heated at times, the two sides do seem to be getting closer to finding a common ground. More details about their decisions will be published as they develop. Pictured above, left to right, facing the Oakland town council at the Monday meeting are commissioners Fred Holliday, Ernie Gregg, Wendell Beitzel, and county administrator Monty Paganhardt. Avilton's Leonard Wilhelm To Celebrate 100 Years Of Living

by Jeremy Carr

A local resident will celebrate a milestone birthday this week. Leonard Joseph Wilhelm Sr. of Avilton will turn 100 years old Friday. Born on March 8, 1902, in Garrett County, Leonard now lives less than a mile from where he grew up. His great-grandfather was one of the first county commissioners in the area.

Wilhelm began working at an early age. When he was 9, he conceived of the idea for a place where his family could gather to enjoy each other's company. This place became the well-known "Wilhelm Flat." Throughout the Wilhelm family history, this site has seen its share of parties, weddings, and other holiday family gatherings.

He was a middle child in a family of 11 children and still visits with his younger brother Asa, the only other living child. As a boy, the young Wilhelm worked on the farm and in saw mills, hauled logs to Uniontown, Pa., in a Ford truck, and handled horses with a sleigh.

Wilhelm married his wife Mary on Valentine's Day, three years after they began dating. Together they had 19 children, 15 of whom are still living. Mrs. Wilhelm passed away about 20 years ago. The couple would have been married 75 years this past February.

Living with Mary and their children, Leonard's house was always open to friends and family. He worked hard all his life, but always made a point to set aside holidays for his family. And the only work done on Sundays consisted of essential farm tasks. He helped to keep his large family close by always encouraging his children to help out around the house and giving them the best possible environment in which to grow up. He always provided his family with plenty of food, giving them fresh vegetables, beef, and — one of Wilhelm's favorites — pork.

Wilhelm has always enjoyed life and has accepted its ups and downs. He realizes that his health has been very good, since it was only two years ago that he began taking any sort of medicine. He worked in his garden well into his late 90s. An avid reader of The Republican, Wilhelm is quick to point out that the biggest change he has seen in his life is that in people. He acknowledges Jesus's help in his life and firmly believes that "the key to a good, long life is always helping people."

Wilhelm's 19 children have presented him with 65 grandchildren. He also has 108 great-grandchildren, and 33 great-great-grandchildren. With all the spouses added in, there are a total of 311 people in the family, 95% of whom still live in Garrett County.

Birthday cards to wish this centenarian well may be sent to: 392 Lancaster Hill, Lonaconing, MD 21539.

School Bus Involved In Accident

A McHenry woman was charged after the vehicle she was driving allegedly struck a Garrett County school bus with 11 students inside Thursday morning.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Southern High School in reference to a hit and run. Bus driver Paula Rachelle Hutson told police that while on her bus route along Paradise Point Road the bus was struck by a 1992 Jeep Cherokee. She said that vehicle was traveling at a high rate of speed, according to police.

Barbara Ann Reed, 50, was later located and charged with failure to stop after an accident involving damage and failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

She was released on her own recognizance by a Garrett County District Court commissioner.

In another incident, a Grantsville man was arrested on drunk driving charges after his 1997 Ford truck was stopped along Sand Flat Road early Saturday morning.

Gary E. O'Brien Jr., 21, was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), DWI per se, and failure to drive right of center, police said.

He was later released on his own recognizance.

In other police news, sheriff's deputies arrested Robert Dale Reeves Jr., 26, Mtn. Lake Park, on the strength of a bench warrant.

A search after his arrest revealed 3 1/2 blue pills along with drug paraphernalia. Reeves was charged with drug possession and drug paraphernalia.

He is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on $28,000 bond.

Mettiki Appeals Decision To Bar Potomac Mining

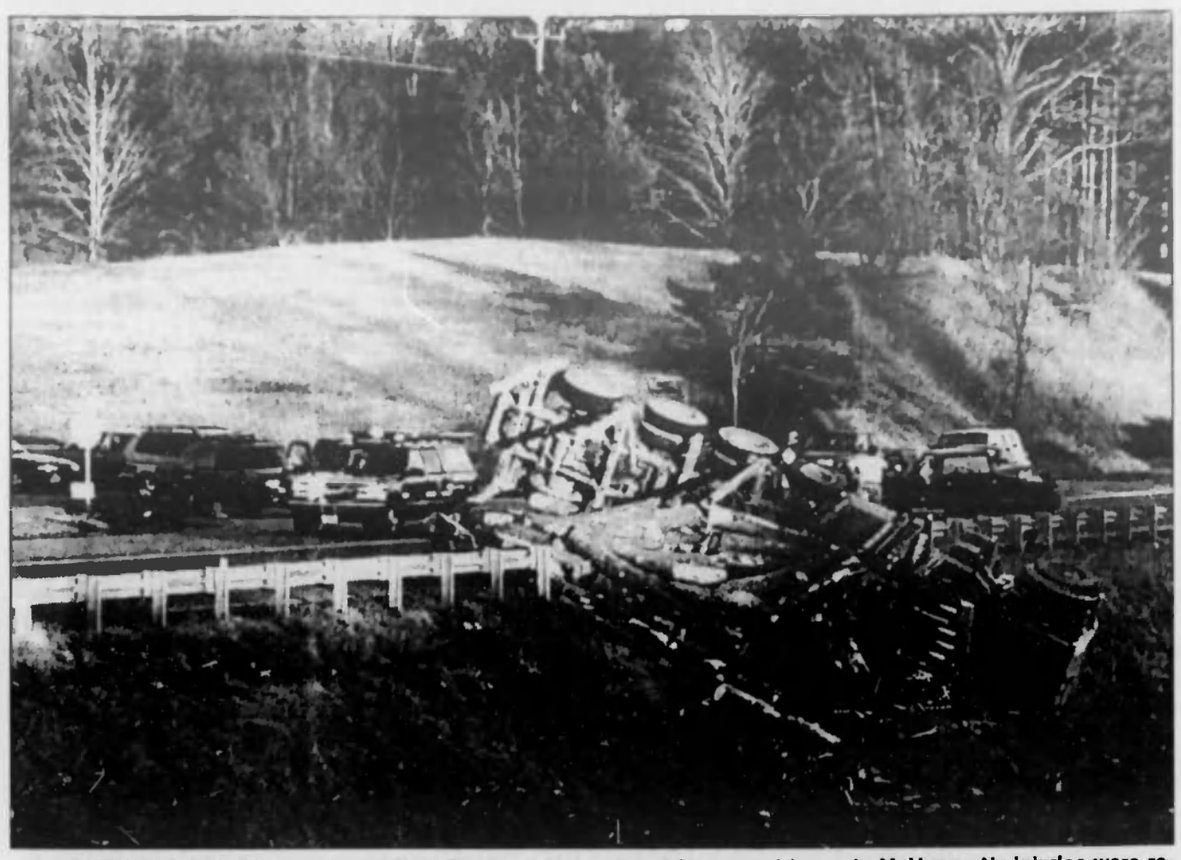
The Mettiki Coal Corporation has appealed a decision by the West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection's Division of Mining, according to reports. The decision being contested is one which rejects a plan to mine under the Potomac River.

The appeal was filed with the West Virginia State Surface Mine Board, which reviews decisions made by the Division of Mining.

Mettiki asked for the permit in March 2000 to construct four 16-foot-wide entry tunnels under the river to continue long-wall mining on a 200-acre reserve in West Virginia, according to reports.

The concerns cited by the Division of Mining included possible damage to a trout stream, the potential of acidic drainage into the North Branch, and possible damage to springs that feed the stream.

The hearing on the appeal will not be held until at least April, as part of the Surface Mine Board's next regular meeting.



LOG TRUCK, LOGS ROLL — A 1996 Ford Ranger driven by Michael P. Kelley turned from Pysell Road in front of a 1997 Peterbilt log truck Friday, causing a collision which forced the truck across Route 219 into the guardrail, at which point it overturned and spilled its load of logs, according to Maryland State Police. The road was partially closed for several hours in McHenry. No injuries were reported. Kelley, 46, LaPlata, was charged for failing to stop and yield the right-of-way. Harry Paul Henning, 37, Markleysburg, Pa., was the operator of the tractor-trailor. Northern Reacue Squad also responded to the scene.

MeadWestvaco Shutting Down Four Paper Machines, Cutting Workforce

MeadWestvaco Corporation recently announced plans to permanently shut down four coated paper machines and related equipment. These actions will take effect beginning April 1, and be completed by May 31. Three coated paper machines and associated equipment will be permanently closed at the Chillicothe, Ohio, mill and one coated paper machine at the Luke mill. The restructuring will result in the elimination of about 350 positions in Ohio and approximately 75 positions in Maryland.

MeadWestvaco Corporation was formed on January 29, 2002, through the merger of the Mead Corporation and Westvaco Corporation. The company has about $8 billion in annual sales and operates in four key segments — packaging, coated and specialty papers, consumer and office products, and specialty chemicals.

"These actions reflect our determination to move rapidly to capture the benefits of this strategic merger," said John A. Luke Jr., president and chief executive officer of MeadWestvaco. "With the merger and these steps, we are creating the highest quality and most efficient coated papers business in North America."

It is expected that, over time, production will be transferred to more efficient machines elsewhere in the company's coated papers system.

"The actions we announced today will provide us with a lower cost and more efficient coated papers platform," said Ian W. Millar, president of MeadWestvaco's Papers Group. "The closure of high cost equipment is critical to our plans to create a strong position in our markets, especially in the face of weak economic conditions and import competition resulting from a strong U.S. dollar. The actions we are taking will not change our grade lines and product offerings."

MeadWestvaco had announced plans, following the merger, to take actions in the first two years, leading to annual synergies of $325 million. Of the $325 million in synergies, $125 million is expected to come from optimization of the Papers Group. Specific activities to achieve these synergies will include the elimination of high cost manufacturing equipment and the streamlining of processes and staffing — Part of that number is included in the recent announced actions. In addition, $70 million in synergies relates to purchasing and logistics, $90 million to corporate overhead and technology, and $40 million to the packaging segment.

The announcement follows the shutdown in October of 2001 of Westvaco's Tyrone, Pa., coated papers mill and sale of Mead's Menasha, Wis., based Gilbert Paper Company and selected assets in November 2001. The earlier actions and recent steps together will result, when fully implemented, in more than half of the $125 million in annual synergies expected from the Papers Group.

MeadWestvaco's Papers Group produces coated papers for catalogs, annual reports, magazines, text books, and coffee table books; carbonless papers for business forms and receipts; digital papers for commercial and desktop printing; and labels for food and beverages.

In addition, MeadWestvaco also announced that it expects restructuring and other merger-related costs taken in 2002 to approximate $100 million, of which about $40 million is expected to be taken in the first quarter. Of the total estimated $100 million in charges relating to the former Westvaco operations, about 70 percent, or $70 million, are expected to be non-cash charges. The total estimated charges include $12 million attributable to the shutdown of the Luke paper machine. Under merger accounting rules, charges for the write-down of assets and severance relating to the former Mead Corporation, including the paper machine shutdowns in Chillicothe, are recorded in purchase accounting and do not affect current earnings.

Company-wide work force reductions, including those in the Papers Group, are expected to be about 900 during 2002. This is in addition to reductions of 525 in connection with the closing of the Tyrone mill and the sale of Gilbert Paper.

MeadWestvaco Corporation, headquartered in Stanford, Conn., has annual sales of $8 billion. The company operates in 33 countries, serves customers in approximately 100 nations, and employs more than 30,000 people worldwide. Using sustainable forestry practices, MeadWestvaco manages 3.5 million acres of forests. For more information about MeadWestvaco, visit the company's web site, www.meadwestvaco.com

Celebration Planned For Southern High's 50th Graduation Anniversary

This spring's graduating class at Southern High School will be the 50th group of seniors to participate in the school's commencement exercises, as the first class was graduated in the spring of 1953. The school staff has planned a variety of events to commemorate the anniversary, with the hope that many alumni will take part in the activities.

A weeklong celebration will take place at the high school April 8-12, during which a PowerPoint presentation of each decade — the 1950s, '60s, '70s, '80s, and '90s — will be shown to the students at the close of the school day. Music during lunch on those days will include hits of the designated decade, and students will dress in the clothes popular from each 10-year span, with prizes awarded for the best outfits.

A section of the library will be sectioned off for the 50-year commemorative display. Photographs of the first graduating class (1953) and the faculty will be exhibited, along with pictures of the 50th class and staff. Pictures of each principal from 1953 to 2002 will be placed in the library as well, and the superintendents' photographs from 1953 (R. Bowen Hardesty) and 2002 (Dr. Wendell Teets) will be on display.

The members of the 1953 graduating class are being invited to lead the 2002 graduates out during the commencement exercises this spring. All 1953 alumni are encouraged to take part in the graduation ceremony, the date of which will be announced later this month. All of the '53 graduates have been contacted by letter from the high school, according to a school spokesperson. For more information about the commencement event, persons may contact Mary Ann Shipe at Southern High: 301-334-9447 or 301-334-9470.

A 50th-year reunion for all graduates of Southern High School is being planned by the Southern Garrett Alumni Association. The celebration is tentatively scheduled for October during the Autumn Glory Festival.

Both Southern and Northern high school's opening year was 1952-53. The principal at Southern was Maurice A. Dunkle and the vice principal was Carl Everly, heading up a faculty of 46 people. Today the faculty numbers 64, led by the school's eighth principal, Tom Woods. The high schools were home to 7th through 12th graders until 1976, when the middle schools opened. Now 9th through 12th grades are taught at both high schools.

The mascot at Southern in 1953 was the Scottish highlander. After many years the mascot was changed to the ram, although the highlander motif remained present in some form until the early 1980s. The class president of the 95 seniors in 1953 was Kenneth Reckart. Ed Clemens is this year's class president, with 194 students headed for the 2002 graduation.

Principal Woods said the 50th class celebration is proving to be an interesting and educational experience for both the students and the staff.

"Several of our students are working on class projects that are focused on Southern's 50-year history," Woods said. "I think the commemoration of the milestone gives us all a great opportunity to celebrate 50 years of outstanding education.

"One of the things we really need to work on is getting a grasp on the history of our school," Woods continued. "As more is learned about the past years of this place, I believe that the kids who are here and the ones who will be coming will be greatly motivated by and proud of its history."

WORKING HARD TO KEEP HEALTHY — The latest donation of fitness equipment by M&T Bank is receiving heavy usage by area residents over 55 years of age who pay $10 a month or $100 every year to use the new senior fitness center in Accident. For more information on the center, persons may call Veronica Padmos at 301-334-9431.

Man Charged After Crashing Through Fence

A Virginia man faces charges after he lost control of his 1993 Subaru Legacy and struck a fence owned by the Garrett County Sanitation District before coming to rest inside the pumping station along Deep Creek Drive near Serros Lane, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Morgan Marsh Wiseman, 20, Richmond, Va., was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, driving while impaired by alcohol, and violating a license restriction following the 1:30 a.m. accident, police said.

Wiseman was treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and was later released. He was released to the Garrett County Detention Center in lieu of $10,500 bond set by a District Court Commissioner.

In another incident, an Oakland man was released on his own recognizance after he was arrested and charged with violating an ex parte protective order.

Barry Ray Livengood, 35, was charged with two counts of violating a protective order and harassment stemming from an incident on Tuesday.

amount allocated to the state by the forum was $2.74 million, with 87 percent going to local jurisdictions and 13 percent to state departments and agencies with first response missions.

Health Department

Rodney Glotfelty, health officer, added that the Garrett County Health Department would also receive funding from the Terrorism Forum. His department will be asking for a $50,000 base grant. Glotfelty said he also expects to receive between $50,000 and $75,000 in the next several weeks from the Department of Justice for anti-terrorism measures. That grant will be used for planning and preparedness. He said the funds would not only help the county prepare for emergencies, but would also help with regional planning as well.

The state Department of Mental Hygiene is also expected to distribute grant money soon for emergency situations. Glotfelty indicated that with so much anti-terrorism money coming in from various sources, it was important that agencies work together to use the funds effectively and avoid duplication of services.

Economic Development

The Department of Economic Development has also applied for three grants through the USDA Rural Demise of MSPAP...

This column has been utilized more than once in the past to criticize the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program, or MSPAP, and an announcement made this week by state school superintendent Nancy Grasmick indicates that the demise of the MSPAP test — at least its present form — may finally be under way. The superintendent, who is an ardent defender of the program, said late Tuesday that county boards of education could opt out of giving the test to eighth graders this spring. The test will continue to be administered to third and fifth graders.

The concept and the goals of MSPAP are admirable, and it should be noted that, with MSPAP, Maryland has set a national standard for student assessment. The problem is that the test is basically invalid, primarily because of its subjectivity and the inconsistent, arbitrary way in which it is scored. This was made blatantly clear with the most recent statistics, which show that scores dropped in 20 of the state's 23 counties and Baltimore City. In some counties, they didn't just drop; they plummeted. They dropped despite the fact that local educators have been attending scores of MSPAP workshops and in-serviees, and working feverishly to prep their students for the test.

We do not for a minute believe that the state's teachers are to blame for the lower scores, because we know how much extra instruction and guidance they are providing students, as mandated by administration, to help them achieve success on the test. When there is a dedicated, coordinated effort to achieve a higher grade on a particular test, and the majority of those then taking the test score lower, all arrows then point to the validity of the test itself and how it is being scored.

Allowing individual districts to decide whether or not to test their eighth graders is going to foster less reliable data and the loss of statewide uniformity. So it seems logical that now is the time to really make some necessary revisions to the MSPAP, or scrap it altogether and create a new assessment test, starting with the good aspects of MSPAP; and there certainly are some.

Another reason to start anew is President Bush's No Child Left Behind Act, which has been signed and requires school systems to test students in grades 3 through 8 every year in reading and math, and to release individual test scores, which is not done with MSPAP. Therefore, assessment testing is going to change regardless of whether or not the MSPAP remains in place.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

This letter is not written in protest, but for clarification. I read that Garrett Community College wants a name change to Garrett College. Is there any definition of community college that is different from the definition of what a college is and what a university is? Or can schools of higher learning take any designation they want? Does each state have its own definition of community college, college, and university? Perhaps someone in the higher education community could explain such differences.

At least GCC is not spending $200,000 for a consultant to discover a new name as Western Maryland College/University is doing! Egad!

To the Editor:

How proud we are of our Lady Rams and boys' varsity basketball teams. Their outstanding work ethic, perseverance, and devotion to their sport is second to none. Maintaining and achieving such traits aren't individually intrinsic; it has to do with the unbelievable dedication of the coaches, assistant coaches, athletic trainers, and managers.

Along with their athletic abilities, these young men and women display outstanding sportsmanship and courteous attitudes toward their opponents. This is a source of pride for all Garrett Countians. The disappointment our young athletes may be experiencing is difficult to cope with; however, it is hoped that in due time each of these talented athletes will look back and savor the unbelievable experiences they acquired during their 2001-2002 basketball career.

Many valuable lessons are acquired from participating in a team sport. It is hoped that these outstanding young athletes will continue to implement them throughout their lifetime.

Love Those Rams,

To the Editor:

I would like to applaud the February 14 editorial titled "Battling a Stigma...." On behalf of individuals with psychiatric illness, their families and friends, and providers who care for them, I extend my deepest appreciation for the position taken by The Republican. The comparison of mental illness to somatic illness is a valid one. Many illnesses are chronic in nature, but few have had the stigma carried by those with mental illness.

Somewhere it is written that a true indicator of a community's strength is how well it takes care of those less fortunate amongst them. I applaud the call that each of us "elevate the level of our concern for mentally ill and start insisting that treatment" is as important as somatic care.

Garrett County should be proud of its providers, including Mountain Top Mental Health Associates, Garrett County Health Department, Mental Health Clinic, and Lighthouse Inc. These folks are committed to make the quality of lives better for Garrett County citizens. We hope that we can contribute to their efforts.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

If you were fortunate enough to attend any Southern High Ram or Lady Ram Basketball game this season, especially the playoff games, you will agree that there are three words that describe the unbelievable Garrett County fans: devoted, dedicated, and prideful. It was totally unbelievable to see the amazing number of fans attired in red and white who filled practically every home seat in the house. The Southern Ram fans almost always outnumbered the opponents' fans on their home court. Whether winning or losing, the distinguished Ram fans cheered and supported their teams to the very end, regardless of the outcome.

Ram fans are very classy people who constantly display respect — not only for their beloved team, but for the opposing one as well. Losing can be very difficult to cope with, sometimes allowing inappropriate emotions to override appropriate ones. For the most part, Southern Ram fans exhibit remarkable behavior, which perhaps perplexes others, especially the opponent.

Devotion, dedication, and pride are three qualities that fully describe a Garrett County Southern Ram fan. There is no doubt that you are second to none. It is hoped that each and every one of you is proud to be an American, as well as a distinguished Garrett County Southern Ram fan! Stand up and take a bow! You are not only incredible, but you are the best!

To the Editor:

For many American children, stability, safety, and well-being is a distant dream. Poverty, violence, and abuse of alcohol and drugs impinge on the life of every child in the United States. Social workers working in the community provide a variety of services to preserve the family, including counseling and helping families gain access to a range of services such as health care, mental health services, child care, and housing.

The problems that children and families face today are intertwined with the stability of housing, employment, income, health, and mental health.

Increases in substance abuse, school dropouts, teenage pregnancies, suicide attempts, family violence, and stress-related health disorders are as rooted in societal failures as family dysfunction. However, solutions often focus on single symptoms rather than on root causes. Families may have multiple services, each addressing a different facet of the family functioning. Social workers reframe these problems and treat them as family and community issues, therefore treating the root of the problems.

Strengthening families and providing family support are the priorities of social workers in every community. When families are unable to perform the roles expected of them, they may come under great stress and deep stigma before they can get the help they need. Social workers are there to assist them in fulfilling their roles and strengthening the family unit.

Social workers working with children and families promote parenting and access to services, advocate for safe and affordable housing, and encourage the family to self-sufficiency.

In March, National Professional Social Work Month, let's celebrate the contributions social workers make to strengthen families in our community.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I am a resident of Deer Park and have lived here for approximately 25 years. We had a post office in operation in Deer Park ever since the post roads were installed by Congress (Approx. 1789). This post office operated well until someone wanted to take it out and include it in a new and larger post office for Oakland. The post office has undercut Deer Park by insidious means over the past 25 or 30 years until they all of a sudden held a meeting with the Deer Park residents and forced them into moving their mail delivery elsewhere.

According to the Constitution, Article I, Section 8, Congress installed the post offices and post roads, and they are supposed to stay until Congress either removes them or they institute a constitutional amendment. According to the Constitution, no one else has the authority to close down a post office and wipe a town off the map. Now the postal service is supposed to be privatized but it is still under the authority of the federal government and is accountable to the Constitution.

I am asking the U.S. Postal Service to re-open the Deer Park office and take care of the citizens that could use it. There are hundreds of businesses in the Deer Park area that have been forced to travel to Oakland to be serviced. Also, all the mail routes that were removed from Deer Park should be reinstated, and it should be open eight hours daily, not just two hours daily like it was for the past two years.

To the Editor:

And I'll tell you something else that they have done. You know who I mean - - - Hear-no, See-no and Speak-no. They have found the back door to countywide zoning. First they all broke their campaign promises, then they changed their minds when they realized how strongly opposed the people were to countywide zoning. But, and you talk about stealth, they found another way.

They adopted The International Builders Code. My, my, how the county has grown. Briefly, here's the upshot of the whole thing. Unless you are building a 150-square-foot (or less) outbuilding, you need a permit. That, my friends, is an oversized doghouse and that's about it. Pretty much anything else you do will require you to jump through all of the bureaucratic hoops, get all of the permits, and pay all of the fees. What's that motto again? The Free State?

My friend Jerry and I pointed out that Allegany County has 600 square feet and (according to the commissioners) even the I.B.C.'s recommendation was 400 square feet. So we questioned why the commissioners were being so hard on the people in this county. The answer given was that people in Garrett County don't know what kind of materials should be used to withstand the snow load. I know about snow loads and I believe the people in the county are smart enough to construct buildings that will hold up. What did people do before Aug. 1997 when there weren't any county inspections? I haven't seen any buildings collapsed under a pile of snow. Folks, this isn't about snow loads, this is about a snow job.

This is big government gone awry. This is about power and control. This is about members of "The Club" policing the rest of the population. And, from what I have seen of bungling bureaucrats, I believe we're talking Keystone Kops here.

Folks, if they don't rescind this, you know what to do. November is not that far off.

To the Editor:

The perils of owning your own home could get infinitely more dangerous if Gov. Parris N. Glendening has his way.

Believe it or not, the governor wants to impose up to $25,000-a-day fines on homeowners who innocently re-seed their lawns without submitting a sediment erosion plan to the state.

If homeowners plant the wrong type of trees or plants in marshy parts of their property, the state could fine them up to $25,000 a day, too. Even if yon inadvertently extend your patio a few feet into an environmentally sensitive area, the governor's bill could punish you harshly.

And if you protest, the state could place a lien on your home and your car.

All this sounds pretty draconian. But it's true. The governor has submitted a package of environmental bills designed to punish corporate polluters. Yet unsuspecting homeowners are treated the same as major industrial companies that dump toxic wastes in our waterways or destroy wetlands.

It's a one-size-fits-all approach that gives state bureaucrats unprecedented powers over homeowners. The penalties would be assessed by the bureaucrats, not the courts. The size of the fines are so huge that they could force foreclosure of homes, even for failure to file the right paperwork.

This bill, SB241/HB294, raises fines 10-fold and continues the fines for each day a violation persists. The Department of the Environment gains enormous new powers.

Not just evil corporate dumpers are targeted. The state could crack down hard on a homeowner in Garrett County who improperly moves earth in his back yard, for instance. If the violation is discovered a week after a storm washes sediment into a storm drain, the homeowner could be fined $25,000 a day ($175,000 in this example), plus the cost of repairing the damage.

The potential fines could quickly exceed the value of the home. If this isn't bad enough, a state bureaucrat could place liens on the homeowner's personal and real property. You could lose your house or car through foreclosure.

The governor's bill declares war on Maryland homeowners. Legislators in Annapolis need to be sent a clear message that SB241/HB294 is overkill. It must be severely amended to exclude the homeowner from harsh penalties. Otherwise, it should be rejected by the General Assembly and sent to summer study.

To the Editor:

I'm writing this in response to all the negative comments that I have heard about Simon Pearce. I moved here with my family from California to work for Simon Pearce in 1999. I visited in April and moved in June of 1999. This seemed like a fantastic place to lay down roots and raise my three kids. Since then I have heard mostly negative comments about Simon Pearce.

To begin with, many people say we will "never make it in Garrett County." Next is that we "don't employ enough Garrett residents." The final comment is that we're "not employing enough people to justify the deal that Simon Pearce received from the county."

First, let me say that I am merely a glassblower who loves his work and do not in any way represent the management of Simon Pearce. Simon Pearce will never be Bausch & Lomb. Just because we took over its vacant building doesn't mean we could come in and employ 1,000 people overnight. Simon Pearce is a small company looking toward the future and this seemed like an ideal location for a manufacturing facility. The county gave us a great deal, from what I understand, in the hope that we would grow and become an important part of Garrett County.

Next, everyone who works at Simon Pearce lives in Garrett County or very near (like Terra Alta). We live here because it is a great place to live and Simon Pearce is a great employer. Are we not residents just because some of us have moved here from other places? I was not born here, but I definitely consider myself a resident.

Finally, along with many businesses, we have had challenges and have had to make adjustments. September 11 caused many people to rethink their priorities and spending habits. Glass is a luxury item, not a necessity. Through all this Simon Pearce is still here and producing some of the finest glassware in the country. All the employees take the utmost pride in the product and the company, which is a rare commodity these days. I realize that the loss of B&L left a very bad feeling for many people and caused a great deal of hardship for the county, but this should not have any bearing on Simon Pearce or its employees.

It's very hard to tell someone where you work and then have them make negative comments about your place of employment.

LENTEN PROJECTS

A few of the men gathered with me after church service on Wednesday evening. We were studying seed catalogues. The women were downstairs in the church kitchen making pretzels. We are trying to find physical ways of going deeper into Lent, deeper into preparation and repentance. Planting seeds and making pretzels are two of our Lenten disciplines.

Of the two, the pretzels are the easier to explain. The pencil-like length of dough is folded into the shape of arms crossed over the chest, a posture of humility in prayer. What emerges from that pretzel expression of prayer is a vision of the Holy Trinity, the one pretzel unified, but also three.

At first thought, it may seem frivolous to talk about something as sublime as the Holy Trinity in terms as humble as the pretzel. If the Saviour of the world deigned to be laid in a hayrack, then nothing is too humble an image to use in talking about God. In any case, the pretzel is more apt than might be immediately obvious. The three-ness of the pretzel cannot be violated without doing damage to its one-ness, and the one-ness of the pretzel cannot be violated without doing damage to its three-ness.

At the table upstairs we men discussed what to grow in our church garden. The idea of a church garden has been on the table for several years. It is an idea that we just have not been able to get into the ground.

We have our I Corinthians 15:36 project, "...that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die...," when we plant seeds after the Ash Wednesday service. Individuals take home their seeds which sprout and grow, are transplanted into family gardens, and produce some very handsome tomatoes and peppers.

What we aim to do this year is to have a shared garden, both shared work and shared produce. The sharing of the work will be among the willing. The sharing of the produce will be primarily to shut-in and older members in their own homes and families in our neighborhood who can use a helping hand. I also hope we can have some church events around the garden, like a canning night and, at least, one shared meal from the garden produce.

Two of our members, husband and wife, have a garden plot which they have not used much in recent years. They have graciously consented to let us try a church garden. There is plenty of room for all of our labors. The challenge for us together, as it ever is for the individual gardener, is not to plant more than we can hoe.

One of our first decisions was not to grow what we could as easily buy at the grocery store or even at the local farm stand. We plan to grow heirlooms and some other varieties that have to be grown personally to be eaten.

Several years ago the Seed Savers' Exchange (www.seedsavers.org or 563-382-5990), an organization dedicated to preservation of genetic diversity, started its own seed catalogue. Until then members of the exchange traded varieties among themselves. Occasionally a commercial seedsman took up a variety, but most varieties were always just a few growers away from being lost forever.

Seed Savers' Exchange now promotes the commercial viability of the best among heirloom varieties. There are, for example, nearly 60 tomato varieties listed, each identified with a mouth-watering photo.

Lent comes to an end in just three weeks' time. Outdoors, we hope, in that time, to plant some onion sets as well as spinach and some other early salad vegetables. Indoors, we shall add to the makeshift planters in our window sills with others containing plants growing for the church garden as well as for our own family gardens.

The delicious odor wafting up from the kitchen told us when to end our meeting. It did not take us long to join the ladies in the kitchen, nor to accept their gracious offer of pretzels. We hope to return the hospitality later in a few months. We are working together on making a good Lent the fruits of which will sustain us together throughout the year.

WE WERE SOLDIERS

Rated R - Running Time: 2:17 - Released 3/1/02

A hard-hitting, gritty account of one of the earliest battles of the Vietnam war in which Americans were involved, Randall Wallace's We Were Soldiers recounts the first landing of the 7th Cavalry Regiment in November 1965 into the la Drang valley, which would later come to be known as the "Valley of Death.' Based on the book We Were Soldiers Once, and Young by Joseph L. Galloway and Lt. Gen. Harold G. Moore, it features fine performances by Mel Gibson (as then Lt. Col. Moore, operation commander), Barry Pepper (as then Army reporter Galloway), Chris Klein, Greg Kinnear, and many others. Unfortunately, the screenplay adaptation by director Wallace (Braveheart, Pearl Harbor), and his direction, seem to lean toward melodrama, especially in the scenes among the soldiers' wives back home. This fault doesn't seriously mar the film, but it takes away from its overall impact by occasionally pandering to the audience's sympathy with overly dramatic dialogue rather than simply telling the story in a straightforward and ultimately more effective way.

At the film's beginning, we see some footage of the war that occurred in the same place in the 1950s between the Vietnamese and the French Army, who lost their long-held control over Indochina during that very bloody struggle. We then meet Lt. Col. Moore, who is preparing his as yet inexperienced men at Ft. Benning, Georgia, for their first assault against the well-entrenched North Vietnamese Army, using the "Huey" helicopters that would become one of the most prominent symbols of the war. Between goodbye scenes with his wife Julie (Stowe) and children, Moore is shown at the base, talking to young soldiers like Lt. Jack Geoghegan (Klein), Huey pilots like Maj. Bruce Crandall (Kinnear), and his crusty second-m-command, Korean War veteran Sgt. Maj. Basil Plumley (Sam Elliott). We then move to the combat, which took place over three days in Nov. 1965.

Throughout the battle we are kept aware of Moore's desire not to repeat the mistakes of the French, and also of General Custer at Little Big Horn, as the script draws repeated similarities between those battles and the one currently under way. The actual combat footage is tense, violent, and loud, as would be expected, with inspiration clearly drawn from the likes of Saving Private Ryan and The Thin Red Line. Each time the Americans seem to be controlling the conflict, the NVA launches a devastating counter-attack, once again turning the tables. Soon the Americans are surrounded and cut off from their supply lines, and it is the duty of Crandall and his fellow pilots to fly into heavy fire to rescue the men. Meanwhile, back at Ft. Benning, we witness another horror of the war in the form of telegrams that are delivered to the wives of each soldier killed in action.

Of course all the leading actors are fine in this film, and the combat intense and realistic, but the battle strategy (of which we see both sides, cutting back and forth between the American and Vietnamese command posts) is somewhat unclear, resulting in a lot of bloody footage without any real explanation of what the objectives were or why certain actions were taken. It's all very fascinating in a morbid sort of way, but it's hard to keep up with who's where and which side is more in control of the battle. Of course, this may be the intention of director Wallace, to show the confusion and futility of the situation, but it hinders the viewer's understanding of what's going on. Still, We Were Soldiers is a gripping, fast-moving film that will be added to the short list of quality movies focused on the U.S. conflict in Vietnam. ★★★★

MONSTER'S BALL

Rated R - Running Time: 1:51 - Released 2/8/02

Warning: it is impossible to review this film without including some "spoilers," plot elements that some viewers may prefer not to know about. If you are such a person, you may want to wait until you've seen the film before reading this review.

Seldom does one see a film as intense and powerful as Marc Forster's Monster's Ball, a dark drama written by first time writer-producers Milo Addica and Will Rokos, that provides a deep and soul-searching study of racism, love, tragedy, and human nature. Forster, a talented new director whose only previous feature release was 2000's similarly themed Everything Put Together, is blessed with a fine cast who prove they are up to the material. Billy Bob Thornton, who has shined in such diverse films as Sling Blade, Bandits, and The Man Who Wasn't There, shows again he's one of the most capable actors currently working, and co-star Halle Berry continues to carve out an important niche for herself as well.

Thornton is corrections officer Hank Grotowski, whose racism, learned from his bitter, frail, and elderly father Buck (Peter Boyle), has not passed on to his son Sonny (Heath Ledger). While this has caused a rift in the family, Hank attempts to establish a bond with Sonny by teaching him his own trade and that of his retired dad. Sonny has just joined the staff at the state penitentiary, and is about to participate in his first execution, the electrocution of convicted murderer Lawrence Musgrove (rap star Sean "Puffy" Combs), whose relationship with his wife Leticia (Berry) has deteriorated to the point that she doesn't even attend the execution. Struggling to make ends meet, Leticia not only has to take care of herself, but their 10-year-old son Tyrell (Coronji Calhoun). Tyrell, while he has apparently inherited his father's amazing ability to draw, struggles with obesity, and is punished severely by his mother when she catches him sneaking candy bars.

Soon after the execution, Sonny and Hank have a bitter argument which leads to the young man's suicide and Hank's subsequent resignation from his job. He is left alone with his mean, heavily dependent father, in a home opressed by bitterness and depression, since his own mother also committed suicide many years ago. Although Hank and Leticia don't know each other at first, they meet soon after the execution when she fills in at the local diner where he eats, and then again when Tyrell is hit by a car and Hank takes them to the hospital's emergency room. Tyrell doesn't survive, and Leticia is left with no one, a broken down car, and an eviction notice on the door. It is at this point that these two people, both struggling with the worst that life has to offer, turn to each other for mutual support.

Thornton and Berry show us what acting is in this movie. Hank's transition from a bitter racist to one who is comforted by the love of a black woman shows how tragedy can transform even our deepest convictions, and forces him to deal with the reaction he gets from his father. It is hard to distinguish which is the greater tragedy, between Hank's relationship with his son or his father. Berry is in a similar position, showing with eloquence the struggle within Leticia, showing her love for her son even while he is such a burden to her, both financial and emotional, and her reaction to falling in love with someone whose background is so different from her own. And Boyle, Combs, and young Calhoun all show tremendous talent and style in their supporting roles.

The film's ending leaves the final outcome up in the air; the viewer is forced to draw his own conclusions about how the story turns out. This is a good choice by director Forster, emphasizing that one cannot always count on perfectly satisfying endings in life. Monster's Ball is full of these hard lessons; it is dark, difficult, and unpredictable, just as life sometimes is. ★★★★½

QUEEN OF THE DAMNED

Rated R - Running Time: 1:41 - Released 2/22/02

The death of singer/actress Aaliyah in a plane crash shortly after completing filming on Michael Rymer's mediocre vampire movie Queen Of The Damned (in which she played the title role) did not stop the film from being released; in fact, it may have helped the situation, as Warner Brothers allegedly upgraded the film from a direct-to-video release to cinematic status following the tragedy. How appropriate, since the film is about evil blood-suckers. Also, aside from its producers' apparent capitalization on Aaliyah's death (for the record, Warner denies this allegation), there is also the issue of the script, which was adapted from Anne Rice's popular novel series The Vampire Chronicles, the same source material used for Neil Jordan's 1994 Tom Cruise/Brad Pitt vehicle Interview with the Vampire. According to the Internet Movie Database, Rice offered to adapt the screenplay at no charge, but was turned down in favor of relative newcomers Scott Abbott and Michael Petroni, who apparently altered the original story beyond recognition.

Media hype and unprincipled choices aside, Queen Of The Damned as it turns out is predictably not a very good movie. Following the continuing adventures of French bloodsucker Lestat de Lioncourt (Cruise's previous role, which he turned down for this film), it serves as a cautionary tale for vampires who would seek to "come out of the casket," since it is the fate of all undead to remain cloaked in secrecy lest they become known and have bad movies made about them. In this tale, Lestat (Stuart Townsend), after spending a few hundred years chilling out in his tomb, listening to his Walkman, discovers that the occult is all the rage and decides to re-emerge and join a New Orleans goth rock band. Not only do Lestat and his bandmates become world famous, they also arouse the ire of numerous other vamps, who converge on a huge, Woodstock-style Death Valley concert to attack Lestat and suck him dry. Ah, the life of a rock star.

But Lestat's music, whose lyrics contain hidden messages and various vampire secrets, not only attract the numerous ranks of cloaked, sullen-eyed, garden-variety vampires, but also a mousy orphan librarian named Jesse (Marguerite Moreau), who was raised by vamps and wants to be one; Lestat's old suck-buddy Marius (Vincent Perez), to whom he owes his undead status; and the queen of all vamps herself, legendary Egyptian ruler Akasha (Aaliyah), whose power is awesome enough to destroy all, but whose Egyptian accent leaves a lot to be desired. But Lestat doesn't care about the danger; he wants to end his existence, so he's intentionally stirring up the undead hornet's nest in hopes of being vanquished and ending his eternal torment. I felt the same way sitting in the audience.

This film is all about cool effects and costumes, of which there are many. Shot like a music video, it includes flashing lights, hard music, and lots of sticky sweet blood dripping off the lips of its stars. The oppulent sets are enjoyable, as long as those annoying actors don't get in the way too much. The fact that the queen really is dead lends a macabre, depressingly appropriate quality to the proceedings, but unfortunately it doesn't help her acting any. I daresay that while the film has made the top ten at the box office, Warner Bros. should have followed their original plan. Wait for this movie to come out on video, where you can witness the sucking in the privacy of your own home. ★★

Thank you - to everyone who kept me in their thoughts and prayers during my recent surgery and recuperation, to those who sent cards, flowers, and visited me while I was in the hospital, to the special ladies who held my hand while I learned that I can overcome obstacles, to Dr. Kaiser and her staff for the special care before and after, to my co-workers and friends at the office for their concern and support, and a special thank you to my family who have been my strength and courage.

From the heart,

Marshall Center Representatives Visit Oakland

by Glenn Tolbert

Oakland was presented as an example of a "typical small American town" during a tour of the United States last weekend by officials and students from the George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies.

Jack C. Riley, a former Oakland resident and now associate dean for administration at the center, said that the town was well worth the bus ride from New York City because the community "represents all that is good about small town America." The more than 85 visitors toured the Oakland fire hall and were given demonstrations of fire-fighting equipment, before being served home-cooked meals in the fire hall.

"The idea was to show these people, many from formerly socialist countries, how citizens pulling together can make a real difference in their communities," Riley said. "We thought the Oakland fire department was a graphic example of this kind of effort."

Kim Walz of the center's office of public affairs said that part of the idea was to ease the transition from the old Soviet Bloc, where government took care of everything. "The independent spirit reflected in Oakland and the take-charge attitude is what we wanted to show these people," Walz said. "And many of them were quite impressed."

Teodora Fuior of Romania was impressed with the efforts of volunteers, but kept asking why anyone would want to live in a town as small as Oakland. "I loved New York, and I love the big cities in Romania," she said. "I think I would get bored in such a small place like this." When told that there were even smaller communities than Oakland in Garrett County, she waved her hands as if to say "keep them away from me."

However, Jura Cristian, also of Romania, said the idea of small town life had some appeal to him "If you want to, you can make a real difference in a place like this," he said. "I think this is a lovely small town, and as long as it has some bars not too far away, I could live here."

Located in Garmisch, Germany, the Marshall Center is under the Department of Defense's European Command and is a German/American partnership. The center has been credited with setting the foundation that contributed to unprecedented support from central Asian countries after the September 11 terrorist attacks.

Asa McCain, Oakland mayor, and Fred Holliday, Garrett County commissioner, greeted the visitors. McCain said it was an honor to have Oakland selected and visited as an example of a working, small American town. "It's things like this that help make all the work worthwhile," he said. "To get this kind of international recognition is really something special."

Holliday spoke briefly of the importance of volunteers in a rural area and how many things would not be accomplished without them.

The center's mission is to create a more stable security environment by advancing democratic defense institutions and relationships; promoting active, peaceful engagement; and enhancing partnerships among the nations in America, Europe, and Eurasia. More information about the center may be found at www. marshallcenter.org.

"A TYPICAL SMALL AMERICAN TOWN" — Oakland hosted 85 visitors from the George C. Marshall European Center for Security last Saturday. Officials and students from the center, which is located in Germany, wanted to visit a typical small town while they were in the United States. Their associate dean of administration, Jack Riley, suggested they visit his hometown — Oakland. See story for details. One of the objectives of the center is to help residents of formerly socialist nations learn how to be more self-reliant in a democracy. After touring the Oakland fire hall, the visitors were served a home-made dinner. Shown below, left to right, are Riley, and Gert G. Tubach — a first lieutenant in the German army — being greeted by Oakland mayor Asa McCain. Photos by Glenn Tolbert.

Woman Injured When Car Rolls Down Hillside

An Oakland woman was injured after her vehicle rolled down a 50-foot embankment Saturday night, according to Ranger Tim McMillan of the Maryland Forest and Park Service.

Cindy Lou Wall, 38, was driving southbound on New Germany Road about 8:20 p.m. when she lost control of her vehicle on the icy roadway and flipped over the guardrail, police said. A passenger in the vehicle was treated and released.

Wall was admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and was later released.

"It looked as if the vehicle rolled at least twice. I'd say seatbelts saved their lives," McMillan said.

Chamber Gives 100,000th Visitor Gifts And Party

Susan McClure of Severna Park was in for a surprise when she walked through the door of the Garrett County Visitors Center in McHenry last Friday afternoon. She was the 100,000th guest to stop in at the facility since it was built just over three years ago, and a celebration was awaiting her.

In anticipation of this milepost event, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce had accepted items from member businesses to be presented to this special guest. These gifts, along with a welcoming cake and balloons, were spread across the boardroom table.

Chamber president Ken Wishnick waited while Laura Riley, a Visitors Center travel counselor, answered all of McClure's questions about where to go and what to do. After this "special guest" signed the register, Wishnick led her into the conference room where waiting staff members yelled "surprise."

"I can't believe this," McClure repeated several times, upon learning that this party had been arranged in her honor. She dashed outside and quickly returned with her husband Mark and their children, Allison, 4, and Nicholas, 2, who all joined in the festivities. After a brief period of disbelief on the part of the McClure family, broad smiles prevailed.

"It seemed as if they were thinking of this as a joke from their friends or maybe even a Candid Camera stunt. It didn't take long before they realized that this was the real thing, and they really appreciated our gesture," said Wishnick.

The weekend getaway to Garrett County was the family's first. They had long considered visiting the Deep Creek Lake area for the skiing, they explained, but their decision to come followed their seeing local ads and viewing the Chamber's Internet site. However, it was the newly opened Bear Claw Snow Tubing Park that ultimately convinced them it was time to venture out to Garrett County, they said. Along with neighbors from Severna Park, the family rented a vacation home.

The following merchants contributed gifts to mark this occasion: The Loar Auxiliary Gift Shop at Garrett Memorial Hospital, a nut fudge Easter egg; Pine Accents, a basket of assorted soaps, lotions, candles, and other gift items; Inglenook Gift & Craft Shop, a $15 certificate; Brenda's Pizzeria, a certificate for a free large pizza; Mountain Fitness, a three-day pass; Spruce Forest Artisan Village, a Cherries & Chills dessert cookbook; Kathy's Furniture & Gifts, two champagne flutes; Rudy's Clothing of Oakland, a tapestry and leather travel tote; the Boardroom Family Restaurant, a $10 certificate; Camp Earth, a guided flat water kayak adventure tour for two; executive chef Larry Roby, a turtle cheesecake; and First United Bank & Trust, a sweatshirt.

Eric and Teresa Love, the McClures' neighbors sharing their vacation home, arrived at the Visitors Center in time to join in the festivities. Accompanying them were sons Patrick, 8, and Benjamin, 5. The Loves, also first time visitors to the area, said they were excited about spending time in the mountains.

"This really is a lucky day," said Susan McClure after thanking the chamber for the party. As they packed gifts and cake into the car, both families said they must return again after such a "warm" welcome.

Benefit Canceled

A story about a benefit dinner on March 17 appears on page C-1 of today's issue. Readers should note that the event, which was to benefit Sue Smith, has been canceled indefinitely as of this morning.

Victorian Tea Party To Assist House Of Hope

There will be a Victorian Tea Party held Sunday, April 7, to benefit the House of Hope. The event will be held in the Sitzmark Room at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, and will begin at 2 p.m.

The event will feature a variety of teas and other soft beverages, and light fare, plus piano music by Martin Heise. Organizers are also planning a silent auction featuring antiques from around the area. Other events will include a best tea party outfit contest, with prizes to be awarded.

"We want this event to hold something for everybody," said fund-raising chairperson Carol Smith. "This will be a great opportunity to get together with friends or to share an afternoon with someone you love."

The House of Hope, located in Oakland but serving all of Garrett County, is an ecumenical and non-denominational organization that relies solely on donations. Neither soliciting nor accepting government funding, the House of Hope provides flexible, individualized, and immediate aid to those in crisis. The House of Hope currently maintains four food pantries throughout the county.

Tickets for the Tea Party cost $10 per person and $5 for children ages 2-12. Tickets are available at Brenda's Pizzeria and Isabell's Coffee House at Deep Creek Lake, and Just Us Styling and Tanning Salon or Animal Crackers Pet Groomers in Accident.

RAISING MONEY FOR JERRY'S KIDS — The BFS store, located in Mtn. Lake Park, along with 25 BFS stores in Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania, is raising money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association's Shamrock Campaign. Last year the Mtn. Lake Park store raised $51, and so far this year, it has raised $1,102. The campaign runs until March 18. Customers purchase green shamrocks for $1 or gold shamrocks for $5 to hang in the store. "Shamrocks are everywhere. They are even hanging from the ceiling," said an employee of the store. The money goes to provide services like clinic visits to hospitals, support groups, wheelchairs, summer camp, and research. Pictured above, from the left, are the staff of the MLP store. In the front are Robin McCrum, store manager Barb Horner, Saretha Stallard, and district supervisor Delores Becker. In the second row are Connie Sliger, Betty Rhodes, Bonnie Sweitzer, Rich Tepper, and Carol Bittinger. Rachel House was not present for the photo. Three representatives from the participating BFS stores will be present at the Jerry Lewis Labor Day telethon.

Man Who Came To Dinner To Begin Next Week

Final rehearsals are under way for Our Town Theatre's production of The Man Who Came To Dinner, a comedy by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart. The show, which features a large local cast, will be presented starting next week at the theatre, which is located along Center Street in Oakland.

The show will be given March 13-16 and 20-23 at 8 p.m. and March 17 and 24 at 2 p.m. Seats remain for all 10 performances, but audience members are urged to make ticket reservations soon by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640 and following the directions on the answering machine. All tickets are $5.

"This wonderful play combines satire, farce, light humor, and all of the comedic nuances in between," said Jane Avery, director. She said the story line develops when a celebrity named Sheridan Whiteside (Richard Hill) comes to dinner at the Stanley residence in Mesalia, Ohio. After he slips on ice on the doorstep and breaks his hip, Whiteside takes over the household, showing his true personality and destroying the peaceful existence of the Stanley family.

"The 30 or so characters are quirky and diversified, the plot — sharp and action packed," Avery said. "The production promises to be a delight for everyone 12 and older."

Wind Chamber Music Concert Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University clarinet professor Mark Gallagher will be joined by other members of the Semplice Harbor Winds to perform an evening of wind chamber music this Saturday, March 9, at 8 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center's Pealer Recital Hall. This concert is part of the FSU Department of Music's Faculty/Guest Artist Series.

The concert is free and open to the public, but donations for music scholarships will be accepted. Works by Joseph Triebensee, Wilhelm Friedemann Bach, Malcolm Arnold, Heinrich Sutermeister, and Ludwig van Beethoven will be performed.

Founded in 1997, Semplice Harbor Winds is dedicated to the performance of classic and innovative wind literature. Clarinetist Gallagher, flutist Cindy Solfest-Wallis, and oboist Suzanne Geoffrey, all established teachers and performers, came together to form the core faculty at the Semplice Harbor School of Music.

Based in Washington Island, Wis., the Semplice Harbor School of Music offers summer chamber music classes for students of all ages and a college wind quintet fellowship program. In addition to their summer performances, Semplice Harbor Winds perform extensively throughout the year and will travel to the Netherlands this spring for their first European tour.

Local Student In Production At Shenandoah

A Garrett County student will perform two roles in a production of Anne of Green Gables at Shenandoah University, Winchester, Va., the weekends of March 23 and 30.

Sara Sincell, a senior theatre major at Shenandoah and a 1998 graduate of Southern High School, will portray Mrs. Blewett and school teacher Susan Stacy in the play, which is based on the classic novel by Lucy Maud Montgomery. It will be performed in the Glaize Studio Theatre of the Shenandoah University Conservatory.

Sincell, who will complete requirements for a bachelor of arts in theatre this spring, has played numerous roles in both musical, children's, and straight theatre while a student at Shenandoah. She also spent two summers performing in productions of the Shenandoah Summer Music Theatre program. While a high school student she played a number of roles in musical productions of the Ecumenical Youth Ministry.

An honor student, she is the daughter of Suzie and Don Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park.

Grant Funding

Development program, said director Jim Hinebaugh. The funds are earmarked for an agricultural marketing program, the Computers for Kids program, and the adventure sports complex. Hinebaugh said the regional director of economic development has also invited the county to apply for a $2 million grant for additional funding for the sports complex.

Additionally, Hinebaugh said a low-interest loan may be available through the USDA for the new county detention center. The loan would be for 30 to 40 years and have a 4.7 percent interest rate. Gary Mullich, director of general services, reported that a Request For Property would be issued soon for the detention center.

Dove Center

The new director of the Dove Center, Heather Hanline, said her agency had also applied for several grants. One grant from the state would be used to promote public awareness about domestic violence and to help with preventive efforts. Hanline said two other grants would be used to hire a part-time legal advocate for shelter clients. The advocate would help clients with their legal issues, especially divorces, since legal aid bureaus do not handle those cases.

Ruth Enlow Library

Cathy Ashby, director of the Ruth Enlow Library, reported that she was not optimistic that House Bill 244 would pass. "It doesn't look good," she said. HB 244 requests that the minimum allocation per resident that public libraries receive in funding be increased from $12 to $18. Ashby traveled to Annapolis in January to attend the bill's hearing that was conducted by the House Ways and Means Committee.

She added that several fund-raising events were scheduled for the new Grantsville Library. Commissioner Fred Holliday noted that the Grantsville Lions Club would be holding an auction at the Grantsville fire hall on April 13. The reNew Grantsville's Library Committee is attemping to raise as much money as possible by April 15. The county commissioners have pledged to match "dollar for dollar" what the committee raises by that date.

Mtn. Top Mental Health

Trish Yoder, director of the Mountain Top Mental Health Associates, reported that she was looking for new funding sources to help finance some "major" changes at the agency. The agency is currently evaluating how it serves its clients and other agencies and is developing a "new vision," Yoder said.

Stein First, Huskies Fourth In State Wrestling Tourney

Behind an individual championship by senior Pete Stein, the Northern High School wrestling team earned an impressive fourth place as a team in the Maryland Class 1A/2A State Wrestling Championships, an event hosted by Western Maryland College in Westminster. The tournament had representatives from 63 high school teams.

Stein, who won the title in the 125-pound division, led a group of seven Huskies who qualified for the state tourney, and was one of three who placed among the top three in their respective weight classes. As a team, Northern earned 69 points, while Kent County won with 129 points, Eastern Tech was second with 98.5, and Owings Mills placed third with 92.5.

Finishing second in the 145-pound division for the Huskies was junior Darric Kamp, while senior Trey Brenneman placed third in the 275-pound division.

It was a second state title for Stein, who was the champion of the 103-pound division when he was a sophomore. He recorded a pin and three decisions in the state tourney to capture the crown this year.

Tom Seiser (26-12) was his first victim, whom he pinned in 2:55. He then decisioned Neal Nakagama (26-5) of Queen Anne's in his quarterfinal bout, 6-2, after which he recorded a 2-0 win over onee-beaten Mark Kesslar (38-1) of Owings Mills. He took the crown in the division by earning a 4-1 decision over 28-1 Justin Bradley of Mardela High School.

Stein finished his season with an overall record of 25-4, despite being hampered with an elbow injury in recent weeks.

Kamp came into the tournament with a 26-5 mark and opened with a pin over Tyrell Bodley of Wicomico in 5:50. He then defeated Chad Roland (27-3) of North Harford, 13-6, and edged Towson's Zack Hines (31-9) by a 10-9 margin to earn a spot in the finals. He dropped a 12-5 decision to James Davis (31-6) of Eastern Technical in the title clash.

Brenneman, who lost in overtime to eventual champion Willie Leonard of Kent County in a semifinal match of the 275-pound division, started with a pin of Devin Harris (22-9) of Perryville. He then out-pointed Dennis Wise of Overlea, 7-2, to make it to the semifinal round.

Leonard pinned Brenneman in the overtime period, sending him to the consolation round, in which he earned his third place.

Also qualifying and competing for Northern were Dan Gaaoe (135), Mitchell Guard (140), Jordan Brenneman (152), and Kris Knox (160). Representing Southern High School were Chris Hayhurst (140) and Joe Ashby (125).

Beall High School's Eric Durst won the 160-pound championship and also completed a perfect 32-0 season. The Mountaineers placed 15th as a team.

Challenges abound this year as Bowl for Kids' Sake approaches — for schools, 4-H clubs, and Scout troops. This year's fundraiser will be held on Saturday, March 23, at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland.

A challenge has been issued by Bonnie Swyter, board member of Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters, to all Garrett County schools. A trophy is at stake, plus the honor of being the school that can raise the most funds for Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters per capita.

Last year, Broad Ford Elementary School had 54 bowlers who raised over $3,000. Teams are already being formed at Broad Ford, Dennett Road, Crellin, Accident, Yough Glades, and Northern Middle schools. All other county schools (who have received team sheets) are invited to sign up their teams by calling Big Brothers Big Sisters at 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735.

Service learning hours are available for high school bowlers and possibly to middle school students, as well. Volunteers are needed to recruiting teams, raising pledge money, bowling, and helping with the activities of the Bowl for Kids' Sake Day.

4-H groups are being challenged in Garrett County. Last year, there were 17 bowlers representing Red House 4-H who raised a total of $466, and 11 bowlers from North Star who raised $498, as well as bowlers from other clubs.

Ann Sherrard, Cooperative Extension agent, has team forms and pledge sheets for 4-H bowlers. Persons may reach her at 301-334-6960.

For many years, Boy Scouts have been regular supporters and major pledge-raisers. Last year, $385 was raised by 5 Scouts under Bob Stephens' leadership. Scout troops throughout the county have been challenged to meet or surpass their record. Girl Scout, Boy Scout, Brownie, and Cub Scout troops who were not contacted are still invited to take the challenge by calling the Big Brothers Big Sisters office.

The commitment and spirit of the volunteers who give so generously of their time" collecting pledges and bowling helps fund the majority of the operating budget for Big Brothers Big Sisters for the year. Without the volunteers, the work of Big Brother Big Sisters in Garrett County could not continue — matching children considered at-risk, in need of a special friend and extra attention, with adult mentors in both the community and school programs.

For more information about the non-profit organization or about Bowl for Kids' Sake, persons may call 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735.

Condoerr, Plaza Hobby, Smiley's League Winners

Teams sponsored by Condoerr, Plaza Hobby, and Smiley's were all winners in Mountaintop Basketball League games played Sunday afternoon. One week remains in the league's regular-season schedule.

Condoerr jumped out to a 39-29 halftime lead and went on to defeat Midas, 78-51, as five Condoerr players finished in double figures. Poke Winters led with 17 points, followed by Mike Saturday Sr. with 15, Pete Brosnihan with 13, Mike Saturday Jr. with 12, and Tony Doerr with 10. Joey DiSimone and Greg Inglese paced Midas with 18 and 12 points, respectively.

Plaza Hobby rallied from a 24-15 deficit at the end of the first quarter against 84 Lumber, and were on top by three, 34-31, at halftime. Plaza's Billy Martin helped his team keep the momentum in the third quarter by scoring 12 of his team's high of 23 points in that period. Mike Fazenbaker was right behind with 22 points, with 18 of those scored from three-point range. Ryan Adams also reached double figures with 18. Hitting a game-high 26 points for 84 Lumber was Greg Mortimer, and Gary Upole finished with 18.

Smiley's won the third game by a comfortable 95-74 margin over Skiles, despite the fact that major inside force Joe Refosco was not available to play. More than picking up the slack for Smiley's was Mike Pamepinto with a league high of 46 points, with eight of his baskets being three-pointers. Scott Shahan and Mike Harvey each finished with 13 points, Chris Ewing contributed 11, and Jonathan Price chipped in with 10. Skiles was led by Nathan Long with 28 points, and Jeremy Skiles netted 14.

Condoerr and Smiley's are tied for first place in the league with 10-1 records, followed by Skiles and Copeland's at 5-6, Plaza Hobby with a 5-7 mark, Midas at 4-7, and 84 Lumber winless at 0-11.

Rams' Quest For State Title Dashed By Rebels

The quest by the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team for a state championship, a prize that has been so close in recent years, will have to wait for at least 12 more months, as the Rams were nipped by South Hagerstown in the Class 1A West Region championship game.

The 2001-02 campaign of the Rams, which featured a school-record 18 straight victories, ended Saturday night at Allegany High School where they were edged by the Rebels, 63-62. The loss prevented a return to the state semifinals by the Rams, who lost at that level last season to Snow Hill by five points, 54-49.

The Rams and Coach Tom Bosley breezed into the regional title contest by crushing Hancock, 71-44, in a semifinal game played Thursday night at Allegany. The area and Western Maryland Interscholastic League champions were seeded second in the region behind once-beaten South Hagerstown (23-1).

Junior Dennis Tressler powered both the Ram offense and defense against the Panthers, as he poured in 25 points, grabbed 11 rebounds, and blocked four shots. Chad Panther and Bryson Meyers also reached double figures with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

The Rams got off to a sluggish start and quickly found themselves down 6-2 in the first few minutes of the game, as John Poffenberger and Chris Wills hit back-to-back three-point shots. However, the Rams stepped things up defensively and quickly assumed a lead that they would never relinquish.

Southern was on top by four, 17-13, at the end of the first period, stretched their advantage to 31-19 by halftime, and took a comfortable 50-29 advantage into the final stanza. The third quarter featured a 16-0 run after Hancock's Chris Robair opened the period with a three-point bucket. Meyers and Tressler each scored six points in that spurt.

The Ram defense was able to hold Hancock's 6-7 center Brandon Fling to eight points, seven rebounds, and five blocks. Poffenberger was the only member of the team who reached double figures, as he scored 13 points.

The Panthers concluded their season with an overall record of 17-7, best ever in the history of the school, which has only about 200 students in grades nine through 12.

"We were well prepared, we executed our game plan pretty well, and we weren't looking ahead," stated Coach Bosley. "A couple keys to our success were the good job Bryson (Meyers) did against Brandon Fling on the inside, and Matt Stephens' work against Chris Wills, who scored 48 points in a game that we scouted. These are two fine senior athletes.

"I have a lot of admiration for Hancock, though," he continued. "They are a small school that has a lot to be proud of. They had a great season. They just didn't have enough horsepower to be able to stay with us."

The Panthers had scored 90 points in their quarterfinal victory over Westmar two days earlier.

Meanwhile, South Hagerstown, which averaged over 80 points per game this season, was embarrassing Beall, 94-40, in the other semifinal contest to capture the other berth in Saturday's championship game. The Rams held the Rebels well below that average, but also allowed a 16-point lead late in the second half evaporate.

The Rams hit an impressive 60 percent of their shots from the floor (15 of 25) and nine of 11 free throws in the first half of action Saturday night, and also held a 17-7 advantage in rebounding by halftime. But the Rebels did a much better job of using their speed and athleticism in the second half to whittle away at the Ram advantage on the scoreboard.

The Southern players committed 25 turnovers in the game, with 15 of them coming in the second half. The Rams also began to get into some foul trouble in the third period, with guard Ricky Reams being tagged with his fourth infraction at the 6:10 mark of the third when Southern was up by 10 points. The Rebels finished the game with just 13 turnovers.

The Rams led by nine, 41-32, at halftime, but were down 53-50 by the end of the third quarter. It was a three-point bucket by Kevin Rideout that knotted the score at 50-50, and a steal and lay-up with a minute to play in the third that put the Rebels up by two, 52-50.

The Rams resumed the lead in the fourth quarter, 58-55, with a lay-up by Meyers, a three-point play by Tressler, and another free throw by Tressler with 2:35 left in the game.

South Hagerstown's Domonique Richmond, a three-sport standout who has been awarded a football scholarship to the University of Maryland, put his team back on top, 59-58, with a lay-up and another basket off a steal.

A jumper by Panther at the 1:30 mark put Southern back up by one point, 60-59, but Richmond answered with a jumper at the 1:00 mark to make it 61-60. Then with 45 seconds left, Panther hit another inside shot to give the Rams a 62-61 edge.

A jumper by South Hagerstown's David Miner with 23 seconds left would ultimately be the winning bucket and the final points of the game. A pass intended for Tressler was stolen by Miner, who passed to Richmond.

Richmond was fouled with five seconds left, but he missed both of his shots, giving the Rams still one more opportunity for victory, as Tressler pulled down the rebound from the second miss and fired the ball to Panther. But the senior guard was unable to get off a final shot of his high school career before the buzzer sounded.

Tressler again excelled for the Rams, as he recorded a game-high 28 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. Panther finished with 20 points.

Richmond paced the Rebels in scoring with 22 points, and Miner contributed 16 points and seven rebounds.

"I'm very disappointed for our kids," Coach Bosley said. "This team won more games as juniors and seniors in two years (43) than any other Southern team, which is a great accomplishment. It's too bad that it had to end just like this.

"I was satisfied with our effort," he said. "It just came up a little bit short. I really feel bad for our seniors especially."

The Rams finished with an overall record of 21-4 to earn their fourth straight 20-plus win season.

SHS Girls' Title Hopes Are Ended By Leopards

An absolutely perfect basketball season came to an end for the Southern High School girls' varsity and Coach Don Stemple Friday night at Fort Hill High School when the Rams, who were sporting a 24-0 record, another area title, and another Western Maryland Interscholastic League title going into the Class 1A West Region championship game, were edged by Smithsburg, 56-52.

An eight-point early lead of the Rams quickly evaporated in the second quarter, and they spent the rest of the game trying to rally from a several-point deficit. The Leopards never relinquished the lead in the second half, although the Rams cut the margin to one point with a 10-1 run in the fourth stanza.

Robbin Gregg paced the Rams in the first quarter, as she scored six of her 12 points in that stanza. Her 15-foot jumper put Southern up 12-6, and a lay-up by Jennifer Bosley gave the Rams their biggest lead of the contest, 14-6, with 2:10 left in the period.

Smithsburg's Katy Powell, who finished with a game-high 24 points, responded with a free throw, and Eariel Gholson's three-point shot from about 30 feet away initiated a brief rally by the Leopards, who cut the Rams' lead to three points, 15-12, by the end of the quarter.

The Leopards dominated the second quarter with a 20-8 scoring advantage, which included a 14-2 run in the final 4:05, to take the lead for good. Powell hit nine of those points, and Gholson contributed six. The Rams trailed by nine points, 32-23, at halftime.

Ashley Liller, who had one of her lowest scoring outputs of the season, gave the Rams a boost in the opening moments of the second half, as she hit back-to-back jump shots to cut the Leopards' advantage to five points. After Smithsburg went back in front by eight, Gregg hit a bucket and Liller netted two free throws to pull the Rams within four, 42-38, by the end of the third period.

The Leopards moved back in front by 10 points by scoring the first three buckets of the fourth quarter, but the Rams responded with a 10-1 run to close the margin to one point, 49-48. With the area's top foul shooter, Justine Pagenhardt, at the line for a pair, Ram fans were confident that Southern would regain the lead, but the sophomore missed both of her shots. Smithsburg regained a five-point advantage, 53-48, with less than a minute to play.

The Rams made it 53-50, and Liller had an opportunity to score with a three-point attempt with about 15 seconds remaining, but the ball bounced off the rim. The Leopards' final points were scored from the foul line.

Southern struggled most of the evening against the Leopards' fullcourt defense, which yielded 18 Ram turnovers.

Junior Becca Flanagan paced the Rams in both scoring and rebounding with a double-double evening, 14 points and 13 boards, and she also had four assists. Senior Jennifer Bosley was right behind in scoring with 13 points, Gregg netted 12, and Liller finished with 11, plus eight rebounds.

Powell's 24 points came on 11 field goals and a pair of free throws, and she also grabbed nine rebounds and blocked three shots. Gholson also reached double figures with 13 points, while Emily Small contributed nine points and seven rebounds.

"This was obviously a very tough loss for us," stated Coach Stemple. "I tried to emphasize what a great year we've had, but a loss like this makes it hard to appreciate all the things that we've accomplished."

The undefeated season was the first in the history of the school, and the 24 victories in a single season was also a record.

"Katy Powell is a great athlete," he said. "We tried a lot of things to control her, but none of them worked," he said.

"Smithsburg is a fine team, and could certainly go all the way at states," he concluded.

The outlook for next season is positive for the Rams, as starters Flanagan, Pagenhardt, and Gregg will all return. Liller and Bosley are the only key players who will be lost to graduation.

Lakers Will Open Baseball Season With Many Freshmen

JOSH BOSLEY

DEAN ALTAVILLA

RYAN WETZEL

JEREMY SHAFFER

The 2002 spring baseball season will begin with a bang this week for the Garrett Community College baseball team and Coach Ed Wildesen, as the Lakers are scheduled to play six games in three days this weekend. They will open their campaign with a doubleheader at the College of Southern Maryland.

Wildesen will depend upon leadership from eight returning sophomores, who must fill the shoes of eight players who moved on with both their educations and their baseball careers. They include Jason DiAngelo, who is now playing for West Virginia University; Chad Cooper, who is at Middle Tennessee State University; Craig Barkey, playing for Mansfield University; Brandon Stewart, who is at Slippery Rock University; Adam Skocik, now playing for Akron University; Dennis Show, with the California (Pa.) University program; and Matt Mills, who is completing his two-year degree and being recruited by a number of Division I universities.

The four top returning sophomores, who will work to improve upon the 21-22 record that was recorded by the Lakers last year, are former Southern High standout Josh Bosley, Dean Altavilla, Ryan Wetzel, and Jeremy Shaffer. Four other sophomores whom Wildesen will also depend on for team leadership are Joe Carper, Chris Fisher, Mike Berry, and Neil Blewett.

"Last year was by far the hardest we've ever been hit with injuries," said Wildesen, who is now in his ninth year at the helm of the Laker program. "As a result, March 15 was the last time we had our entire roster healthy and available. From that point on, injuries really took a toll."

With the loss of so many key players to graduation, and a number of positions expected to be filled by the corps of 11 freshmen, Wildesen is anticipating another "challenging" year.

"We have more than our share of freshmen this year, plus we continue to have to deal with our weather conditions," he said. "We will most likely struggle early, but should improve rapidly if we keep our confidence and our health.

"I remember our 1997 team, which had 17 freshmen on a 19-man roster, and we set a school record for consecutive wins, split with Allegany and Rockville, both nationally ranked, and saw one of our freshman pitchers throw a no-hitter," he continued.

The Lakers are scheduled to play their first home game on March 15, weather permitting. They are slated to play 42 games, not counting any post-season tournament action.

Following Friday's twinbill at Southern Maryland, Garrett will play a pair at Rappahannock CC on Saturday, a doubleheader at Frederick CC on Sunday, and at single game at Potomac State College next Wednesday.

"The Garrett baseball program has never walked away from a challenge," Wildesen said. "In fact, we relish one, and the 2002 season will not be an exception."

Service Club Ends Season With Playoffs, Pizza, Awards

The Service Club Basketball League ended its ninth season with its Championship Showdown on Saturday, Feb. 23, at Southern High School, which was followed by the league's annual pizza party, highlight show, and all-star announcements. Over 300 people witnessed the championship and consolation games in the senior, junior, and girls' divisions.

The team sponsored by the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club captured the championship in the senior division by rolling over the Knights of Pythias, 52-33. The Lions were led by "twin towers" Evan Lantz with 16 points and Ryan DeWitt with 12, as the pair dominated the inside both offensively and defensively. Perimeter defense and strong ball handling were provided by Jason Wakefield and Sean McCreery, who each scored six points.

The K of P team, which upset the Lions in the title game last year, reached the finals by upsetting the Oakland Rotary squad the previous week, despite losing its leading scorer Joey Tressler to injury. Jeremy Sines and Seth Fike led K of P in scoring against the Lions with seven points each, while John Knox recorded six points. David Reams led the defense.

Brett DeWitt and Nick Gregg led the scoring effort for the Elks in the consolation game of the division, as the Elks topped the Rotary, 44-39. DeWitt poured in 20 points and Gregg netted 15. Rotary stayed close, despite having to play without the league's leading scorer, Andrew VanBogelen, who was injured. Samuel Leatherman scored 16 points to lead Rotary, while Jimmy Hinebaugh and Adam VanBogelen provided good ball handling and 15 points between them. Nathan Stephens excelled for Rotary in rebounding and inside defense.

In the girls' division title game, the American Legion Auxiliary edged the Catholic Daughters, 31-27, with Caitlyn Brown leading the way with 12 points and Sarah Cosner adding six. Brown and Cosner, the team's two eighth graders, keyed the Auxiliary's effective 1-3-1 trap. Adrienne Yoder also provided scoring and key rebounding for the Auxiliary, and Ashley Rohrbaugh was second in scoring with eight points. The Catholic Daughters were led by Natalie Rohrbaugh with 13 points and Kendra McLaughlin with seven. Brittany Boyce and Jessica Petrella led the Daughters' defensive effort.

The team sponsored by the Women's Civic Club coasted to a 41-6 victory over the Business and Professional Women's Club team to win the consolation game. WCC was led by point guard Sara Stephens, who netted 15 points and had numerous steals. Michelle Holler also reached double figures with 10 points, while Nicole Knox and Ashley Walters provided strong inside play. Cassie Skidmore led BPW in scoring with four points, while Amanda Perry, Laren Shue, and Jennifer Lyall paced the defense.

The Fraternal Order of Police team, which finished the regular season with an 11-1 record, won the junior division title by topping the American Legion team. Jordan Pacella, Alan Gnegy, Jason Ashby, and Colin McCaffrey led the FOP defensive effort, forcing numerous turnovers and leading to a 17-9 halftime lead. Matt White and Drew Proudfoot controlled the boards for FOP. The Legion rallied in the second half on a run led by Tom Reams, Alex Stuck, and Chris Schad, but could get no closer than six points. Rett Rhodes had four rebounds and two steals for the Legion team.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars squad topped the Oakland Masonic Lodge team, 26-14, to win the consolation game. Matt Carnell and Jeff Stem led the VFW's defensive charge, and also led in scoring with nine and five points, respectively. Cody Colaw provided strong inside defense and Cody Broadwater dominated the boards. Andrew Dale led the Lodge in scoring with five points, with Jonathan Feaster providing four points and excelling on defense and assists. Shane Knotts added four points, and Ryan Troublefield and Brian Harvey paced the Lodge's inside play.

The annual pizza party was sponsored by Browning's Foodland and Little Caesar's Pizza. Dave Bender, co-director of the league, recognized all volunteer students, referees, sponsors, and coaches, as well as the players and their parents.

Named to the all-star teams were: Tommie Reams, Alex Stuck, Jonathan Feaster, Jeff Stem, Jordan Pacella, Drew Proudfoot, Matt White, and Christopher Schad, junior division; Brett DeWitt, Nick Gregg, Nathan Harris, David Reams, Joey Tressler, Andrew VanBogelen, Jason Wakefield, and Evan Lantz, eighth grade, senior division; Sarah Cosner, Jennifer Lyall, Michelle Holler, Nicole Knox, Kendra McLaughlin, and Laren Shue, eighth grade, girls' division; Adam VanBogelen, T.J. Sisler, Nathan Stephens, Ryan DeWitt, Sean McCreery, Timothy Reams, Seth Fike, and Brandon Roberson, seventh grade, senior division; and Amanda Perry, Ashley Rohrbaugh, Adrienne Yoder, Brittney Scheffel, Brittany Boyce, Sarah Stephens, Natalie Rohrbaugh, and Jessica Petrella, seventh grade, girls' division.

The league will sponsor all-star competition in various tournaments throughout the area, including the Gene Scaletta Memorial Tournament at Westmar High School, beginning March 11.

Another highlight of the party was a big-screen digital highlight show of the season in review, created and presented by Lisa Bender.

Terps Get By Tar Heels For League Title

The Central Garrett Terps, led by Garrett Gulledge's 10 points, defeated the Western Garrett Tar Heels in a thrilling 26-24 victory for the Northern Youth Basketball League Championship. The Terps jumped out to a 10-1 first half lead, as Kory Gibson scored six of his nine points in the first half. The Tar Heels cut the lead to 11-6 on Jared Lapp's three-point play at the end of the half.

The second half saw the score change or tie seven times. The Tar Heels stormed back to take a 16-15 lead late in the third quarter, but the Terps would not be denied. They took the lead for good late in the fourth quarter as they broke a 22-22 tie when Amy Lander hit a lay-up. Another basket after a defensive stop put the Terps up by four points, 26-22. Jared Lapp's driving lay-up cut the deficit to two points with 45 seconds left in the game. The Tar Heels stopped the Terps on the next possession for one last chance. However, the Terps defense caused a Tar Heel turnover and iced the championship.

Members of the Terps were Kory Gibson, Matt Gibson, Amy Lander, Zak Brosnihan, Morgan Brosnihan, Jeffrey Smith, Garrett Gulledge, Nathan Rose, and Jesse Storey. The Terps were coached by Pete Brosnihan and George Lander.

SGAA Slates Awards Assembly

The Southern Garrett Athletic Association will host its 2001-2002 Winter Sports Awards Assembly on Sunday, March 17, at 6 p.m. The assembly will be conducted in the high school cafeteria, where all winter sports athletes will be recognized and honored. There will be no admission fee.

The association is also selling Southern Rams license plates. Each set of license plates costs $35. For further information, persons may contact Tim Miller at 301-334-8243.

Laker Women Top Catamounts In Final Game

The women's basketball team of Garrett Community College wrapped up its regular season last Thursday by defeating visiting Potomac State College, 80-66, and now awaits seedings for the regional tournament.

Mindy Miller was deadly from long range for the Lakers, as she hit six three-point buckets. She also went six-for-six from the foul line, grabbed eight rebounds, and had four assists. (Her total number of points was not reported.) Christi Edgell netted 18 points, while Crystal Kimble also reached double figures with 14 points.

Brittany McCarty led the Catamounts with 20 points, Sheena Zbosnik finished with 18, and Cassie Schwinabart hit 17.

The victory guaranteed a winning regular season for the Lakers (14-13).

next year.

"We're going to have to start making some tough decisions," Edwards said. "Probably nobody's going to be happy." He added, however, that he and Hafer would not "rob" any of the pots. "We may just have to bite the bullet, status quo everything, and start again next year. Everything's on the table this year, even the table's on the table." Bills not requesting funding, however, may have better chances of passing than those that do, he added.

While the legislators did paint a rather gloomy forecast of the state's economy, they were optimistic about local economic growth. "Lots of exciting things are happening in the county," Edwards said. "Some good things are coming." He stated it was important to continue to stimulate local growth to "keep young people in the county."

The lawmakers concluded their session by inviting residents to call them in Annapolis at 1-800-492-7122 and give their input. "We need to hear from you," Edwards said. He pointed out that he and Hafer were the county's only representation in the General Assembly and were often outvoted on legislation pertaining to local needs. The delegate advised Garrett residents with similar concerns to form coalitions and lobby the governor's office and legislative committees, in order to make their needs more apparent to other lawmakers.

gets have increased only about 20 percent. "Will there be a point when the library will not need this type of increase?" Beitzel asked. "The board has to realize it can't keep up this pace."

"There is light at the end of the tunnel," said Claudia Coughlin, trustee. She pointed out that the library's requests were greater because it had not been funded sufficiently for almost 20 years. "You can't depend on donations to run a library," added Jack Carruthers.

Moors noted that donations to the new Grantsville library project have been generous, but contributions to Friends of Ruth Enlow Library were down. "People only have so much money," she said.

Beitzel asked Susan Athey-Oxford if Partnership for Children and Families could help secure grant funding for the library. Athey-Oxford said the partnership was working with the Ruth Enlow to develop the county's first wireless network. "The growth of the library cannot fall on the responsibility of the county," she said. "It depends on the support of other county agencies. I will do everything I can to support the library."

The commissioners, county administrator, and finance department will review the proposed budget request before making a final decision. The library's total expected expenses for FY 2003 are $873,519, which includes salaries, staff improvements, rent, utilities, supplies, and other expenses.

Most of all I wish people would realize that we are your neighbors — We shop at the same stores, send our kids to the same great Garrett County schools, take part in many of the area's programs, add to the local economy, and enjoy the beautiful things this area has to offer. All we want to do is become a valuable part of the county, make beautiful things, and live in one of the nicest spots in the world.

To the Editor:

My heart goes out to legislators who are supporting the medical marijuana bill because of personal experiences of dealing with the terminal illness of family members and to those who are cancer survivors.

I have cared for and watched loved ones die, including two husbands, mother, father, brother, and sister. I have seen how a patient can die with dignity with the help of Hospice and physicians who understand palliative care and pain/symptom control.

I congratulate our Western Maryland legislators who are not agreeing to support the medical marijuana bill.

I have opposed Delegate Don Murphy's bill each time he has introduced it. I like to think I helped to defeat this bill by contacting legislators. Delegate Murphy has brought it to the floor of the Maryland Republican Party at the last two state conventions in the form of a resolution. I helped to defeat it on both occasions.

While the state of Maryland is using the bulk of the tobacco settlement money to educate people on the danger of smoking and second-hand smoke, we cannot afford to encourage anyone to smoke or expose others to smoke.

Now to the criminal side to the bill. It is my understanding that the bill would make it legal for a physician to write a prescription for three to five marijuana plants. Has anyone given any thoughts to the pharmacy break-ins that would occur? The patient's home would not be safe as the word got out in the neighborhood and schools that the marijuana plants were available in that home. I have talked to many law officers who feel that this would become a gateway drug. It would be wise for the legislators to poll the members of the Fraternal Order of Police.

If Delegate Murphy's bill is so good, why hasn't the American Cancer Society endorsed the bill?

I have been active in politics all my life. My "pet peeve" has always been that some elected officials quickly become "Jacks of all trades." They know all the answers on every subject. To my knowledge, Murphy is not a physician or a pharmacist. Is this a bill to ensure his re-election in a more liberal district? I can feel his political pain, but marijuana isn't the answer.

It has been pointed out that cancer and AIDS patients could relieve their pain or counteract their treatment-induced nausea by smoking marijuana. I have been the executive director of Hospice of Garrett County for 14 years. We, with the help of our medical director and family physicians, do that very well without the help of marijuana.

I ask your readers to call their legislators and ask them to vote against the medical marijuana bill.

I am always available to talk to anyone about Hospice care and to help locate a Hospice in your area. Trust me, you don't need marijuana. You may call me at 301-334-5151.

To the Editor:

Your excellent article about the Humane Society and the dedicated folks who have kept it going for all these years prompts me to share a few thoughts that I have had concerning some of the way our local society works. The detailed information about the costs of veterinary care for severely ill or injured animals puts in writing something that has really bothered me for years.

Is this the best way to use what precious few dollars are available for the prevention of cruelty to animals? I happen to believe in a "doggie heaven," and I can't help but think it is better to let certain animals "go on over" in order for a greater number of animals to be treated more humanely. To repeatedly run up huge veterinary bills to save a few does not make good sense to me.. To me it makes much more sense to use the monies raised to increase the size of the shelter and add to the excellent work being done there. There are many good and healthy animals euthanized every day for lack of funds, while extreme and expensive veterinary care is being given to save a few.

What I have seen with the local society is a pattern of care and concern that needs to be broken in order that there can really be educational programs for the public as to humane treatment. We need to educate about the value of pets and the relationship of the care of pets to the care of children. We need money to train people to professionally investigate animal cruelty, and money to educate our community about the importance of getting their animals spayed and neutered. There are programs out there that our community can take advantage of with the use of well thought-out plans and careful use of funds.

I'm glad the county commissioners have set aside spay/neuter money; we need a lot of education and effort there. This is an area that has been neglected over the years. I'm curious to know how that large amount of money will be used? How are folks being educated and informed about this if they don't read your paper? Do the commissioners send out flyers and follow up on education and wise money use? I certainly don't know the answers. I did know it was time for me to stop supporting the old patterns of the Garrett County Humane Society when I realized how their money was spent, well before this article appeared. I wonder how others will respond to this information.

I commend the hard working members of the local society for the service they have done. I thank them for that and for the truly wonderful pets we have adopted from them over the years.

I am glad to know that others in the county are now working toward meeting the other needs of our dear beloved pets, other animals, and, importantly their owners. I have decided to join and support PAWS - Partnership for Animal Welfare and Safety. It sounds like they have some good plans and an excellent mission. I'm glad to hear they are sponsoring an Animal Cruelty Investigation Training Workshop in May, in cooperation with the Family Violence Coalition. I commend this group and wish it well.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Knight

Cristine Kepple Sweitzer, chairperson of the Garrett County Development Corporation. "However, many economic factors have changed during the intervening period. This project will provide the county with a plan to continue the development of projects and goals that will contribute to the economic strength and overall quality of life in the county."

She added that the plan will enhance the county's ability to attract and retain businesses and non-profit organizations that employ local residents.

Headwaters Consulting & Services Inc. has been retained to facilitate the gathering of input and preparation of the strategic plan. Hinebaugh said that the firm is experienced in developing strategic and business plans for businesses and academic and government agencies.

The March 21 meeting will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 314 at the McHenry campus of GCC. All are invited to attend.

Party. Hayden apparently felt the Democrats were, as a whole, responsible for Lincoln's untimely death. He did not mince words in his writings about Democrats, whom he often referred to simply as "those people."

In his first issue, Hayden notes the inauguration of the president:

By the time our new paper has found its way to the homes of the people of our county, the great Commission will have consummated its work and Rutherford B. Hayes will have been declared the lawfully elected President of the United States.

No one doubts that he will be inaugurated, unless some madman should seek his life, and, after the fashion of that party, add another assassination to its list of crimes. Would it be wonderful, after the talk current in our sheets for months past, threats from the highway and articles in leading democratic papers, that are passed from hand to hand with democratic approval, if some lunatic should attempt some such fool-hardy act? We warn those democrats who have countenanced this sort of talk, and who have desired to be enrolled and "march on to Washington," that they and their party will be held to a strict account for any such crime, should it come.

Times have certainly changed, as the articles in The Republican have little to do with partisan issues, and Democrats are certainly not vilified. In fact, at least half of the employees at the paper are registered Democrats and are not generally mistreated for it. But one must remember the political and emotional atmosphere of 1877, just 12 years after the end of the war and the assassination of Lincoln. The publication was definitely written by a Republican for Republicans. Hayden regularly prodded his fellow partymen to support the paper as well:

— Republicans should bear in mind that it takes money to run a newspaper, and that it is their duty to assist us by sending the amount of a year's subscription in advance. (March 10, 1877)

While the world has indeed been altered through the years, Captain Hayden apparently dealt with some of the very same problems the current staff has today. We here in the newsroom are accused at times of being unaware of certain issues or events. Today's editor, Donald W. Sincell, notes from time to time that we are not in possession of a crystal ball. While a certain issue may be the very center of the world for a reader, we writers may be completely unaware of it without some help from the outside. In Hayden's second issue of The Republican, he apparently is in the same boat:

Send the Local News

When anybody dies, gets married, runs away, steals anything, builds a house, makes a big sale, breaks a leg or arm, or does anything that is in any way remarkable, and you have reason to believe that you know as much about the occurrence as anybody else, don't wait for some other person to report it or trust us to find it out by instinct, but come and tell us about it, or send the facts to us. This is the way news is supplied, and it takes a goodly supply of that necessary article to make a good home paper. Let us know every item of news that transpires in your neighborhood.

Readers did respond to the editor's request, and news from different towns came in for publication. The following are some such early items:

Items from Grantsville.
March 10, 1877

Over-coats are in demand this morning. Henry has not got that ground hog yet.

Sugar makers have had plenty of work for the last week. Mr. Eli Stanton is shipping maple sugar to Bay City, Michigan.

Mr. Elijah Livengood has made and sold between 3,000 and 4,000 pounds of sugar, and on last Saturday had more water than he could boil away.

Sol says he is not making much sugar but is more than putting away the eggs.

The Band boys are having a good time generally. Cakes and wine in demand.

Mr. A.J. Welshaus, of Meyersdale, Pa., spent a week with the band boys. Come again, Al, you are always welcome.

The 1st cornet serenaded Esquire Patterson on Thursday evening last, and met with a warm welcome and a splendid supper. Squire knows how to appreciate good music.

Mr. Joe Yutzy, of Meyersdale, Pa., author of "Prison Life," spent several days in town this week. Joe looks none the worse for his adventures at Andersonville and Libby.

The Band met at Mr. B. Welfley's on Friday evening last. All voted it a good time. But Elias caps the climax. He has about 50 gallons of good old blackberry. The boys are practically marching in that direction.

— A melee occurred in Oakland on Wednesday between two young men, in which one of the parties was severely, but not dangerously, cut with a knife, in the hands of the other. The party doing the cutting left town.

Items from Accident
March 17, 1877

The fact that the Board of County Commissioners has advertised for proposals for erecting the county buildings seem to excite no comment whatever.

The corner grocery statesmen are left without an occupation. The Presidential question settled and the county buildings going up, has created a death of topics. Like Micawber, we are "waiting for something to turn up."

John Gnagey's new chickens are coming to the front. Brown Leghorns are likely to be the rage. Mr. John Richter purchased one half dozen eggs last spring, the net result is plenty eggs since Christmas. The six eggs purchased producing six chickens, four pullets and two males, one of which sold for what the eggs cost. These Johns appreciate a good thing when they see it.

Dr. Glotfelty has a Jersey cow and three Berkshire pigs that are hard to beat.

Big Pete Bowser is prospecting for coal and limestone for Melchoir J. Miller.

Fears are entertained that we will be visited with an epidemic of scarlet fever and dyphtheria. Nimrod Glotfelty lost his youngest child from scarlet fever, and a number of other children in that neighborhood are suffering from it.

Plenty of snow in the lanes yet, and mud where no snow.

Grain looks well considering the unfavorable weather of late.

Wild geese have been seen flying North, some very low. Weather prophets consider it significant.

The columns were filled with a variety of writing, much of it from outside sources in such genres as fiction, adventure, and world news. The local items ranged from the wildly mundane to the gruesome. Violent deaths seemed to take place every week in this age when safety precautions were not prevalent, and the details of such agonies were rarely spared in the news reports.

6,500 PAPERS AGO — The Republican newspaper's first editor, Captain James Hayden, would surely be surprised and pleased to know that his publication survives today, 125 years beyond the first issue pictured here. He may not be applaud the non-partisan theme of the paper, however, far removed from its original GOP slant.

The following item is one of the more uninspiring events reported in March of 1877:

While Capt. Nelson Beall and wife were taking horseback exercise Thursday, the horse Mrs. Beall rode attempted to lie down in a stream south of town, when Mrs. Beall jumped off. In doing so her skirt caught on the saddle, by which she was drawn a short distance over rough ground, inflicting several painful but not serious cuts and bruises.

A much more dire event in which a local man lost his life was printed on the same page. There is more detail about the accident than what might be printed today, yet it is one of the more subdued articles of the time having to do with a person's death:

Fatal Accident.

John Shaffer, a farmer, residing six miles south of Oakland, was instantly killed on Friday last, in the following manner: About 10 o'clock, a.m., of that day he proceeded to the woods, near his residence, for the purpose of hewing timber for a barn which he intended to erect. At dinner time he was called by members of his family, but they receiving no response one of them proceeded to where he had been working, when they found him lying on the ground dead, with his skull fractured, which had been done by the limb of a dead tree standing near, that had been dislodged by the high wind prevailing at the time.

Mr. Shaffer was about 55 years of age, and leaves a wife and seven children. His remains were interred on Sunday in the Catholic Cemetery at Oakland, of which church the deceased was a consistent member.

Finally this week we leave with our readers a reprint of the very first editorial, written in the March 3, 1877, issue of The Republican newspaper:

Salutatory.

With to-day's issue we commence the publication of THE REPUBLICAN which we are warranted in saying will hereafter be a permanent institution in our community and which we propose to make a welcome weekly visitor to every household in the county.

The political status is sufficiently indicated by its name.

We leave the future to show with what zeal and ability it will defend that great party, whose triumph was the salvation of our common country over the base designs and traitorous assaults of those men, who because they could no longer control, sought the utter destruction of that Government, which is to us the priceless legacy not only of the Fathers of the Revolution, but those Martyrs of the later time, when blood was poured out at Gettysburg and Appomattox "that the Union might live."

We shall seek to make known, as widely as we can, the resources of our county, and urge our people to improve their opportunities in every possible way. We shall advocate more extensive and more thorough educational facilities and always espouse any measure that shall elevate the morals, add to the knowledge, and improve the comforts of our people.

We shall be glad to have correspondence from every section of the county upon all subjects of general interest.

We shall seek to furnish, for our "family circles" such reading as may interest and amuse that "better" part of our homes and, in a word, furnish a paper that to sound political doctrines shall add usefulness and such literary excellence as shall make it indispensable in every well-ordered home in Garrett County.

THE EDITOR.

Volunteers Being Sought For Parks

A meeting is scheduled for persons interested in becoming volunteers at Herrington Manor and Swallow Falls state parks. The volunteers' meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, March 13, at the Herrington Manor office at 7 p.m.

"For those who frequently use and appreciate the local parks, this is an opportunity to help preserve and maintain the natural beauty of these two state parks," said a spokesperson for the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

Assistance is needed in a number of areas. Volunteers can sign up for individual projects or tackle larger projects as a group. Projects include trail maintenance, tending gardens, or presenting programs to park visitors. For more information or to offer their skills, persons may call Caroline Blizzard or Connie Skipper at 301-334-9180.

Information will be available on the process and on local farms that produce maple products. Maple syrup products will be offered for sale from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. both days.

On Sunday from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m., the park will offer an "all-you-can-eat" breakfast. Pancakes, buckwheat cakes, pure maple syrup, sausage, orange juice, and coffee will be served. An adult breakfast is $6, and the cost for children under 12 is $3.

Applications For Forestry Camp Being Accepted

The Garrett County Forest Conservancy District Board, in cooperation with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service, is now accepting applications from area high school students for the 2002 Maryland Forestry and Natural Resources Careers Week. The deadline for submitting these applications is April 15.

The weeklong program is designed to acquaint college-bound high school students with careers in forestry and natural resources management. Staff personnel will include professional foresters from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service and private industry. Natural resources professionals, in a variety of disciplines, supplement the program. The program consists of a series of lectures and field trips to give the students a first-hand knowledge of natural resource careers.

The Maryland Association of Forest Conservancy District Boards sponsor the program. The local county forestry board coordinates student selection, fees, and transportation. There is no cost to students attending.

The 2002 program will be held at Hickory Environmental Education Center near Accident from July 29 through August 2.

Applications can be obtained through local high school guidance offices and science departments, or at the Maryland Forest Service office, 1728 Kings Run Road, Oakland, MD 21550.

"Why, I can picture a lush, garden with a fountain behind an arbor covered with crimson roses. Can't you?"

"Yeah, I've seen those landscapers on television do it, but how are you going to get a garden out of this moss? You'll have to get out the bulldozer."

The landscape architect is indeed capable of creative vision, but Mr. Homeowner is right about one thing. First you've got to plow through the weeds and brambles.

Many of us envision a better future. Indeed, this is the "land of opportunity" and each of us in capable of building a new life. Yet, for our future to be the best possible we must remove the spiritual brambles of fear and self-doubt in order to build upon the foundation of God's assurance. In Exodus 3:17 God says to Moses, "I have promised to bring you up out of your misery into... a land flowing with milk and honey." Imagine that.

God will bulldoze through the brambles in your life. Worship each week and picture the life of your dreams.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

APPALLING SIN, AMAZING GRACE

March 10, 2002

Background Scripture:
Romans 3
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 33:13-32.

Thomas Carlyle says that the "deadliest sins" are "the consciousness of no sin." When we think we are relatively free from sin, then we are most vulnerable to it. That is why "respectable people" so rarely are aware of their sins. We mistake respectability for righteousness—and they are not the same.

In fact, respectability may become a substitute for righteousness. Respectability is founded upon what others think of us according to various societal standards. For example, I'm sure that most of you my readers are respectable. You probably do not kill, steal, or commit adultery. You are probably not the town drunkards. You hold down decent, respectable jobs and provide reasonably well for your families. But, is that all there is to righteousness?

In one of my parishes I took Holy Communion to an elderly shut-in. When I prayed with her the Prayer of General Confession, she protested, "I don't know why we have to pray that prayer; what sins can I commit?" At the time, I had no comeback, but I later realized that her conception of sin was limited to the more obvious transgressions. She didn't realize—and I didn't explain to her—that sin can lodge in our hearts even if we cannot move a muscle. Our sins may be unrighteous thoughts and attitudes.

No Exceptions

That was what Paul had discovered. As it puts it in Romans 3:9-12: "...for I have already charged that all men, both Jews and Greeks, are under the power of sin, as it is written: 'None is righteous, no, not one.'" All of us are sinners no matter how respectable the world may view us. We may not lie, cheat, steal or commit mayhem, but all of us fail to live up to the best that we know.

William Temple, an Anglican theologian, has written, "Some things hurt us; we hope they will not happen again; we call them bad. Some things please us; we hope they will happen again; we call them good. Our standard of value is the way things affect ourselves. So each of us takes his place in the center of his own world. But I am not the center of the world, or the standard of reference between good and bad. I am not, and God is. In other words, from the beginning I put myself in God's place. This is my original sin." We may be outstandingly respectable, but we still are not free from the temptation to put ourselves in God's place.

If we do not feel that we are subject to sin, it is probably because, as Thomas D. Bernard put it, "Our sense of sin is in proportion to our nearness to God." The closer we get to God, the more we realize our imperfection and imperfectability.

Obsessed With Salvation

Although in my experience many Christians regard "sin" as an obsolete concept and do not even often mention it, critics of Christianity charge that it is obsessed with sin. But, if the gospel is "obsessed" with anything, it is not sin, but salvation. We recognize our sins so that we can get on with salvation, for, as Martin Luther, said, "The recognition of sin is the beginning of salvation."

Grace can only be "amazing" in proportion to our acknowledgment of the awfulness of sin. If we do not take sin seriously enough, neither do we—nor can we—take grace seriously enough. Respectability can be achieved, but salvation cannot. None of us, no matter how righteous, how respectable, can be good enough to earn the saving love of God. That's the earth-shaking bad news.

Paul tells the Romans and us that, "since all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, they are justified by his grace as a gift through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus" (3:23,24). So, the love we cannot earn, God always and to everyone offers as an undeserved gift. That is amazing, astounding grace, the universe-shaking good news that frees us from the deadly grasp of our human imperfection.

Fever Blisters Are Caused by a Virus

Fever blisters, or cold sores, result from an infection caused by herpes simplex virus. This virus often is contracted in early childhood. Blisters tend to appear on the lips or inside the nose. Blisters appearance often follows a "light" viral infection such as the common cold, or an unexplained fever. Fluid inside the blister is extremely contagious. The virus may be spread by direct contact such as may occur with kissing. It may also be spread via contact with infected silverware or drinking glasses. And the virus can be spread if made airborne by a cough or sneeze. Many persons who have had fever blisters in the past experience tingling, itching, tightness, or swelling just before a new blister appears. Fever blisters are considered to be healed after the crust disappears and the skin reforms over the affected site.

Simple skin protectants such as pertolatum or cocoa butter provide a physical barrier to guard irritated areas. The local anesthetics benzocaine and lidocaine are in many fever blister products and are safe and effective for temporary relief. The new nonprescription ointment containing docosanol (Abreva) may reduce healing time by up to 18 hours and represents an advance in fever blister care.

UC actress hawks apples in Snow White

By Taylor Michaels

Vera Farmiga

Q: What can you tell me about UC: Undercover actress Vera Farmiga? I presume her show has been canceled. –I.W., Yelm, Wash.

A: After several intense weeks on NBC's UC: Undercover – which at this writing was set to return for its season (and probable series) finale on Saturday, March 23 – Farmiga gets to cut loose delightfully in Snow White: The Fairest of Them All, a Sunday, March 17, retelling of the fairy tale on ABC. Farmiga has a dual role, both as Snow White's doomed mother (not a lot of laughs there) and as the disguised poison-apple vendor in the final scenes. With current "It" girl Kristin Kreuk of Smallville in the title role, expect a large audience for this one.

Born to immigrants, the 28-year-old Farmiga grew up, the second of seven children, in a Ukrainian-speaking enclave of New Jersey and did not learn English until she was 6. When her work schedule permits, she makes her home in upstate New York with her husband, French actor Sebastian Roche. Coming up, Farmiga co-stars with Adrien Brody in the romantic comedy Dummy and the independent drama Nine Scenes About Love with Michael Imperioli (The Sopranos).

Q: Bless you for the help you have given us fans of As Time Goes By, and I hope you can spare room for one more question: Is there any significance to the faces we see as young Jean and Lionel – which fade into shots of Judi Dench and Geoffrey Palmer – in the opening credits? –Kate via e-mail.

A: Indeed there is. That's Dench's real-life daughter and Palmer's real-life son filling in as the young lovers.

Q: Does A&E plan any further Horatio Hornblower TV movies with Ioan Gruffudd in the title role? –Isabella Thornton, Cramerton, N.C.

A: Two more Hornblower scripts are in development. Gruffudd is expected to return, but no firm production deals or dates have been struck as of yet. Stay tuned.

Q: Please tell me why I cannot find the Oz series on home video. And please don't say because of the nudity and violence; this is 2002, and The Sopranos, Queer as Folk and Sex and the City all are available. –Tom Sena, Brockton, Mass.

A: And so is HBO's controversial prison drama as of Tuesday, March 19, when Oz: The Complete First Season is due in video stores on four VHS tapes or three DVDs.

CREATING A BACKYARD HABITAT — The Mountain Laurel Garden Club will hold a meeting on Tuesday, March 12, beginning at 10:30 a.m. at Leone's at Silver Tree, Deep Creek Lake. Lunch and a presentation titled "Creating a Backyard Habitat," given by conservation chair Kathleen Gibbs and past president Katherine Smith, will follow the meeting. Gibbs, shown above on the left, and Smith, right, have received certification from the National Wildlife Federation through its Backyard Wildlife Habitat Program. Nellie Henken, also certified with the program, will participate in the discussion. The presentation, through slides and materials furnished by the National Wildlife Federation, will cover the four basic elements needed to provide a mini wildlife refuge. Apartment dwellers near large acres of land may also participate in the habitat program. Persons wishing to establish a certified habitat may begin the process at the meeting, which is open to the public. For lunch reservations or more information, persons may call Tiddie Wheeler at 301-387-5016.

Real Estate Sales Class Offered At Local College

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College announced recently that a non-credit course titled "Real Estate Principles and Practices for Salespersons" will be offered to the general public. This course is designed to prepare students to challenge the exam to become licensed real estate salespersons in Maryland.

The course is approved by the Maryland Real Estate Commission. Students will review the principles and practices of real estate sales that are required by state law in the Code of Maryland Regulations.

Sessions will begin on March 24, and continue on Monday and Wednesday evenings between 6 and 9:15 p.m. throughout the semester. There are also three Saturday sessions included, April 6, and 20, and May 4, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The instructor, Nancy J. Trotta, CRS, GRI, is an associate broker, sales manager, and educator with Railey Realty. She also holds a broker's license with her firm Trotta Realty. She is the education chairperson, teaching new member orientation and ethics courses for the Garrett County Board of Realtors.

Trotta is the professional standards administrator for the board of realtors. She has served as an arbitrator for real estate dispute hearings. She is a certified residential specialist and a graduate of the Realtors Institute. Trotta is a member of the Certified Residential Brokers Council. She has successfully passed the Maryland Appraisal Licensing Exam for both residential and commercial real estate. Since 1988, she has been active in real estate sales, managing and educating others.

ANOTHER WINTER CAMPING TRIP COMPLETED — Troop 95, which is chartered by the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, recently completed another winter camping trip. The first was at the New Germany State Park, where they participated in the First Aid Klondike and spent the night camping in the park. Most recently, at their Red House area camp, the Scouts completed a night hike to the top of Backbone Mountain. During this trip, they practiced their navigational skills by using the stars. Members of Boy Scout Troop 95 and Cub Scout Pack 95 recently spent more than 10 hours each in the processing of more than 1,400 pairs of eyeglasses and 1,300 individual glass lenses for the Lions club. These glasses will be used by the Lions for distribution to those in need of assistance. Pictured above at base camp preparing for their challenge are Mike Rosecky, Jeremy Ash, Bryson Sanders, and Joshua Ash.

GCC To Offer GRI Series 200

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College will cosponsor the Graduate Realtor Institute Series 200 courses on Fridays beginning April 5. The provider for the five-day series is the Maryland Association of Realtors.

Each session will meet between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. on five consecutive Fridays. Individuals do not need to have completed the GRI Series 100 courses to enroll in these offerings.

Other partners in this offering include Allegany College of Maryland, Hagerstown Community College, Garrett County Association of Realtors, Historic Highlands Association of Realtors, and Pen-Mar Regional Association of Realtors.

GRI continues to be the nation's number one designation among licensed real estate agents. With more than 80,000 graduates, the institute plays a significant part in educating real estate professionals. This series of modules is the second of the entire series planned in cooperation with the agencies listed above.

All sessions will be held in the interactive, fiberoptic distance learning classroom at GCC's McHenry campus. Instructors will present from the site at Hagerstown Community College. This classroom is a state-of-the-art, real-time distance learning center.

All potential students must pre-register. The cost for the entire five sessions is $325 for Garrett County residents who enroll by March 25; thereafter, a late enrollment fee will be assessed. Those not enrolled for the series but who wish to attend single sessions to earn Maryland or West Virginia Continuing Education units may do so after March 25 on a space-available basis.

Out-of-county and out-of-state residents pay an additional differential fee. Maryland senior citizens over 60 may enroll at a reduced cost.

For registration or additional information, persons may call 301-387-3069 or stop by the Continuing Education and Training Division at GCC's McHenry campus.

Breast-Feeding Class Slated

The monthly Breast-Feeding Class for expectant and/or nursing moms will be held on Tuesday, March 12, at 7 p.m. at the Garrett County Health Center, located along Memorial Drive in Oakland. The class is held on the second Tuesday of each month in Room 202 (the WIC area).

Many topics will be discussed at the class, including getting breast-feeding off to a good start, being sure baby gets enough milk, rest and diet for the new mom, fitting breast-feeding into school or work, pumping and storing milk, and the health benefits for the new mom and baby. Nursing mothers are welcome to share their experiences, questions, or concerns. Mothers-to-be who wish to be better prepared for nursing are also invited

"Having basic information about getting started and knowing what to expect really makes breast-feeding much easier," said Becky Friend, lactation consultant. Participants are encouraged to bring a partner — baby's dad, grandmother, etc. — but it is not required. There is no charge for the class session. For further information, persons may call Healthy Families at 301-334-7720.

Financial Aid Info Available Via The Internet

Students interested in learning the status of their financial aid can now log on to the Maryland Higher Education Commission web site at www.mhec.state.md.us to get real-time, up-to-the-minute information and updates about their scholarships and financial assistance. Students may also use the system to find out if certain information such as transcripts is missing.

"We want to be able to provide an alternative to students to waiting for a response from us by phone or mail," said Karen R. Johnson, secretary of higher education. "Accessing their files using our new Student Inquiry System on the Internet will provide students and parents with the absolute latest information."

To access the system, students fill in their social security number, birth date, and ZIP code. The system will report the name of the institution to which the award will be sent, the award amount, status on the acceptance of the award, and the semester for which the award will be used.

By the end of the year, students will also be able to apply for financial aid online, print out award letters, and search for scholarships based on academic interest and financial need.

Each year, the State Scholarship Administration of the Maryland Higher Education Commission awards more than $80 million in financial aid to Maryland students.

For more information about financial aid in Maryland, persons may contact the State Scholarship Administration on-line at www.mhec.state.md.us or via the telephone at 1-800-974-1024 or 410-260-4565.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission is a 12-member citizen board responsible for oversight and planning of higher education in Maryland. It serves as advocate for the more than 250,000 college students in Maryland, for the state and its needs, and for business and industry and is the coordinating body between Maryland's public and private colleges and universities, community colleges, and private career schools.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. I have several pieces of china in the Blue Willow pattern. Most are marked C.T. Maling and seem to be quite old. I would like to find out more about this pattern and how much the ones I have might be worth. — Steve, Pembroke, Ontario, Canada

A. Thomas Turner was a British potter, and although he is credited with being the first to produce Blue Willow ceramics in 1790, it was Josiah Spode who refined the design and helped popularize the distinctive blue-and-white pattern, first in England, and later in America, during the early years of the 19th century. The original Spode design from 200 years ago is very similar to the one being manufactured even today.

Dozens of companies produced versions of the Blue Willow pattern, making it one of the most prolific ceramic designs ever. In addition to the American and British issues, Blue Willow pottery was also being produced in Belgium, France, Germany, Holland, Ireland, Poland, Portugal, Spain and Mexico. During the past century, the largest producer of Blue Willow china has been Japan.

Your china was manufactured by the C.T. Maling company in Britain sometime between 1875 and about 1908.

Recent online auction prices of Blue Willow pieces have included a teapot crafted by the Homer Laughlin Company, $95; a Staffordshire platter, $350; an unmarked mustard pot, $35; and a cup and saucer, identified as being made in occupied Japan, $70.

One of the better reference books for collectors is "Blue Willow: An Identification and Value Guide" by Mary Frank Gaston. The book is now in its second edition and can be ordered from the author for $14.95, plus $2 for postage and handling. Her address is P.O. Box 342, Bryan, TX 77806. This excellent book sorts out most of the major pottery marks and is especially helpful in dating individual pieces.

Litter Box Problems

Q. Lately, two of my three cats seem to be "missing" the litter box on their visits to it. I mean, they'll use the box, but they spray the wall it backs up against or go on the edge. My third cat has no problem. How can I stop the other two?

A. Litter box problems are a common complaint from cat owners, and in my experience many of them occur in homes with more than one cat. These problems include spraying or defecating outside the box, even when they are standing inside of it. Some cats also eliminate away from the litter box.

Your third cat may have no trouble eliminating because in the kitty pecking order, he is "top cat." The others may be intimidated by him — especially if he hangs around the litter box, giving them "the look." Health problems, including disease or obesity, may be causing the other cats' troubles; if they are too large for the box, they will most likely miss it.

Try the methods below first, and see if the spraying problem is curtailed.

• Buy four litter boxes: one for each cat, plus one extra. Place them in quiet areas that are easily accessible, on every floor of your home; keep the extra one where the original box stood.

• Make sure the litter boxes are big enough for your cats; they should be able to sit or crouch in it comfortably. If you buy covered boxes, make sure the cats fit through the opening.

• Use unscented litters, and forgo plastic liners; many cats don't like them.

• Scoop out the boxes daily, and wash them with soap and water once a month.

If these steps don't stop the spraying problem, take all three cats to the vet. He or she must rule out possible medical conditions, and can give you more detailed advice on solving this problem.

Postal Service Sets Food Drive

The United States Postal Service's annual Harvest for the Hungry Food Drive in Garrett County will begin on Saturday, March 16. The drive ends on Friday, March 23. During this period, postal customers may hang a bag of food products on their mailboxes or on the ground next to the post. Postal carriers will bring the products to the post office for distribution to local area food bands. There will also be drop-off points in post office lobbies for customers and employees to contribute. All food collected in the county will go to Garrett County food banks.

"In reviewing needs at various food banks, certain items are more in demand than others. So, I thought it would be helpful to let our customers know which food items are most needed," said Ken Perrin, Oakland's postmaster. Those items are canned vegetables, peanut butter, jelly, macaroni and cheese, spaghetti, beef stew, canned soups, apple sauce, pork and beans, tuna fish, oatmeal, and dry milk. Cans and plastic jars are preferred, since glass sometimes breaks while being transported. "I hope everyone can help in some way this year, as the need is great," said Perrin.

Ramp Closed At Oakland Office

The handicap ramp at the Oakland Post Office has been closed several times this winter for safety reasons, according to Ken Perrin, Oakland postmaster.

"The ramp becomes very slick in wet or freezing weather and creates a slipping hazard. When those conditions exist, we must close the ramp until it dries," said Perrin. "The Postal Service Maintenance Office in Baltimore is going to repair the ramp when weather permits so it can remain open. Until that time, I appreciate our customers bearing with us. If customers need assistance, they can call the office in advance so we may help them gain access to the building or provide whatever service they need."

BHS Classmates, Class Of 1953, Planning Reunion

The Bruce High School Class of 1953 held its initial luncheon meeting on February 18 at the Denny's Restaurant in Keyser, W.Va. Nineteen classmates and spouses discussed preliminary plans for the 50-year reunion to be held in 2003.

Robert Shimer, class president, presided over the meeting and encouraged all attendees to begin compiling addresses of classmates known to them. In addition, they were requested to submit recommendations for activities to be held. It was the consensus of the group that the reunion should be held in conjunction with the annual Bruce High School Alumni events in June 2003.

The class will meet again on March 18 at noon at Denny's Restaurant, located along Route 220 just south of Keyser. All classmates, regardless of whether they graduated or not, and spouses are invited to attend. Those planning to attend should contact Monta Jean Kyle at 301-463-2413 or Joann Shimer at 301-359-0378 by March 12.

Three Inducted Into Garrett County Women's Hall Of Fame

The Garrett County Commission for Women recently announced this year's inductees into the Hall of Fame, which was established in 1995 as a permanent means to recognize the significant contributions of Garrett County women throughout the county's history. The new inductees are Beverly J. Beard, Mary Miller Strauss, and Patricia A. Bowser.

Beard was nominated by Hospice of Garrett County. She graduated from Frostburg State Teachers College (now Frostburg State University) with a degree in education. She was employed by the Department of Social Services, rising to the rank of assistant director in charge of the Income Maintenance Unit.

"Under Beverly's direction, our local department was for many years ranked number one in the state of Maryland in terms of accuracy and efficiency of operations," stated Robert C. Shaffer, former director of Garrett County Department of Social Service.

After her retirement from the public sector, she became very active in different volunteer organizations. While serving as a director on the board of directors of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, she was directly involved in the evaluations of the GCCAC's early childhood development programs. This helped build a strong partnership with the Rural Local Initiatives Support Corporation in support of community development initiatives in Garrett County and overseeing the organization's equal opportunity policies. Beard is currently the vice chairperson of the board of directors.

Beard has remained active with Hospice of Garrett County Inc., serving as president of its board of directors. In that position, she was able to utilize her knowledge in administration policies, finance, labor laws, and federal and state regulations.

Beverly J. Beard

Mary Miller Strauss

Patricia A. Bowser

She served with the Garrett County Commission for Women in numerous leadership positions. She and other members helped raise funds for the Dove Center, the domestic violence shelter that serves the Garrett County community. She is also one of the founders of the Garrett County Commission for Women's Hall of Fame.

With her work in the Rotary Club, she was involved with "Operation Santa Claus." She was the recipient of the Rotary Club International Outstanding Community Service Award, 1986 and the Rotary Club International Above Self Award, 1993.

She is married to David Beard, and they have two children. Their son Michael is an attorney in Washington, D.C., and their daughter Kelley is a case worker at the Washington County Department of Social Services. They have three grandchildren.

The late Mary Miller Strauss was a native Garrett Countian. She was born on her family's farm along Pud Miller Road, Accident, on March 30, 1914. After graduating from Accident High School, she attended Frostburg State College, working her way through school by cleaning rooms and working in the cafeteria. She obtained a three-year teaching degree and taught at the Wakefield School, Friendsville; Friendsville Elementary School; and the Kempton School, Kempton, W.Va.

It was at the Kempton School where she met and married her husband of 53 years, Charles Felix Strauss Sr. After World War II, Mr. Strauss taught at Accident High School, and Mrs. Strauss taught at Accident Elementary School. In 1960, she returned to Frostburg State College and received her bachelor's degree in elementary education.

During her years as an educator she was very interested in the local history of the Accident area. She began research on a book about Accident in the late 1950s. On and off over the years, she would work on her book. Following her retirement from teaching, she began to seriously work on her book about the Accident area.

In 1986, her book The Flowery Vale: A History of Accident, was published. A copy of the book was sold to a person or family in each of the 50 states in the United States, plus Puerto Rico. All of these people had ties to the Accident area. Shortly after this book, she created a paperback children's color storybook about the Drane family — Accident's first residents.

Strauss had a third publication titled Lutheran Churches on the Mountain Top, which she co-authored with Dr. B.B. Moyer. This book is especially important to the members of the English Lutheran Churches in Garrett County.

There was a fourth book she began to work on in the 1980s about the Hoyes area. It was during this time she became ill. She died in 1993 of cancer of the liver.

Besides teaching in the classroom and writing books she devoted her time to the Ruth Enlow Library, serving on its board. The addition to the Accident branch of the library was dedicated to Mary and to Marjorie Fratz. She also taught classes at Camp Hickory with her husband, who was the director of the Outdoor Environmental Center.

She also spent 25 years in a quiet campaign to restore the Drane House and have it named a historical landmark in 1992. She was very active as a member of the Garrett County Historical Society with projects or writing stories for The Glades Star.

The Strausses have two married children. Their son Charles Jr. is a school teacher living in Peachtree City, Ga., and their daughter Nancy works at the Allegany County Health Department, Fort Ashby, W.Va. They have four grandchildren.

She was nominated by her daughter, Nancy Ann Umbel.

"As a result of my relationship with people and observing their performance in making Garrett County a safe community, I would like to nominate Patricia A. Bowser for the Garrett County Commission for Women's Hall of Fame," said Robert H. Shimer, past president, Maryland State Firemen's Association, past president Allegany/Garrett County Fire and Rescue Association, and retired chief deputy state fire marshal.

When Bowser initially joined the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department, she broke the male barrier, becoming the first woman firefighter in the county. As a member of the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department she held administrative duties as well as the line officer position of assistant chief, responsible for the direction of emergency services personnel at the scene of fires and other emergencies in the absence of the chief.

She received the "Garrett County Firefighter of the Year" award in 1989 and 1997, being the first female so recognized. She also received the "Allegany/Garrett County Fire and Rescue Association's Firefighter of the Year" award in 1998.

In 1978, following completion of the training and requirements of an emergency medical technician, Bowser joined the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, and is currently its representative to the Allegany/Garrett County Fire and Rescue Association. Due to her dedication and commitment, she was nominated and elected to the office of vice president in 1999-2000. During the annual convention of the association in June 2000, she became the first woman to be elected president of the Allegany/Garrett County Fire and Rescue Association.

Bowser not only serves her community, county, and bi-county association, but since 1995 has served as a member of the Maryland State Firemen's Associations' Board of Review for the Emergency Assistance Trust Fund. As a result of her dedication of service to others, she has worked with fire departments and rescue squads in Allegany and Garrett counties to obtain funds through the Emergency Assistance Trust Fund. Through her efforts, many departments have received funding for new apparatus, new buildings, or renovation of old buildings, protective equipment, and other related equipment which otherwise would not have been available to them.

After her liver transplant in 1991, she has become an active advocate of the organ donor program and travels to various groups and organizations, explaining the program and encouraging their participation.

She is married to Rodney Bowser and is the mother of Peggy Banes, Keyser, W.Va.

The Garrett County Hall of Fame breakfast will be held at Will O' the Wisp on Saturday, March 23. Re-gistration begins at 9:30 a.m. Tickets for the event may be obtained by calling 301-387-2141. The cost is $12 for adults and $6 for children 6 and under.

Benefit Dinner Slated At Deep Creek Fire Hall

There will be a benefit spaghetti dinner Sunday, March 17, sponsored by members of Southern Garrett Rescue, with all proceeds going to Sue Smith, EMT.

It will be held at the Deep Creek fire hall, McHenry, from noon to 5 p.m. Prices for adults will be $6, and for children under 12, $3.

There will be spaghetti with meat sauce, salad and bread, dessert, and a beverage. Takeout meals are also available.

Also at the dinner will be free blood pressure and glucose readings, and the Trooper 5 medevac helicopter will be on display.

Boating Safety Classes Slated At Garrett CC

Maryland Basic Boating courses will be offered beginning in March and continuing throughout the year by the Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College. "Those individuals wishing to operate a boat in Maryland waters who were born after July 1, 1972, are required to complete an approved boating safety course. GCC's offering is the curriculum approved by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources," said Tom Kierstead, program director.

The boating safety course topics include types of boats, legal requirements, navigation rules, getting under way, accidents, and special topics of importance. Instructors have boating experience and have all completed the basic boating course and a boating safety instructor course as well.

All classes meet on selected Saturdays for one day each, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Students are asked to bring a bagged lunch, since there will be a working lunch session. The class is open to students age 12 and older. Registration must be made by the Friday one week before the class meets in order to receive materials and complete assignments. No student will be admitted late for class. There is limited seating available, and registrations are taken on a first-come, first-served basis.

The cost is $25 for Garrett County residents. Residents from outside the county pay a slightly higher cost. Maryland senior citizens more than 60 years of age may enroll free of charge. Prospective students may obtain course dates and location, or register by mail, phone, fax, or in person at the Continuing Education and Training Office at GCC. For details, persons may call 301-387-3069.

Rookie Driver Program Reveals Positive Results

The Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) announced Tuesday that the new Rookie Driver Graduated Licensing System appears to be making a substantial impact in the crash rate for 16-year-old drivers in the state. The results of a recent study of the program will be unveiled in Annapolis this Friday, March 15, at noon.

Maryland is one of 31 states across the country to have implemented a graduated licensing system for new drivers. The program calls for increased hours behind the wheel and driving records clear of convictions for traffic violations before new applicants can obtain Maryland driver's licenses.

Robert L. Raleigh, MD, who serves as head of the MVA's Medical Advisory Board, conducted this study of the Rookie Driver Program. He will reveal his findings and be available to the media for comments at this event.

The following are weekly suggestions for all students and staff to make as a part of our everyday lives at Southern High School: Mar. 4 - Mar. 8 — "Don't be afraid to admit when you are wrong" Mar. 11 - Mar. 15 — "Don't hold grudges"

MARCH RAM PARTNER: A.D. NAYLOR & CO.

For well over one hundred years, A.D. Naylor & Co. has offered the community countless commodities at a fair price and with a welcoming and helpful attitude. In business since 1884, Naylor's has become a well known part of the Oakland community. Naylor's offers outdoor power equipment, plumbing supplies, electrical materials, paint, and countless other necessary home, yard, and outdoor supplies. In the words of one enthusiastic employee, Roger Kifer, "When it comes to hardware — we're the biggest, the best supplied, and the highest trained." Services from A.D. Naylor Contracting, Culligan Water Softeners, and a janitorial supply sales division are all incorporated with the business. Merchandise comes from various suppliers and is offered to the community at retail price. Community members are encouraged to special order hard-to-find items, as Naylor's is always willing to go the extra mile for their patrons. In fact, the goal of every Naylor's employee is to exceed people's expectations in every aspect of service and supplies.

In addition to consistently offering fair prices and quality service, Naylor's also is a proud supporter of Southern High School and countless other community organizations. They sponsor various sporting events and encourage all students to involve themselves in volunteer activity with their own community conscious employees. Naylor's employees are involved in Special Olympics, Brown Bag, Habitat for Humanity, and Hospice. Naylor's team members are also active in four different community volunteer fire departments and in the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. Naylor's also offers jobs to the community and is proud to employ two Southern students, junior Stephanie Weeks and senior Brett Lambert.

With four generations of family ownership, A.D. Naylor & Co. has become an integral part of the community. Their service and support in the area are greatly appreciated — Thank you, Naylor's!

See Mrs. Proudfoot in the guidance office if interested.

Five Competing For Oakland Council Seats

Five residents are competing for the three open Oakland town council seats in next week's election.

Those running are David C. Beard, Charles M. Drennan III, Kenneth E. Gotsch, Margaret "Peggy" Jamison, and Mary Lou Stemple.

Asa M. McCain is running uncontested for mayor.

The election will be held Monday, March 11. The polls will be open from 9 a.m until 6 p.m. at the town hall.

The town of Oakland maintains a separate register of voters; however, persons who are registered at the Board of Elections after Jan. 1, 1990, and are residents of Oakland are automatically qualified to vote in the municipal election.

Jamison To Run For Re-Election In Oakland Council

Margaret J. "Peggy" Jamison announced her bid for re-election to the position of Oakland town councilperson. Jamison has served in that position for 10 years. Her current responsibility is chairman of the street committee. She also serves as the council's liaison with the Oakland Planning Commission.

Jamison said she believes that for the past several years the town of Oakland has worked hard toward revitalizing itself in a positive manner. She says she is running for re-election to help ensure the continuity of that forward progress.

Of particular interest to Jamison has been her chairmanship of the Oakland Main Street Program, which recently combined itself with the Greater Oakland Business Association. "I am looking forward to the renewed energy coming from the combination of these two organizations. I think we should see some real results from that action," she said.

Jamison is an economic development specialist with the Garrett County Economic Development Department. She represents the town council on the Garrett County Memorial Hospital board of governors. Jamison is a member of the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club. She has a "proven track record of accomplishments and is a team player" in any activities in which she becomes involved, according to a spokesperson.

Gotsch Running For Oakland Council Seat

Ken Gotsch, who currently serves on the Oakland Zoning Appeals Board, is running for a position on the Oakland town council in the March 11 election. His other activities include being a coach in the Mountaintop Soccer Association and playing in the community band and Oktoberfest band.

He was also a den leader for four years, a Cub Scout master and Cub Scout committee chairman, served in his church in various ways, and helped write grants for the Garrett County school system.

He issued the following statement on his behalf.

"For those that I haven't had the pleasure of meeting, my name is Kenneth Gotsch. My wife, Dr. Patricia Gotsch, our four children — Zachary, 12, Abigail, 10, Megan, 5, and Timothy, 4 — and I live in the William Offutt home along Second Street.

"Our family has worked hard restoring the home to its previous splendor. Now I hope that you will grant me the privilege to work as hard for the citizens of Oakland.

"Before moving to Garrett County, I worked for Motorola as supervisor of a test engineering department. My background is in electrical engineering and software development.

"I have a vision of Oakland's future that includes growth, yet preserves its current downtown and its rich history. Oakland should continue to be an interesting, vital, and safe place to live. We need plans in place to control the negative effects of growth on current residences and businesses. To keep our neighborhoods viable and family-friendly, they must be both safe and enjoyable for families.

"We need to wisely invest the town's revenues with the future plans of Oakland clearly in focus. With a large-scale marketer like Wal-Mart in town we need to work with our smaller downtown businesses in order to keep our town healthy.

"Our town government needs to be more open and better at communicating its needs and what roles the citizens can help with. Oakland is blessed with many talented individuals who care deeply for their community. I want to work with the citizens of Oakland to make it even better. Oakland needs to move as quickly as possible to replace the Third Street bridge, which affects many residents of Oakland."

Stemple Hopes To Remain On Town Council

Mary Lou Stemple announced her bid for re-election to the Oakland town council. Stemple has served 13 years on the council with supervisory duties over the town budget and office personnel.

She has served as president of the council for the past six years. A business owner, Stemple is also an administrative assistant for Delegate George Edwards, a job she has held for 16 years. She was previously a school teacher for six years.

Stemple was president of the Junior Women's Civic Club for two terms and a member for 12 years. She served on the hospital board for seven years and on the board of Garrett Community Action Committee for one term.

Stemple is running to regain her seat because she said she believes that Oakland is moving in a progressive direction. "I want to make sure that we continue to balance our economic growth with our heritage. My primary interest is to see the growth of Glades Park. The recreation program for the town of Oakland started in 1969 at Center Street School and moved to the Glades four years ago," she said.

The Oakland election is scheduled for March 11, with Margaret Jamison, David Beard, and Mayor Asa McCain seeking reelection as well as Stemple.

Beard Wants To Retain Seat On Town Council

David C. Beard announced this week his candidacy for a seat on the Oakland Town Council. Beard, who has served as councilman in charge of Parks and Recreation for the past two years, is seeking the post after being named by the council to the position in 2000.

Beard has been active in the community, serving on every office in the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, including president and zone chairman. He has also been active in the Garrett Athletic Association, of which he is a charter member. He is a member of Proctor Kildow Post 71 of the American Legion. He is a retired civics teacher from the Garrett County school system, for which he served 34 years working with children in the community. "Since I am now retired, I have the time to better serve the community," he said.

Beard is seeking the position of Oakland town councilman because he says he would like to continue to work for the citizens of Oakland. Two major ongoing projects that Beard is currently overseeing are the construction of a pavilion at Broadford Park and the new community center at Glades Park. A third project Beard is eager to see completed is the Third Street bridge.

As a member of Tri-County Council, Beard also represents all the municipalities in Garrett County. He is an active member of the Maryland Municipal League.

Beard has been married to the former Beverly Jean Cuffley for the past 42 years.

"It has been my privilege to serve the people of Oakland, and I hope to be able to continue doing so," Beard said.

The Oakland town election is March 11. Also up for re-election are councilpersons Mary Lou Stemple and Margaret Jamison, and Mayor Asa McCain.

McCain Running Uncontested For Re-Election

Asa McCain will be runn-ing for this eighth term as mayor of Oakland in the upcoming election to be held March 11. He issued the following statement.

"Due to the number of citizens that have encouraged me to continue as mayor, I've decided to run for an eighth term. I hope you'll show the same kind of support by voting for me even though I'm running unopposed. The council and I have worked well together and have been successful in developing quality housing at Yough Glades and Overlook. We continue to extend the walking path that is now approximately four miles long. Because of your support, the train station restoration is nearing completion without the need of any local tax dollars.

"Our Main Street program is one of the healthiest and most active in the state. We're working on a Community Legacy project that will expand Oakland's accomplishments to four other communities in the county with the potential to involve every municipality.

"I've worked closely with the commissioners to develop our town's heritage. If I'm re-elected I will continue to move the Third Street railroad bridge project forward, which is now in the design stage.

"In addition, I will support each of the council members as they strive to improve all facets of town government and to better serve all of Oakland's citizens. Some of the most visible projects are the rejuvenation of Broadford Park that includes a new facility now being constructed under the supervision of councilman Dave Beard. The new structure will be as large as Pavilion 1. It will have its own restroom facility and can be used both as a pavilion or an enclosed building for inclement weather and boat/dock storage in winter.

At the Yough Glades playground, we are working with the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Lions Club to begin the construction of a large pavilion with restrooms. That structure will eventually become Oakland's community building.

"Not only will it be available for community events as well as rentable for reunions and wedding receptions, but it will also enable council president Mary Lou Stemple to greatly expand the youth recreation program that she runs. Less visible is the ongoing process of comprehensive review and updating the town's documents, a project being coordinated by councilperson Peggy Jamison. The town charter and plans have been completed, and we're currently working with the planning commission on the zoning ordinance. Once completed, all documents will be codifed and available on computer disk.

"The Rotary Club continues its improvements on the town park next to the Mountain Fresh Pavilion. This area can be enjoyed while attending the Yough Glades Music Festival, the seasonal farmers' market, or even without a special event. To continue Oakland's progress, I ask that you re-elect all the incumbents: councilpersons David Beard, Margaret 'Peggy' Jamison, and Mary Lou Stemple."

Farming On The Mountaintop

Loans Available For Beginning Farmers, Ranchers

The Farm Service Agency (FSA) provides direct and guaranteed loans to beginning farmers and ranchers who are unable to obtain financing from commercial credit sources. Each fiscal year, the agency targets a portion of its direct and guaranteed farm ownership (FO) and operating loan (OL) funds to beginning farmers and ranchers.

A beginning farmer or rancher is an individual or entity who (1) has not operated a farm or ranch for more than 10 years; (2) meets the loan eligibility requirements of the program to which he/she is applying; (3) substantially participates in the operation; and, (4) for FO loan purposes, does not own a farm greater than 25 percent of the average size farm in the county. (Note: all applicants for direct FO loans must have operated a farm for at least three years.) If the applicant is a business entity, all members must be related by blood or marriage, and all stockholders in a corporation must be eligible beginning farmers.

FSA has a special downpayment FO loan program to assist beginning farmers and ranchers to purchase a farm or ranch. This program also provides a means for retiring farmers to transfer their land to a future generation of farmers and ranchers.

To qualify, an applicant must make a cash downpayment of at least 10 percent of the purchase price. FSA may provide a maximum amount equal to 30 percent of the purchase price or appraised value, whichever is less. The term of the loan is 10 years at a fixed interest rate of 4 percent. The remaining balance may be obtained from a commercial lender or private party. FSA can provide up to a 95 percent guarantee if financing is obtained from a conmercial lender. Participating lenders do not have to pay a guarantee fee. The purchase price or appraised value, whichever is lower, may not exceed $250,000.

FSA advertises acquired farm property within 15 days of acquisition. Eligible beginning farmers and ranchers are given first priority to purchase these properties at the appraised market value for the first 75 days after acquisition. If more than one eligible beginning farmer or rancher offers to purchase the property, the buyer is chosen randomly.

Beginning farmer or rancher applicants may choose to participate in a joint financing plan that is also available to other applicants. In this program, FSA lends up to 50 percent of the amount financed, and another lender provides 50 percent or more. FSA will charge a reduced interest rate on the loan.

Applications for direct loan assistance may be submitted to the FSA local office serving the area where the operation is located. Local FSA offices are listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government, Department of Agriculture, Farm Service Agency. For guaranteed loans, applicants must apply to a commercial lender who participates in the Guaranteed Loan Program. Local FSA offices have lists of participating lenders.

For more information about this or any other FSA program, persons may contact the local office, or visit on the Web at www.fsa.usda.gov.

GCC Conference To Offer Farm Alternatives

Aquaculture and agritourism are just two of the topics to be explored during the daylong conference, "Farming For Profit," slated at Garrett Community College, McHenry, on Saturday, March 23. The forum will bring together state, regional, and local experts to discuss and explore income-producing options available to farm owners.

Conference coordinator Willie Lantz of the Alternative Agriculture Center at GCC said that selection of the topics for each session was based on input from members of the farm, business, and education communities. "We are planning four sessions — two in the morning and two after lunch — covering 12 or 13 topics." Lantz said. "We are currently finalizing all arrangements so schedule brochures will be available shortly for anyone who wants to register in advance."

The conference is sponsored by GCC's Alternative Agriculture Center, the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service, and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. For more information, persons may call 301-387-3331.

FFA Planning 50th Anniversary

The Oakland FFA Chapter of Southern Garrett County High School is asking former members of the past 50 years to help plan a 50th year anniversary banquet.

Members may call the chapter's advisor, Steve Kisner, at 301-334-1580 or 304-789-6095 or the chapter's secretary, Holly Blamble, at 301-334-2094 to offer their help with the preparations. The banquet is for all former members and will be held sometime this spring.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Sunday evening was emotional and poignant. I was lucky to be allowed to have my girls with me for dinner and to watch the last game played in Cole Field House, which was the big basketball arena at my alma mater at College Park. That building holds many special memories for me, having watched many Maryland basketball games as early as 1970.

Since Maryland basketball teams were one of the hottest teams in the country, you had to get up early in the morning and wait a long time for student tickets. But it is hard to beat the excitement in a huge area with thousands of other fans watching that great team play their final game at Cole and see again the many members of other past teams on hand for the celebration. These included Tom McMillan, who was the ultimate student athlete, not just an All-American player but also a Rhodes scholar and who went on to Oxford for grad school, then elected to the U.S.A. Congress. Another big man was Leonard Elmore, a black athlete who graduated from Maryland, went on to Yale Law School, and is now one of the top sport commentators on TV. Past coach Lefty Driesell was not on hand to help close down Cole, but he was a real character. Many other legendary personalities of Maryland basketball attended.

My first memory of Cole Field House was around 1969 when Northern High School had an outstanding basketball team with Gary Reichenbacher, John Braskey, Terry Goeringer, Wayne George, Jessie Thomas, and a few others breezed though the season undefeated and then went on to play at Cole Field House in the state tournaments. It was a huge contrast from watching them play at Northern and then playing at Cole. Even though we lost to an eastern Maryland team, it was still an unforgettable event.

Claire is now a huge Terp fan. The Terps scored over 100 points for the big game over Virginia, which was the first team that played against Maryland almost 50 years ago. Virginia and Maryland both beat Duke in recent days, and with the Virginia win the Terps are the regular season ACC winners. Claire was happy that one of the seniors played the last minute or so and scored his only one basket of the season. It is not just the score, but what makes sports wonderful are the human personalities and drama.

Besides basketball memories, Cole Field House was the place of some other notable events in my college days, including a concert of the great blues guitarist BB King and Joan Baez. Strange to say my final exam in college algebra was given in it. Since the whole freshman class had to take it they needed a big space for it. Since math was a real struggle for me, I prayed at least for a "D" on that exam so that I could pass the class and not have to repeat it. I did pass it, and that was one of my greatest victories at Cole Field House.

My brother Rodney and his wife Marci were fortunate to have tickets to the big game. It was a big victory as far as Rodney was concerned, but Marci didn't appreciate the huge crowd and the heat, or the fans in front of them who stood for almost the whole game. The new arena will have air conditioning and about 3,000 more seats. When Cole is filled to capacity the heat is almost unbearable.

Last week, with lots of mild days and then another winter day, I would say the first day of March "came in like a lamb." But once again, another front moved in from the west and we had the coldest days since the beginning of the year. It is hard to call the weather, as tomorrow (Wednesday) it is to get into the 50s. I hope spring arrives again this year, as this has been a winter of discontentment. Maybe this coming year will bring me more happiness and joy, and I can again feel safe and content. Now I understand the line from the musical "Everyone loves a winner," but all that love is lost when you are not a winner anymore.

Many of my relatives and friends attended the funeral services at Emmanuel Lutheran Church on Tuesday morning for Max Buckel, formerly from Bittinger before being employed by the University of Maryland Extension Service. A luncheon was held at the Bittinger fire hall following the service. Burial was in the Bittinger Cemetery.

Next week's Lenten Service for the Bittinger Lutheran Parish and the Accident Lutheran Parish will be held at Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, on Wednesday at 7 p.m.

THE LAST GREAT TAX SHELTER

1031 Tax-deferred exchanges

Simply put, a 1031 exchange allows sellers to defer 100% of the Federal and State capital gains taxes associated with the sale of property held for investment purposes. Facilitating a 1031 exchange allows you to roll over all of the proceeds realized from the sale of an investment property into the purchase of one or more other like-kind properties. In so doing, you defer payment of capital gains taxes, thus retaining equity to help your investments grow.

Who should consider a 1031?

- If you are holding property long after the appreciation has topped, you can begin rebuilding your equity by disposing of that property and acquiring a new one;
- If you have a rental property which is not producing adequate income, trade the property for one in a better rental area;
- With proper estate planning and successful exchanges, neither you nor your heirs will be paying income taxes on the gains.

(To determine if this program could benefit you, contact your attorney. When buying or selling real estate for the purpose of entering into a 1031 exchange, immediate disclosure of intent is necessary.)

If you have real estate questions regarding an exchange, please call. I will be glad to assist you.

State, County Jobless Rates Rise In January

The reality of slower economic growth created a paradox in Maryland's labor force movements during January. Job seekers unexpectedly entered the labor market, pushing both the labor force and employment levels higher.

"It is good news that Maryland's employment level during January reflects an all-time high for the month," said John P. O'Connor, secretary of the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation (DLLR). "We remain optimistic about the strength of the state's economy because even with increasing unemployment we are more than a full percentage point below the national level."

Nationally, unemployment also increased, remaining more than a full percentage point above Maryland's at 6.3 percent in January. Locally, unemployment rates were as low as 3.0 percent in Calvert and Montgomery counties, 3.1 percent in Charles and Howard counties, and 3.3 percent in St. Mary's County.

Normal seasonal employment reductions, coupled with labor force expansion, caused the state's unemployment to rise from 4.2 percent in December to 5.1 percent in January. Employment declines are typical in January, with post-holiday reductions, weather-related layoffs, and semester-break activity contributing to overall downsizing. This reduction normally triggers a corresponding decline in the labor force. This year, however, while hiring has remained constrained, job seekers seemed to react to the continuing economic uncertainty by intensifying their job search. During January, nearly 33,600 people entered the job market. While about 5,500 of these job seekers found work, raising employment to a high for the month of 2,722,968, those continuing their search were included among the unemployment rolls.

Garrett County's jobless rate soared to 11.4 percent in January, compared to 7.0 percent in December. The rate for January 2001 was 11.9 percent.

Seasonal employment declines were scattered throughout Maryland's business payrolls during January. Declines in retail trade outpaced all others as employers began to downsize following the holiday season. General merchandise/apparel stores, restaurants, and miscellaneous retail establishments were among the retailers reporting the largest employment reductions. Services, particularly business, agricultural and amusement services, reported the need for fewer workers in January. Activity in construction began to show signs of slowing as temperatures turned colder while break activity temporarily diminished employment in state/local government and transportation services.

GCEA DONATES BOOKS — In recognition of the fifth anniversary of the National Education Association's Read Across America Program, the Garrett County Education Association (GCEA) donated an age-appropriate book to each school library in the county. Read Across America was developed to encourage reading at an early age. According to the GCEA, the program is the biggest one-day literacy celebration in the U.S. It not only celebrates the joys of reading, but it also honors Dr. Seuss, whose birthday is March 2. Pictured above, left to right, are the participants in the program at Dennett Road Elementary School: Steve Benson, GCEA staff person; Frankye Martin, Dennett Road workaite representative; Pauline Wilson, media assistant; and Gary Galloway, Dennett Road principal. Persons interested in the Read Across America Program may call Irene Sigel, GCEA president, at 301-334-2355 for more information.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors held its monthly meeting Thursday, Feb. 21. Jerry Geisler, vice chair, presided.

Chamber president Ken Wishnick reported that articles and photos lauding Garrett County and the Deep Creek Lake area continue to appear in regional publications. Board members were given copies of articles published this month in Recreation News, The Baltimore Sun, and The Washington Post.

The final details of an agreement to process credit cards for chamber members is currently being negotiated between the chamber and First Data Merchant, an organization which has a relationship with F&M Bank, Wishnick said. Board member Jeff McCauley of F&M Bank noted that First Data works with other chambers of commerce in Maryland.

Other matters in the president's report included a mention that the new Vacation Guides are still on schedule for an April 1 delivery; a reminder that the new county map is still awaiting sponsorship funding; and an overview of the new second printing of the Specialty Shopping Guide.

The chamber staff is continuing to promote the county at out-of-state travel shows and in the Baltimore-Washington area. Chamber marketing manager Deb Clatterbuck told board members that interest in the Deep Creek Lake area is strong and growing among show attendees. In the Washington, D.C., and Pittsburgh markets, name recognition for Deep Creek Lake is high, but the opposite was found in the Columbus, Ohio, market. Wishnick said it was a perception among show attendees in Columbus that Garrett County is a 7- to 8-hour drive away. Mayor Asa McClain said that he is seeing a large increase in visitors from Ohio in Oakland, and credits the promotional work of the chamber for reaching out to this market.

In considering the budget for the next fiscal year, Wishnick reported that accommodations tax collections from July 1 to December 31 rose by 6% over the same period in the previous year, after adjusting for changes in the rates charged.

The terms of five board members will expire this year. A nominating committee consisting of Len Eiswert, Karen Myers, and Brenda McDonnell was appointed to determine a slate of at least seven candidates to run for five seats on the board. Board members whose terms expire this year are Bob Browning, Jonathan "Smilie" Kessler, Jim Murray, Brenda McDonnell, and Sandy Major. The incumbents have not yet declared their intentions.

The board approved the chamber's entering into a partnership agreement with Mountain Maryland Entrepreneurial Development Center in sponsoring entrepreneur educational programs.

The following new chamber members were approved by the board: Stony Brook Development, LLC, owned by Louis Strosnider, McHenry; Diehlmann Plumbing & Heating, LLC, owned by Steve Diehlmann, Accident; Walnut Ridge B&B owned by Linda Fodrey and Paula and Matthew Brown, Grantsville; Home-Sweet-Home owned by John and Darlene Preston, McHenry; Tri-County Council for Western Maryland Inc., Cumberland; and Cherry Hill Assisted Living owned by Reuben Lapp, Accident.

The next board meeting will be held Thursday, March 21, at 8 a.m. at the Visitors Center in McHenry. The public is invited.

Grantsville Lions Will Hold Auction

The Grantsville Lions recently announced that they will be holding a live auction on Saturday, April 13, starting at 5 p.m. at the Grantsville fire hall. The proceeds of the auction will go to the building fund for the new Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library.

The public is encouraged to support the event because for every dollar raised by the ReNew Grantsville's Library Committee until April 15, the Garrett County commissioners will match it.

Good saleable items are requested from businesses or individuals. These items include new items in residents' homes that they are not using, antiques, working appliances, and good furniture. Yard sale items are asked not to be offered.

For more information, or for pick-up arrangements, persons may contact Fred Holliday at 301-687-0304 or Gerry Beachy at 301-895-5177.

A list of items to be auctioned off will be released prior to April 13. Food and beverages will be available during the auction.

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain

OCALA, FL -- An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. © 2000 PGC

NEW DIMENSIONS are being added to the lives of local Garrett Community College students, as well as those students from the country of Estonia, who attend the local college via the Global Education Program. The program, started two years ago by the GCC board of trustees, provides scholarships for up to 10 students from that nation. Pictured above from left are: Janis Miller, a Northern High School graduate; Raili Raud of Estonia; Todd Hatrick, a graduate of Southern High School; and Kalle Raptesepp, also of Estonia. See story for details.

Global Education Program Adds New Dimensions To GCC Campus

In recognition of Garrett Community College's 30th anniversary this year, The Republican will publish a series of articles featuring a particular program or service of the college and the people who make it happen. The focus of this first article is a relatively new aspect of campus life — the Global Education Program. This program started in 2000 when the college board of trustees agreed to establish 10 scholarships for students of Maryland's sister state — the country of Estonia. It has brought students from that Baltic country to the mountains of western Maryland who have changed the face of GCC and added a new dimension to life on the campus.

by Joan B. Crawford

Two years ago, Marina and Tatjana Kravtsuk were living with their parents and siblings in the Estonian city of Tapa, contemplating their further education and plans for the future. Today they are students in the business and information technology program at Garrett Community College, expecting to graduate next year.

Like other students from their country, the Kravtsuk sisters heard about GCC's establishing scholarships for qualified students from their homeland. Following numerous e-mail messages to and from the college admissions office, and a personal visit from GCC president Dr. Steve Herman, who, along with his wife Gail, was touring Estonia on an exploratory trip sponsored by the Maryland National Guard, the young women decided to apply to GCC. There were further electronic communications, INS forms to be completed, writing samples to be submitted, and airline tickets to be purchased.

Finally the Kravtsuk sisters and two other Estonian students, Kalle Rattesepp of Tapa and Keit Parts of Torva, arrived in the United States. In September 2000 the four students enrolled as freshmen at GCC. At the end of that first semester, Parts returned to Estonia, and five new students arrived at GCC for spring semester 2001, with three additional ones following the next fall. These new students were Haiku Sikka and Raili Raud from Harjumaa, Terje Kaur from Valgamaa, Ava Kikas from Otepaa, Reeda Tuula from Viljandi, Keit Kaal from Tallinn, and Berit Tafenau from Torva. Mart Reiman, a visiting professor of geoectourism from Tallinn Pedagogical University, also enrolled at GCC for one year and taught a course in ecotourism while he completed a degree in adventure sports.

These international students are now well into the college routine and have adapted to the environment of the community. After she graduates, Marina Kravtsuk plans to continue her education, either in the United States or Estonia. This woman who is fluent in four languages — Estonian, Russian, Ukrainian, and English — now wants to learn German and possibly Spanish. "This opportunity for me to come here to attend college has been very beneficial," she said. "I encourage everyone to take advantage of study-abroad programs."

Kalle Rattesepp adds his comment about education in America. "I was excited to come to the United States because I had dreamed about it before I had a chance to come," he said. "My first impression was that I had slept for 30 years and wakened up in my own country in the future. Everything was basically the same here, but improved. People here are very friendly and understanding." He mentions his friend from Morgantown, whom he says is the "most caring girl" he has ever known.

About his experience at GCC, Rattesepp said, "It has been just fine. The teachers are very helpful." After he graduates next year he plans to continue his education probably at Frostburg State University.

Reeda Tuula of Viljandi, graduate of the University of Tartu and champion cross-country skier, came to GCC after her father heard about the adventure sports program on a Voice of America broadcast. Because she loves the water and the mountains, she found Garrett County to be "the perfect place." Tuula will complete her program this semester and graduate in May. "This program has changed my life so much," she said. "I now want to give something back." After graduation she plans to return to Estonia and to be a part of any possible effort to establish an adventure sports program in her country.

To help these international students find housing and become acclimated to their new environment, GCC has established a Center for Global Education, coordinated by Darlene Preston, who is their first point of contact. Since most of the students have been living with host families in Garrett County, Preston usually makes these arrangements in advance of the students' arrival. She also coordinates social events and other activities designed to help them make friends and feel at home in their new country. Throughout the year there are picnics, covered dish dinners, receptions, adventure outings, and meetings with international students from other colleges.

An outgrowth of the Global Education Center was the organization last semester of the World View International Student Club on campus. Members of the club have had a picnic and canoe outing at Deep Creek Lake State Park with some international students from Frostburg State University, and are planning an international dinner for Sunday, April 14, with a portion of proceeds to benefit a United States charity. They will also be joining FSU's International Education Center for an international dinner.

In addition to the services provided through the Global Education Center, international students at GCC receive academic advising and guidance from designated college administrators, including President Herman, Dean Lillian Mitchell, and Virginia Broaddus, director of arts and sciences. Students are screened before they leave Estonia to determine their likelihood of success at GCC. Every student must take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) and must prove a minimum competence in English.

Broaddus, who oversees the evaluation process before the students are admitted and who works closely with them during the advising process, is convinced of the value of the Global Education program to both the student and the college.

"Our international students help us to polish our window on the world here at GCC — and they help us to shine," she said. "They bring unique perspectives to our classrooms; their faculty commend their insights, enthusiasm, dedication, and appreciation. In turn, we have enjoyed various presentations made for the general public as well as in specific classrooms. That more than one of our Estonian students has served as a peer tutor for our 'native' students indicates their skill level as well as their dedication to building our GCC community, which is richer for their presence."

To help defray the cost of their education at GCC, which is generally computed to be upwards of $17,000 annually, including transportation, medical insurance, and other costs, students who have attended school for at least one year are eligible to apply for INS approval of an off-campus job through the Optional Practical Training Program. Preston, who assists the students in their efforts to obtain work, notes that the application for the off-campus jobs is frequently a long and arduous process.

"But all of the students are still smiling," she said. "They are very patient with our sometimes lengthy processes, and they appear to be enjoying their experience in the United States. Through fund-raising efforts of the World View Club they want to give something back."

Preston points out that during the students' first year they received financial assistance from the Estonian-Revelia Academic Fund and the Estonian World Council. Although GCC has had a few other international students from such countries as Canada, Mexico, Africa, and Brazil, until the Estonian connection began, there was not a major focus on global education. Now with the success of the students from Estonia and the encouragement of the college administration, Preston expects to see more students from other countries take advantage of GCC's study abroad program in the future.

Driver Injured When Rig Flips Along Interstate

A Baltimore man was transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, after he lost control of his tractor-trailer, which overturned, and slid through a guardrail around 9 a.m. Thursday along Interstate 68 near Grantsville, according to Maryland State Police.

Richard Kevin Taylor, 35, was treated and then later released, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Police said he lost control of the rig on a curve in the roadway.

The Grantsville fire department, Northern Rescue Squad, and the State Highway Administration also responded to the scene.

I would like to thank the following for their help, thoughts and prayers during my recent hospitalization. Thank You to Doctor Johnson, all nurses & staff on the 3rd floor of Garrett Memorial Hospital, and all staff in the respiratory department. Your kindness will not go unrewarded. Thank you to Brother Van Hoosier (Deer Park), the Church of God of Loch Lynn prayer group, and to my wonderful family and friends for your cards, flowers, prayers and love. God Bless You All.

Finzel Couple Saved By Sound Of Smoke Alarm

A smoke alarm most likely saved the lives of a Finzel couple whose single-story wood-frame house caught fire early Wednesday morning.

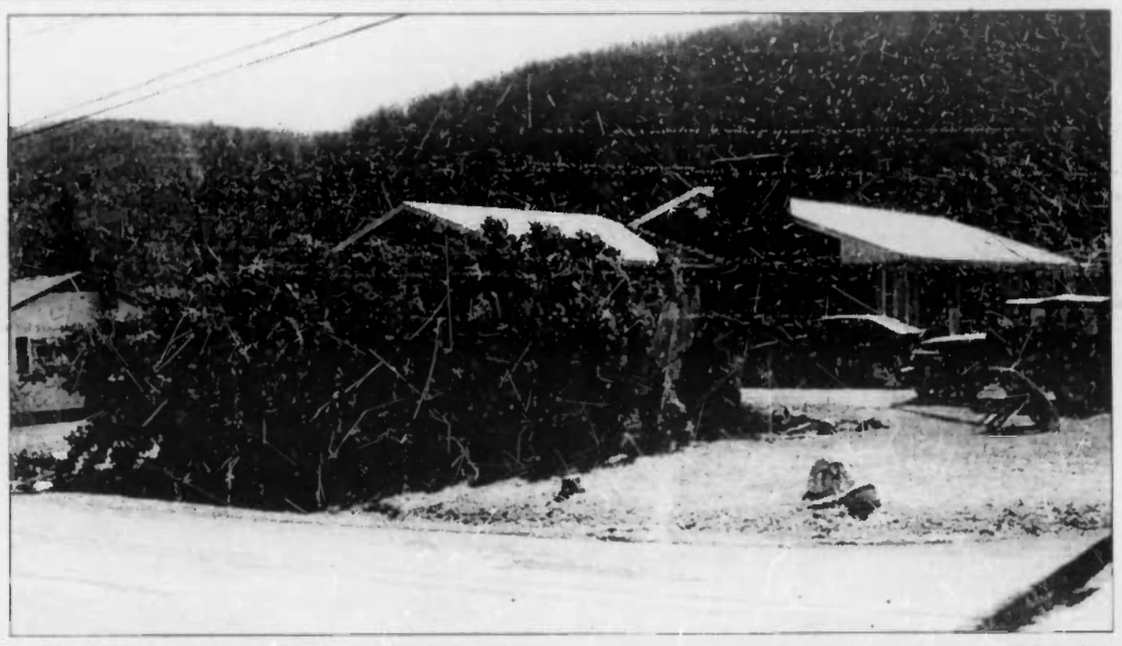
James and Mary Ward, who reside at 824 Finzel Road, were awakened by the alarm at about 3:45 a.m. Mr. Ward went to investigate and discovered a fire in the TV room. He called 911 and then he and Mrs. Ward exited the structure unharmed.

Responding to the alarm were volunteer personnel from the Eastern Garrett, Frostburg, Shaft, and Grantsville fire departments. According to a report by Deputy State Fire Marshal Steve Wendling, the rear of the house was engulfed in flames upon their arrival. They brought the blaze under control in about 40 minutes and were able to save much of the structure. However, Wendling estimated damages to the house and contents to be $55,000.

Wendling confirmed that the fire started in the TV room, but the exact cause is still under investigation.

The house is currently uninhabitable, and the Wards are receiving assistance from the American Red Cross and other family members.

Also responding to the scene were the air cascade unit from the Clarysville VFD and Frostburg Ambulance. There were no injuries reported.



BLOOMINGTON SPRUCE FALLS — The wind huffed and puffed over the weekend, and blew down this 50-foot tall blue spruce that fell across the yard of this Bloomington home shortly before dawn Sunday. Thankfully, the resulting damage was fairly minor in comparison to what could have happened had it fallen in a different direction. Several neighborhood residences temporarily were without electricity after the tree took down some power lines in the path of its fall. Gusts clocked in excess of 60 miles per hour spelled the demise of the spruce, which had stood along Hamill Avenue for approximately 50 years. Photo by Annie Dellinger.

Pleasant Valley Woodworking Shop Leveled

A private woodworking shop in Pleasant Valley was destroyed by fire early Friday morning.

Responding to the 2:44 a.m. alarm at the residence of Abe Kauffman, located along Paul Friend Road, were the Oakland, Deer Park, Gorman, and Aurora volunteer fire departments, along with the Southern Rescue Squad.

Kauffman, who makes a variety of handmade wood-

Wiring Problem Cause Of Blaze In Kitzmiller

A wiring problem is believed to have been the cause of a fire that caused major damage to a single-family wood-frame house in Kitzmiller Saturday afternoon.

Volunteers from the Kitzmiller and Elk Garden, W.Va., fire departments were summoned to the residence of Vernon Pyle, 259 W. Main Street, at 1:33 p.m. after the fire was discovered by a neighbor. Upon their arrival, flames were visible from the front windows of the house. It took firefighters only about 20 minutes to bring the blaze under control, but damage to the house and contents was extensive. Deputy Fire Marshal Ryan Chapman estimated the loss to be $40,000.

Pyle, 45, who lives alone, was not at home at the time of the fire. Chapman reported that the wiring problem which most likely caused the fire was located in the family room. The blaze rendered the structure uninhabitable, and Pyle is currently being assisted by family and friends.

Md. House Panel Approves Bond Bill For Garrett Memorial Hosp.

The House Appropriations Committee recently approved HB 1232. The bill, introduced by Delegate George Edwards in the Maryland General Assembly, requests that the county be allowed to create a local debt on behalf of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

HB 1232 would authorize and empower the Garrett County commissioners, "from time to time to borrow not more than $7.5 million in order to assist in the financing of the cost of hospital improvements," according to the Assembly's web site.

Edwards said an amendment was added to the original wording of the bill that gives the hospital the option of paying for the funding directly to the bond holders or to the county, who in turn would pay the holders. The legislation must now be voted on in the House and Senate.

Ground is expected to be broken this summer at the hospital for a major expansion/renovation project.

The House Appropriations Committee also held a hearing on Monday for HB 459. The bill authorizes the creation of a state debt not to exceed $500,000, which would be used as a grant for construction of a multi-purpose exhibit hall at the fairgrounds in McHenry. Commissioner Wendell Beitzel attended the Annapolis meeting. The hearing went well, he said; however, bond monies may not be available this year for this type of project.

Edwards agreed. "I'm not overly optimistic that we'll get anything," he said about the bill's potential funding.

Salem Employee Faces Assault, Abuse Charges

An employee of the Salem Children's Trust facility located near Finzel was arrested yesterday by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation on charges of second degree assault and child abuse stemming from allegations of inappropriate contact with a juvenile.

Robert Richard Pomeroy, 37, Frostburg, was suspended from his position immediately when the accusation first came to light, in accordance with Salem policy. He was released from the Garrett County Jail yesterday afternoon after he posted a $1,500 bond.

Pomeroy was the subject of a month-long combined probe by the GBI and the Garrett County Department of Social Services. The police detectives and a DSS Child Protective Services investigator initiated their investigation on Feb. 19, two days after Pomeroy had allegedly touched a 14-year-old female in an inappropriate manner.

The second degree assault charge carries a potential maximum penalty of 10 years in jail and/or a $2,500 fine. The child abuse charge carries a potential maximum penalty of 15 years in jail.

The non-profit Salem Children's Trust has operated its Garrett County juvenile facility for over 20 years, where it serves both residential and day clients who have been victimized by abuse or neglect, or who experience mental illness and serious emotional disturbances.

School Board Accepts Proposed Budget For 2003

The Garrett County superintendent's proposed operating budget for fiscal year 2003 was approved by the school board at the recent monthly meeting. The proposed budget is $33,907,470, which is less than 2 percent higher than last year's.

The board will be requesting approximately $2 million from the county commissioners.

Goals of the proposed budget include funding the third year of 2 percent salary increases, supporting the established goals of the board, maintaining current staffing levels to support educational programs, and eliminating the historic carryover fund requirement necessary to balance the next year's budget.

Some of the goals of the capital improvement program are the Route 40 School construction and

POS Funding Approved For Yough Lands

Governor Parris N. Glendening yesterday announced Board of Public Works approval of $75,000 in Department of Natural Resources Program Open Space (POS) funds for the acquisition of the 50-acre Pinnacle Five Springs Trust property in Garrett County. The property increases the protection of the Youghiogheny River and its tributaries and will provide increased public access, as well as preserve the area's water quality and breeding areas for native trout populations, according to the Governor's Press Office.

"For the past 30 years, Program Open Space has helped save our most threatened tracts of open land, enhance our communities, and protect environmentally sensitive areas," said Glendening. "Acquiring this land along the Youghiogheny will provide Garrett County residents with greater public access to the river, while allowing us to continue protecting the water quality for the area's naturally reproducing trout populations."

According to the Governor's Press Office, yesterday's approval by the board clears the way for the acquisition of the Pinnacle Five Springs Trust property. Acquisition of this property, consisting of the Salt Block Run and White Rock Run parcels, is beneficial in that Salt Block Run has supported a unique population of wild brown trout for at least 30 years and, unlike other Youghiogheny River tributaries, supports a viable population sufficient to provide recreational fishing opportunities. White Rock Run historically supported a wild brook trout population which was apparently extirpated by acid mine drainage pollution. The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) is currently attempting to remediate this situation. Water quality may be improved in the future to the extent that the FATHER, SON STATE CHAMPS - Maryland's top-ranked racquetball players in two divisions happen to be a Garrett County father and son, as Mike (father) and Justin Stephens won those honors in the Maryland State Singles Racquetball Championship, held March 1-3 in Laurel. The two almost met each other in the finals of the men's open C division, as Justin topped the #6 seeded player, Carey Cowell of Crofton, 15-8 and 15-7, to advance to the finals, and Mike nearly upset the state's #1 seeded player in the other semifinal match. Stephens battled Jimmy Falcon for over one hour in a two-game match that featured 15 lead changes. Falcon held on for a narrow 15-14, 15-12 win. But Justin Stephens quickly disposed of Falcon in the finals, 15-7, 15-10, to capture the title. Justin was undefeated throughout the division. His father Mike was not finished yet, however, as he then played in the age 40 division and won four straight matches to win the title in that division. Participating in the tournament were 120 of the top players from Maryland, Washington, D.C., and nearby Virginia. The Stephenses have been playing racquetball for about 10 years at the Oakland Health and Fitness Center. This was the first time they elected to participate in a sanctioned United States Racquetball Association tournament. Justin, a graduate of Southern High School, is also the top-seeded player on the Frostburg State University tennis team, having recorded a perfect 17-0 singles record last season as a freshman.

Md. House Committee Vetoes Del. Edwards's Bus Safety Bill

The school bus safety bill introduced by local legislators in the Maryland General Assembly this session received an unfavorable report Tuesday from the House Commerce and Government Matters Committee. The panel voted 15 to 4 against HB 276.

The legislation, crossfiled as SB 311, requires that individuals who fail to stop for school vehicles with activated flashing red lights be fined $1,000 and have five points assessed on their driver's licenses. Currently, drivers may be assessed up to three points and fined up to $270 for the violation.

Delegate George Edwards said the "biggest sticking point with the committee" was the fine assessment. Some of the members indicated that the five-point fine was too much of a penalty, the delegate said.

The bill was also defeated in the Senate late last month. The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee voted six to five against the legislation, also citing the five-point violation as too great. Additionally, panel members said the issue of vehicles passing school buses was not a statewide problem.

"I was shocked," said Senator John Hafer about his bill's defeat. He and Board of Education superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets had testified at the Senate committee's hearing. Hafer said the five-point assessment would have automatically forced offenders before an administrative law judge and the $1,000 fine would have made the offenders "think twice" about their actions.

"It's clear that it's not only a statewide problem, but a nationwide problem as well," said Barb Michael of Oakland, who campaigned for the passage of the legislation. "I'm fighting for the school children," she said about her efforts. On three separate occasions, her own children, while exiting their bus in Oakland, were almost hit by vehicles, she said.

The legislation was intro-

CATCH A WIND GUST OR BUST — Most people prefer to avoid the blasts of winter winds that rake the mountaintop, but Oakland's Steve Viar makes the best of them. When a large parking lot was recently constructed in the town, the 47-year-old Viar said he was reminded of his younger days when he added a sail to his skateboard to catch the wind. "It was easier 20 years and 30 pounds ago, but it's still fun," he reported. Given the 60 mile per hour wind gusts of the past weekend, Viar's extra ballast may have served him well. THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER, a hilarious classic by George Kaufman and Moss Hart, will open for a nine-performance run this evening at Our Town Theatre in Oakland. The three-act play is set in Massilla, Ohio, in 1939, and centers on a famous, but exceedingly pompous and rude, writer/radio broadcaster who is forced to spend a couple weeks in a small-town private home because of a sudden hip injury. His impertinent attitude, outrageous demands, and meddling in the affairs of the Stanleys — his hosts — nearly rip the family apart, and all the while there is a steady stream of zany, eccentric friends paying him a visit over the Christmas holidays, phone calls from renowned friends, and the arrival of a most unusual variety of gifts. Performances are scheduled for Thursday (tonight) through Sunday, March 14-17, and Wednesday through Sunday, March 20-24, with the Sunday performances slated for 2 p.m. and all others at 8 p.m. Reservations should be made as soon as possible by calling 301-334-5840 (24 hours per day), as a couple performances are already sold out. The large cast is pictured above and includes: front, Derek Nutter; second row, from left, Kim Stephens, Tiddie Wheeler, Elizabeth Callis, Colleen Watson, John Armstrong, Don Sincell, and Lola White; seated left, Deirdre Kildow, and seated center, Richard Hill; standing, next row, Carol Peracchio, Erin White, Anthony Oliverio, Dave Wheeler, Dave Callis, Susan Bell (on stool), and Lane Duda; back row, Judy Bartach (seated), Richard Stevens, John White, Dave Bertach, Chris English-Ramsay, Casey Backman, and Andrew Wallgorski. The play is directed by Jane Avery. Scene/lighting designer and technical director is Ben Sincell. Tickets are $5 each.

Near Collision Leads to Arrest Of Deer Park Man

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested a Deer Park man after they witnessed him traveling eastbound in the westbound lane nearly causing a head-on collision with another vehicle along Maryland Highway near Broadford Road Friday evening.

The driver of the 1997 Ford truck, Carl Wayne Hardesty, 68, was arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), negligent driving, and failure to drive right of center, police said.

Hardesty was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $500 bond.

Later that same evening, a Mtn. Lake Park man was also arrested and charged with various drunk driving charges.

Trevor Ronald Wilson, 30, was stopped along Route 135 near Mtn. Lake Park for an equipment violation. The deputy detected an odor of alcohol, and Wilson failed the field sobriety tests, according to the report.

Investigation revealed Wilson was also wanted on a bench warrant from Frederick County. He was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, driving on a suspended Maryland license, and driving with a suspended out-of-state license, police said.

Wilson was released from the jail after posting bail, according to a jail spokesperson.

Maryland State Police also assisted in the traffic stop.

In another incident, both drivers involved in a motor vehicle accident Sunday afternoon were charged by sheriff's deputies.

A 1999 Toyota driven by Sharrol A. Harvey, 51, Deer Park, was partially in the roadway, attempting to turn onto Maryland Highway from Main Street, Deer Park, at the time of the accident.

Edward A. Householder, 37, Oakland, said he swerved his 1994 Ford truck to avoid hitting the Harvey vehicle. Harvey's vehicle was not struck.

Householder's vehicle struck a light pole, and he was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he received treatment.

Harvey was charged with failure to yield the intersection right-of-way. Householder was charged with failure to be restrained by a seat belt.

bell, police said they detected an odor of an alcoholic beverage.

Campbell did not complete field sobriety tests to the deputies' satisfaction and was arrested for DUI and driving while impaired (DWI).

GCMH OFFERING MRI TECHNOLOGY - Garrett County Memorial Hospital is now offering the latest in magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) technology. The mobile MRI system, provided by Pittsburgh-based CDL Medical Technologies, will be stationed at GCMH every Monday, beginning March 25. "This new MRI system strengthens our commitment to providing the most advanced patient care with cost-effective technology," stated Mike Reed, GCMH director of radiology. "The new system provides a patient-friendly scanning environment. In addition, technologists and doctors have better access to patients during an exam," adding that the design will allow GCMH to expand the clinical use of an MRI system into areas such as cardiology and neurology. "The addition of MRI services at GCMH will provide patients in our primary service area with the latest in MRI technology close to home," said Don Battista, president/CEO of GCMH.

Man Hurt When Truck Hits Tree Fallen In Road

A Grantsville man sustained minor injuries early Sunday morning when his pickup truck struck a tree that had blown down across a roadway just south of Grantsville.

Shortly after 3 a.m. Scott Russell Bittinger, 28, was driving his 1995 Chevrolet S-10 cast along Maple Grove Road near Bittinger Road when his truck crested a hill and ran into the fallen tree. He was transported by a family member to a local hospital emergency room, where he was treated for a hand injury and released. No charges were filed in the incident.

Two Women Face Charges After School Incident

Two women were arrested and face numerous charges after Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Broad Ford Elementary in reference to a disorderly subject at the school.

Judy Lynn Bow, 34, Loch Lynn, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, failure to obey a lawful order, disorderly intoxication, and possession of an alcoholic beverage on school property.

She was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $1,000 bond, police said.

Another individual, Rosemary Morcland Bow, 59, Deer Park, was also arrested and charged with driving under the influence (DUI), transporting a child under the age of 4 not in a safety seat, and possession of an alcoholic beverage on school property.

Morcland Bow was released after posting $2,500 bond.

In another incident, deputies arrested a man on drunk driving charges while investigating a possible assault complaint along Oakland Sang Run Road early Friday morning, according to sheriff's deputies.

While investigating the possible assault, police observed a 1991 Chevy Cavalier pull into a residence's driveway. The deputies observed Chad William Campbell, 23, Mtn. Lake Park, exit the vehicle. When they made contact with Camp-

Seat Belt May Have Saved Life of Driver

Investigation is continuing into a vehicle accident Wednesday evening where the seat belt and air bag may have saved the life of the 18-year-old driver, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The vehicle driven by Jessica Marie Brenneman, Oakland, crossed the center line on a curve along Route 39, hit an embankment, and overturned at least two times, police said.

Sheriff's deputy Chuck Nolan said he believes that the seat belt and air bag saved Brenneman's life.

She was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Garrett CC Publication Collects Area Veterans' WWII Memories

GCC PUBLISHES WARTIME MEMORIES — Remembering World War II by Men and Women of Garrett County Who Were There has been published by Garrett Community College. The booklet captures the experience of 25 veterans who now live or once lived in the county. Shown from the left are typist Mildred Bray, graphic designer and cover artist Denise Friend, and editor Joan Crawford. The booklet is available for purchase at the GCC Bookstore and the Garrett County Historical Society Museum in Oakland. "This booklet is different from the Southern High School oral history publication, which will be much more comprehensive," Crawford said. For further information, persons may call Bray at 301-387-3000.

A project that began in 1995, when Garrett Community College sponsored a year-long commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, has finally been completed with the publication this week of the remembered experiences of Garrett County veterans.

Titled Remembering World War II by Men and Women of Garrett County Who Were There, the booklet contains the experiences of more than 25 veterans who now live or who once lived in Garrett County. It was compiled and edited by Joan Crawford and published by Garrett Community College. The cover was designed by Denise Friend, graphic artist.

The book collects the wartime experiences of men and women who served in the European theater, the Pacific theater, North Africa, the China-Burma-India theater, and the homefront, according to Crawford. "There's an article about the recipient of a Silver Star for Gallantry, a Pearl Harbor survivor, and a woman who lived through the Nazi blitz of Coventry," she said. "There is also a detailed diary of 36 missions flown by the crew of a B-17 Flying Fortress over Germany, and a story of a B-24 navigator who bailed out over Germany and was taken prisoner. There are many other articles by men who made landings in the Pacific and others who fought through the hedgerows of Europe. And there are articles about people who helped on the home front."

The booklet also contains an article about Crawford's experiences as a WAVE disbursing officer during World War II. The articles in this publication are written as narrative experiences of the veterans, most of whom participated in the programs at GCC in 1995. It is not an interview format, like the publication of the oral history project being produced by Matt Novak and students of Southern High School. That book will be much more comprehensive," Crawford stated.

Complimentary copies of the publication have been mailed to the veterans who sent in their experiences. Additional copies are for sale at a nominal cost in the GCC Bookstore and at the Garrett County Historical Society Museum in Oakland. For further information about the booklet, persons may call Mildred Bray at 301-387-3000.

Both Drivers Seek Treatment After Collision

Both drivers sought medical treatment at Garrett County Memorial Hospital after one vehicle hit the rear end of the other Monday afternoon along Hutton Road near Dilley Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Sarah Bell Kelly, 50, Oakland, was charged after her 1997 Chevy truck hit the rear end of a 1977 Chevy truck, driven by David Henry Shaffer, 52, Oakland, police said.

According to Shaffer, he was attempting to turn left into a driveway when he was hit. Kelly said she was also traveling eastbound and didn't see the other vehicle.

In other incident, an Oakland man faces numerous charges after he was stopped early Wednesday morning for an equipment violation, police said.

Steven Clark Rader, 42, Oakland, was arrested and charged with driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Rader was stopped along Route 50 near Wilson-Corona Road.

Deputies also arrested a Mtn. Lake Park woman for drunk driving charges.

Nancy Lee DePalma, 35, was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, and driving without a license, police said.

No charges were filed by deputies when a Southern High School student ran out of the school parking lot and into the side of a Garrett Community Action People Mover Bus Tuesday afternoon, according to sheriff's deputies.

The driver, passengers, and 17-year-old student were all treated and released from GCMH.

Fairmont Woman Jailed For Drugs After I-68 Stop

Maryland State Police troopers arrested a West Virginia woman on drug possession charges in the wake of a Friday evening traffic stop along Interstate 68 near Grantsville.

Deandra Bussey, 24, Fairmont, was traveling eastbound at 6:40 p.m. when troopers clocked her vehicle at 85 miles per hour in the 65 mph zone. During the traffic stop a small amount of suspected marijuana was found in the vehicle, and Bussey was arrested on possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges, and was issued a speeding citation. She was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting a $1,500 bond.

In other state police arrest activity, a Carroll County man was arrested Sunday night in McHenry for driving while his license was suspended and revoked.

Mark William Loscomb, 25, Westminster, was stopped along Garrett Highway at Lake Shore Drive at 11:45 p.m. when troopers noted that his 1996 Jeep Cherokee had an equipment violation. Loscomb could not produce a driver's license and admitted to being suspended for excessive points, which was confirmed by a computer check.

Following the arrest, Loscomb was released from jail when he posted a $1,500 bond.

Civic Club Marks Nine Decades Of Community Service

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland will undertake its 91st year of service to the community with its upcoming luncheon meeting on Tuesday, March 27, at the Will O' the Wisp. The gathering, which is open to the public, gets under way with a social period at 11:30 a.m., followed by lunch and a meeting at noon. The Civic Club was founded in 1911 and it joined the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Maryland Federation in 1916.

Representatives of a number of local nonprofit agencies will be on hand at the March meeting to speak about their organizations, and Civic Club members will decide which ones will be awarded financial support from the club during 2002. The public is invited to attend, and interested persons may call Nita Roberts at 301-387-4026. The reservation deadline is Wednesday, March 20, and the cost is $7.25 per person.

The Civic Club is active in the community, and its members participate in such projects such as Warm the Children and the Firesafety House. It hosts the Antique Show during Autumn Glory Festival, and organizes a Youth Art Show in March. It also sponsors day trips for members to the Mountain Playhouse in Jennerstown, Pa.

The Civic Club is currently working with the Cooperative Extension, Garrett County Lighthouse, and FCE Homemakers to plan a garden show in May.

The Civic Club meets the last Tuesday of each month for lunch and a program at the Will O' the Wisp. All meetings are open to the public.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE HAS RETIREMENT PLAN — The Garrett County commissioners passed a resolution this week that officially gives members of the Sheriff's Office their own retirement plan. Capt. Paul Pratt said the resolution was the result of two years of collaborative work between the Garrett County commissioners and his office. "We've built something together," he said. "It's good for all of us." The plan will be an asset for attracting new employees and retaining those already employed, said Sheriff Dick Sendera. Any correctional or sworn law-enforcement officer in the Sheriff's Office, Garrett County Detention Center, or State's Attorney's Office may participate. The plan allows participants to retire after 25 years of service, or at age 62, or to take a reduced pension after 20 years of service, or at age 50. Total disability, death, and termination benefits, as well as service credit, are included in the plan. A majority of the officers indicated that they intend to participate in the program and to make the appropriate contributions, which is 7 percent of their pay. The county will contribute 12.23 percent of compensation for fiscal year 2003. Shown above, left to right, are Pratt, Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, Sendera, Commissioner Fred Holliday, Sgt. Mike Bittinger, Commissioner Ernie Gregg, and Maj. Gary Berkebile.

Ignorance Reinforced...

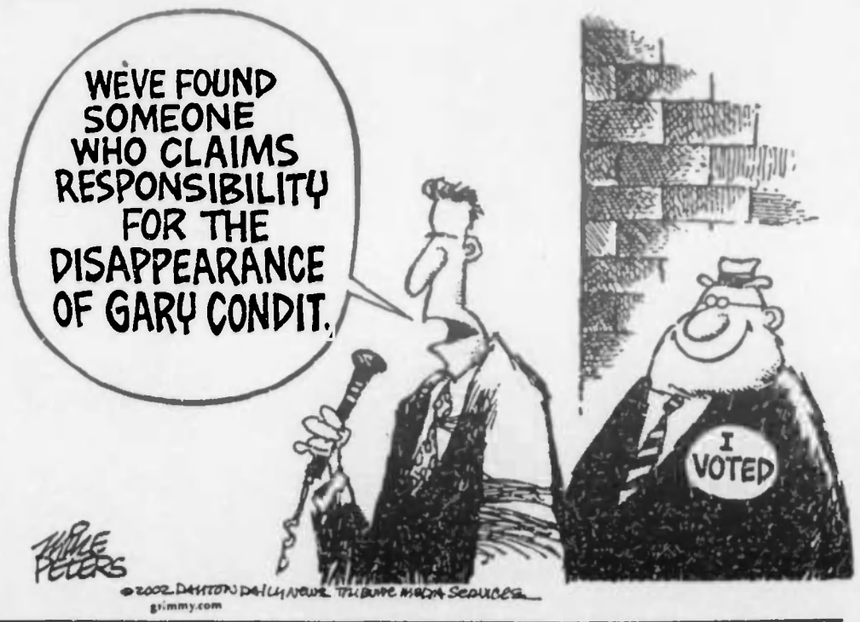
There has been considerable news coverage lately, both locally and at the state level, about reduced funding for services to the mentally ill in our society. Advocates continue to make the point that the general public still doesn't really comprehend mental illness, and through ignorance and fear continues to be reluctant to strongly support services for these citizens.

It seems that the guilty verdict rendered this week in the Andrea Yates murder case in Texas reinforces the idea that most people still don't really grasp what it means to be mentally ill. The issue now is whether to sentence Mrs. Yates to death or to life in prison.

There is absolutely no question that Mrs. Yates committed a horrible crime. There is no question that she needs to be removed from society, at least for a long time. But there also seems to be no doubt that she is extremely ill, and was therefore not in control of her actions. It is obvious from testimony and video tapes that she was a loving mother who worked much harder than many mothers in rearing her children. There was not one shred of evidence to suggest that she was in any way abusive to her children, and she certainly did not neglect them. But in her exceedingly warped way of thinking, she believed she was protecting her children, evidently from "the devil," by ending their lives.

The prosecution in the case hammered home the idea that, despite her mental illness, Mrs. Yates knew the difference between right and wrong, and that there was premeditation of her actions. But the jury did not understand that the mind of a severely mentally ill patient can rationalize every action, no matter how terrible. In her mind, killing her children may have been a wrong thing to do, but it was the only thing that would "save" them. It could be compared in some ways to the actions of a mentally healthy mother stealing food to save her children from starving, who realizes that her action is wrong, but proceeds anyway in order to save her children.

We sincerely hope that the Texas jury has enough understanding and compassion to at least allow Mrs. Yates to live. To sentence her to death would be to reinforce the incorrect notion that mentally ill people are inherently evil and somehow deserve to be punished for negative actions over which they have little or no control.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

People are all the time giving awards to heroes, which is really good, but do people realize you don't have to pull someone from a burning building or a vehicle accident to be a hero? There are silent heroes, and silent heroes should receive awards too. Ernie Gregg is one.

The Savage Family

To the Editor:

Thank you, Brad DeWitt, for finding my purse and calling so quickly. You saved me so much aggravation and worry.

Before becoming Garrett County residents, we spent all of our lives living in several big cities. We've had our pockets picked, wallets stolen, and I've even been mugged for my purse and credit cards.

I was careless enough to leave my purse on top of my car and drive away. Brad found it and called me quickly. It's truly wonderful that people here care about and look out for each other.

Thank you, Brad, and thank you, Garrett County.

To the Editor:

I wrote you two weeks ago about the shopping carts being left in the parking lots. Well, I am now a victim of a runaway cart. I was at Wal-Mart this weekend, I came back out of the store, and there it was-a cart at the back of my vehicle. Now I have a dent and scratches because someone did not put his/her cart back.

I can't blame Wal-Mart; they have spots all over the parking lot for carts when you are done with them. You would think someone would have thought of putting this cart back, especially as windy as it was this weekend.

Maybe these people will think twice about putting their carts back if one hits their car.

Thank you,
Sandy Tasker

To the Editor:

This letter is in regard to the article concerning the library budget.

The library is a wonderful asset to this county. I, for one, would rather see my tax dollars spent on the library than on tourism.

But for Ms. Lease to compare the salaries to those in other parts of the state is a joke to some. What about a lot of the hard-working citizens in this county? No one feels sorry for them. We need to look at the county as a whole, not just a selected few.

If people don't like their salaries, they always have a choice — the choice to work away. A lot of us don't like to do it, but if you want to make better money, you'll have to work away. Honestly, I don't think Garrett County will ever catch up with other areas of the state.

A Taxpayer,
James A. Tasker

To the Editor:

Just read the wonderful story in The Baltimore Sun about your (Grantsville's) efforts to build a new library. What a story!

This is what America should be: local citizens working to improve their community through grassroots efforts, not waiting for government handouts, but taking the initiative on their own, collecting funds one dime at a time.

Your efforts demonstrate what the true spirit of America should be, demonstrating self-determination, individual responsibility, and unwavering dedication to community.

My wife and I have visited Grantsville many times while our son attended Frostburg State University. The sincerity, kindness, and character of your citizens was always evident. The strong values and unwavering dedication which once pervaded this country are still manifest in the character of your citizens and their undertaking. You are setting an example American towns should emulate!

I'm presently unemployed and must limit my contribution. However, I found your spirit an overwhelming inspiration to me. I am enclosing $50 as a small gift to a small community with a big spirit and big heart!

Good luck in all your endeavors,
Bill Oakley

To the Editor:

Today, professional social workers are prominent leaders promoting, advocating for, and delivering services for older adults.

Social workers provide services for the aging in a variety of areas—access services, community-based service, in-home services, and institutional services. Social workers help the aging deal with such issues as dementia or Alzheimer's disease, depression, heart disease, and other long-term illnesses, lifelong learning, second careers preparation, genotherapy, self-help and mutual aid, retirement planning, travel, exercise and recreation, and related intervention for the new generation of older adults.

Locally, older adults can access services through the Garrett County Health Department such as the Adult Evaluation and Review Services (AERS) Western Maryland Medbank, the Maryland Medical Assistance Personal Care Program, and the Garrett County Home Health Services.

Social work for the aging population focuses on both dependent and needy older adults, as well as the independent with other kinds of needs, and the many who fall in between the two extremes.

Social workers will continue to be a vital resource for aging populations. They will project emerging needs for this older demographic, research ways to meet those needs, and face future challenges around the booming aging population head on.

Sincerely,
Donna McClintock, MSW, LCSW-C
Program Administrator
Garrett County Health Department

To the Editor:

I am the coordinator for a Garrett County web site and I am looking for old photos with names and, if possible, also dates. The types of historical photos that I am looking for include school classes, locomotives, timber crews, towns, civic groups, parades, individuals, and families.

I would also appreciate photos of the Civil War veterans; I can get the information about their service to this country from other sources. I would love to be able to place photos of all the local Civil War veterans on this site.

I hope people submitting photos can write a brief history of the photo or about the person in the photo. All fanulies have a special individual who has touched their lives, and they should be remembered in "historical accounts" of this area. This is the way to do that and create an archive for the area, but I will need help to accomplish this task.

These photos will be posted on the Garrett County family site for those who are looking for information about their Garrett County heritage. The information is totally free.

All credit will be given to those who contribute photos and information. For those who would like to see the site and the information that I have so far, the web address is: <http://freepages.genealogy.rootsweb.com/~garrettcountyfamilies/>, or type in "Garrett County Families" on the search engines on the computer.

I am not advertising this site for any reason except for people to see what I am doing for the historical families in the county, and then you can decide if you want to donate information for the site.

To the Editor:

This letter is not about any particular news item, but is about the way you handle your publication of letters to the editor.

In the March 7 issue, your letters spilled off the editorial page and onto page 16, where they weaved in between pictures and ads. I doubt very much that anyone bothered to turn to those letters in the back.

Too bad, because there was a very important letter by Brenda Butscher, head of Garrett County Hospice, explaining why "medical marijuana" had no value for alleviating suffering, and would create many other problems, none of which we want. Her long experience with dying patients who receive palliative care to prevent suffering is very relevant to understanding this statewide legislative issue.

There was also a good letter about the Humane Society back there.

I cannot understand why you ran two nearly identical cheerleading letters by Dawn Panther, plus a rant by some guy about building codes, all on the editorial page, and then relegated to the wilderness the significant letters by people who had something to say.

Do you print every letter in the order received, or do you exercise discretion about what to print? Don't you have a policy of editing letters for brevity?

It seems to me that an editorial page that contains quality columns like Jeffrey Wilson's could upgrade its letters portion to a comparable standard.

Tom Sheahen
Deer Park

Mr. Sheahen,

You are right; quite often our letters do have to "spill off" this page because they simply won't all fit here. But I must disagree with your statement that no one turns to the pages on which the letters are continued. (You obviously did, for one.) In fact, I bet well over 90% of our readers turn to those pages and follow the letters as they "weave in between pictures and ads." They do so because the letters are one of the most popular, and important, features of our newspaper.

As to order/placement of the letters, we basically place them randomly because we try to reserve judgment on which ones are the "most important." What is important to you (i.e. medical marijuana legislation and the Humane Society) may not be nearly as important to someone who, for instance, believes that letters about building codes are extremely important. Likewise, we are pleased that you enjoy Jeffrey Wilson's columns, but probably not all of our readers would agree with your assessment of his column.

Of course we exercise discretion about what letters we publish. We do not publish anonymous letters and we always try to not print libelous letters. (We don't like lawsuits.)

As to length of letters, we do reject a number of them that are more like books than letters. We used to have a hard and fast rule of 300 words or fewer, and we believe that whenever possible persons should try to keep their letters brief. But sometimes the topic just cannot be confined to that extent, so we are then more generous with our space; more generous than most newspapers perhaps, but the reader can always just skip over those that are of no interest.

Thanks for giving us this opportunity to explain a few things about our letters policy.

View from My Window

A DOG'S LIFE?

A televisionless life I live and advocate. I do permit myself a VCR and monitor, which I keep in the closet. A friend taped the second night of the Westminster Dog Show for me which I have now watched twice, partly with the younger of my nieces and nephews and always with my own dogs.

The show is second only to the Kentucky Derby as an annual sporting event. During the decade that I have been watching, it has taken place where many other great indoor sporting events are held, Madison Square Garden. My reaction is hard to describe and to understand. I find myself smiling with my eyes full as all those beautiful dogs — 2,500 to start with — are led around the show ring. Such a show is mostly a rich man's game, but there are some fairly regular people who have dogs that make it to the final round of judging.

Friends of mine had their sheepdog win "best of breed" a few years ago. Just days before the show their dog was muddy from her work in the fields doing what centuries of breeding had prepared her to do, herd sheep. Among this year's winning handlers were a professor of biology and a retired lawyer. Those may be the exceptions today, but ordinary people and the dogs of ordinary people can go to the top.

Watching all those different dogs, I thought about a smaller number of, but equally different, dogs who have been important to me. The first dog I remember was Jinx, a mixed bull dog. She was a very old dog when I was a very young boy.

There was the boxer, Beau, who loved to fight, and never won any of his bouts. There was a Doberman pinscher whom, predictably, we called "Dobie." I know dog I.Q. tests supposedly show that border collies are, as a breed, the smartest of dogs, but the Dobermans I have known possessed acute intelligence. They were extraordinarily intuitive. If they had talked to me, I would not have been surprised.

There was the American poodle, Cognac, who was a wonderful dog. He developed a taste for the neighbor's poultry, however, and so had to go to another home.

Two dogs we had for a long time were Heidi and Tasha. Both were German shepherds, but they had completely different natures. Heidi was easy-going while Tasha assumed the work of protecting us. If someone made what she thought was a threatening move, she would take that person's hand in her mouth. She understood that women and children needed more protection than men. My father she let fend for himself.

During the past 14 years, dogs have played an even larger role in my life. In December 1987 I acquired a baby beagle whom I named Argae, after the dog of Odysseus. It is a Greek word that means "swift." She was my faithful companion until the Epiphany two years ago when she died quietly on her bed in the kitchen.

Her daughter, Beatrice, still keeps me company, but Beatrice will be 12 years old on July 3. Perhaps Beatrice will live longer because I have learned late some important lessons, one of which is that cheap dog food is poison for a dog, a long slow poison that can take years off a dog's life.

My vet tells me that one way to measure dog food is that the higher the protein level, the higher the quality of protein, but that the older a dog, the more trouble a dog has processing protein. The aim is to feed an older dog a low level of high quality protein. Now I buy high quality feed, and then blend it with boiled rice to cut the protein level. A dog's diet has come a long way from table scraps.

The dog who keeps Beatrice and me company is Mabes, who is the perfection of a mutt. She is mostly border collie with some basset hound thrown in, amongst other things. The basset genes must be entirely in her nose because they are in evidence no place else. She is bright, intuitive, sweet, and gentle. She is the most companionable dog I have ever known. I believe she could rear a child, especially a little girl, all on her own.

In the best of times during the nearly 18 years that I have lived here, when this house was filled with children, the dogs added to the joyous maelstrom. During those other years when I have lived here as half a hermit, the dogs have been sure and trusty friends who have filled a void.

In all likelihood I shall outlive Beatrice and Mabes, but my love for them — as for all those other precious friends to the child and to the man — shall live as long as I do.

To the Editor:

We are writing this letter on behalf of the Utility Workers of America, Local 102-R out of Cumberland and Oakland. For the past 10 months our union has been in heated negotiations with Allegheny Energy, meeting a total of 36 times, with no resolve. We are currently operating under our previous contract agreement, which expired May 1, 2001. During this contract struggle we have continued to provide our customers with top-notch service, 24 hours a day.

Recently, there have been numerous billboards and campaign signs erected in the area to inform the public of our struggle for fair treatment. While Allegheny racks up record profits, CEO Al Noia reaps the benefits. Noia's salary and bonus combined exceeds one million dollars per year.

Meanwhile, the men and women who keep the lights on for Allegheny and its customers, members of local 102, are expected to accept less than a fair contract. Allegheny is proposing a lesser wage increase for its two unionized, female clerical workers; unjust changes in work rules; staffing levels that are less than acceptable to provide reliable customer service; significant increases in employee-paid portions of healthcare premiums; and a pension formula that penalizes workers and inflicts penalty for early retirement. Those are just a few of the unresolved issues between the 1,100 members of U.W.U.A., System Local 102, and the multi-million dollar corporation known as Allegheny Energy.

System Local 102 president, William J. Sterner, has been leading these contract negotiations for over 1,100 members strong. He is available for comment at 724-483-3558.

Sincerely,
Ron Burner, Greg Combs, Bob Dunlap, Rodney Imes, Jim Markley, Rick McKenzie, Bill Moody, Paul Plummer, and Russell Stewart

To the Editor:

Thank you for the coverage of the George C. Marshall Center in your paper.

I need to point out two corrections, however. First, I am the Associate Dean for Administration and Resources for the College of International Security Studies (CISS), not for the George C. Marshall Center. CISS is the major organization within the Marshall Center and the only one with student resident programs. The second correction is for your news article dated Feb. 28 about the course the Marshall Center students are taking. These students are enrolled in the Executive Program rather than the Leader's Course. These folks are lieutenant colonels and colonels and their civilian equivalents. All of the students are from either their military, their version of our Department of Defense, their version of our State Department (Ambassadors), Academia, or Parliament.

Secondly, Thank you Oakland and Garrett County! The visit to Oakland and Garrett County on Saturday, March 2, was a huge success! I am now back in Germany, but wanted to write and thank you all for your efforts. Your hospitality, genuine friendliness, and kindness came through like a shining star. Not only were the students impressed (who, by the way, represent over 27 different countries), but so were the Americans! My purpose for bringing these students to Oakland - called our Small Town USA Visit - was to show the students what real America is. All of America doesn't look like New York City or Washington, D.C. You need to understand that the students received briefings from the UN, ABC News, FEMA, and the Coast Guard in New York City; and the State Department,

FCSI Staff Engages Co-Workers In Creative Effort For United Way

by Jennifer Keidel

Raising money for charity can sometimes be a daunting task, but not for one Garrett County business. In November of 2001, Financial Computer Support Inc. began raising funds for the United Way of Garrett County campaign and surpassed its original goal of $1,000 in just two months.

Established in 1981 and located in the Southern Garrett Industrial Park, FCSI is a company that develops and sells portfolio management software to individuals and businesses. The organization currently employs 43 individuals from Maryland and West Virginia.

"FCSI's commitment is not limited to producing quality financial planning software, but extends to assisting less fortunate individuals in Garrett County," said a company spokesperson.

With the efforts of its Community Involvement Team, FCSI has had the opportunity to help many organizations and residents of the community in the past. This year team members Lori Malcolm, Kimberly Miller, and Wendy McCaffrey decided that FCSI should raise funds for the United Way Campaign of Garrett County and accepted the responsibility of coordinating the fund-raising effort.

But how does a business encourage its employees to contribute? For FCSI, the answer is relatively simple: creativity.

Sometimes an incentive can generate interest among individuals and make them more apt to donate money to those in need. By establishing fun and creative rewards for those who contributed, Malcolm, Miller, and McCaffrey fostered FCSI employees' excitement about becoming involved in the campaign.

One of these incentives appealed to those employees who love anything sweet. By making a small donation to the campaign fund, an individual could earn the opportunity to keep a fully stocked candy basket on his or her desk for the day.

Another creative reward included a reprieve from washing dishes. At FCSI, each employee is given a week of dish duty, so if an employee pledged $25 to the Campaign, he or she could hand the responsibility to a co-worker for the week.

CREATIVE INCENTIVES AT FCSI — The staff at FCSI, a company located in the Southern Industrial Park, are engaged in a unique and fun way to raise money for a good cause. The good cause is the United Way of Garrett County, and the methods of raising funds include a wide variety of special incentives for employees. For example, in the photo above, Nancy Baker hands over her obligatory "dish duty" to Anthony Wroten as her prize for making a donation. CEO Dusty Huxford is pictured below as he cleans employee Lisa Myers's desk in return for her contribution. These and many other interesting incentives have been conjured up by the leaders of the fund drive. See story.

For a pledge of $50, employees enjoyed incentives such as ordering their supervisors to dust the work areas or taking a longer lunch break. For those FCSI employees who donated larger amounts of money, the incentive list became even more interesting. Some of the prizes included movie tickets, doughnuts for an employee's entire department, a Monday morning sleep-in, a free breakfast, front row parking for one week, and the chance to hear one of the directors perform a karaoke song at a department meeting.

The employees of FCSI have proven that fund-raising can be an enjoyable and rewarding experience. The company has already raised $2,050 for the United Way of Garrett County and plans to continue raising money throughout 2002.

The United Way of Garrett County provides funding solely for charitable projects benefiting Garrett County residents. Its 16 local agencies have the opportunity to present specific annual projects to be funded. In turn, the agencies are required to give an annual report of their results. A committee composed of Garrett County volunteers reviews and approves the agencies' funding requests.

Individuals or businesses interested in supporting the United Way may call 301-359-9697 or send contributions directly to the United Way of Garrett County, P.O. Box 394, Oakland, MD 21550.

POS Funding

reintroduction of wild brook trout will be feasible.

Perhaps more importantly, the 25-acre corridors of private land along Salt Block Run and White Rock Run bisect DNR lands along the Youghiogheny River, effectively blocking public access to DNR-owned areas on either side of both streams for over one mile. DNR ownership of the two runs would create a larger contiguous area of public lands in the Youghiogheny River Wild and Scenic Corridor.

Currently, DNR-owned lands do not reach public roads in the area of the runs. Purchase of the two parcels, comprising the two stream corridors, would create an opportunity for the public to access areas within the corridor, which are currently landlocked by posted private property.

POS has preserved more than 300,000 acres of open space and recreation areas to benefit Maryland's citizens and environment. Most Maryland residents live within 15 minutes of an open space or recreational area funded by this program, according to the Governor's Press Office.

1131, Supreme Court, Pentagon, and Quantico Marine Base in Washington prior to coming to Oakland. They all agreed that the highlight of this field study to America was the Small Town USA visit to Oakland and Garrett County! The message of community spirit and volunteerism got through to the students, even though more than half of the students spoke only Russian or German.

I was proud to say I was from Oakland and Garrett County as I introduced each host at each visit. I'd like to end by identifying the following folks and/or organizations for their Herculean efforts to make this an extremely successful visit: Mayor McCain, County Commissioner Holliday, Alex Flanagan and the Fire Department, Ann Smith and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Dr. Mitchell and the Garrett Community College, Peggy Santamaria, of the Chamber of Commerce, the Hausers and their computerized dairy farm, the Ladies from Elk Grove Church, and Dave Browning.

With sincere thanks and appreciation,

LTC Jack C. Riley

To the Editor:

In response to Perry Schwab's letter to the editor, I would like to point out a few things that he apparently doesn't understand. First, I want to let him know that people in the county don't resent him; they resent the fact that one of the very few jobs at Simon Pearce has been given to someone from California. It must have been one heck of a deal to get you to move 3,000 miles. You see, Perry, the taxpayers (not federal taxpayers) underwrote this deal so that people in Garrett County could get a leg up in the labor market; unemployment has been historically extremely high here.

When I first looked into the matter, long before you arrived, Perry, it absolutely astonished me that our local officials would sign on to a deal like this. I made that quite clear to Jim Hinebaugh and the Garrett County commissioners before they signed. I offered suggestions for that huge building that would better serve the people in Garrett County. They would hear none of it. And, by the way, I don't really blame the Simon Pearce Glass Co.; they'd have to be fools not to take advantage of a deal like this because they really didn't have anything to lose. In your words, Perry, "The county gave us a great deal." An understatement if ever I saw one.

With a combination of $500,000 from the Sunny Day Fund (which currently has a cloudy look to it) and other grants, loans, and incentives, they received $3 million plus. All they had to do in return was provide 150 jobs for the jobless people in the area within five years. Commissioners & company said that would be "no problem." When I asked about guarantees they said there would be NO GUARANTEES or, for that matter, not even a schedule written into the agreement. So the local politicians put the welcome mat out, had a big reception for S.P., and patted themselves on the back for a job well done. But that was then.

Perry, this was (is) a very valuable building that could have been used for some of the local small businesses that already existed in Garrett County and could have used assistance to expand. It could even have been used for some startup companies for the young people in this county. At 193,000 sq. ft., it could easily have accommodated a dozen or more businesses. Comparing the two situations, Perry this is known as a "no-brainer." There is more to this, but I would need a whole page in The Republican to go into detail.

The $5 to $6 dollar an hour people, the unemployed, and the underemployed don't hold a grudge against you personally, Perry, they are just fed up with all of these deals that "The Club" makes that leave them out of the equation. You just happen to be in the middle of one of them.

They count on the people to forget these things. I may be old, but I ain't senile.

To The Editor:

I am writing on behalf of Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety Inc. to thank the many people who helped make our recent fundraising events a big success.

Thanks to everyone who supported us by taking up the invitation to "PAWS for lunch at Our Town Theatre" over the last several Fridays; to all who came to the "PAWSitively Pets Coffee House" at OTT; and to all who stopped by our booth at the Winter Blast celebration held at the Wisp recently.

We are a new non-profit organization, venturing out into the arena of "public support gathering" for the first time, and the community's enthusiastic, positive response to our efforts on behalf of animals and animal welfare issues in Garrett County has been very encouraging. With their help PAWS was able to raise the funds necessary to carry out its Adopt-a-Classroom Project, and support some of its other education goals as well.

A most sincere thanks goes to Jane Avery for helping us develop the "PAWS for Lunch" and Coffee House ideas, and to the Board of Directors of Our Town Theatre for agreeing to allow PAWS to hold these events there. I thank them all for opening their facility to us so freely and graciously. How fortunate for Garrett County that they realize the importance of reaching out and sharing their talents and assets with other organizations in order to benefit the community as a whole. Thanks to Liz Gilbert and the many OTT volunteers, including "Max the Wonder Dog," who helped make the PAWSitively Pets Coffee House a success in spite of the wintry weather. Those in attendance had a great time and enjoyed the various readings, musical offerings, and activities the evening provided.

Many thanks to the following restaurants and their chefs, who agreed to support PAWS by providing delicious soups for us to serve. Quantity was never an issue. Needless to say, the soup lunches would have been nothing without them!

Pappy's Place for providing five onion soup, the Four Seasons Dining Room at Will O' The Wisp for providing New England clam chowder, BumBle Q's Restaurant for providing Maryland crab soup, Deep Creek Brewing Company for providing chili, Annie's Kitchen in Accident for providing cream of crab soup, and Leone's at Silver Tree for providing Italian wedding soup.

A special thank-you to Vivian Padgett at BumBle Q's for generously lending some much-needed restaurant "expertise" to the PAWS soup lunches. Without her help, things definitely would not have run as smoothly as they did.

Thanks to Paula Yudelevit and the folks at Wisp for inviting PAWS to participate in the Winter Blast celebration. We had fun.

Finally, thanks to all the PAWS volunteers who pulled together to make these events a success.

Sincerely,
Annette Robinson,
President, Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety Inc.

To the Editor:

Please allow me to comment on the recent meeting between the Ruth Enlow Library (REL) staff and the county commissioners to discuss the library budget.

First is the matter of salary and benefits. I believe that anyone would be challenged to find people in another county agency so under compensated as the REL employees. The role of the modern library is much more complex than it was say 25 years ago. Today's library is exploding with new information in new tools, formats, and technology (for example, computers, large print, audio and video tapes) and an ever expanding demand for service for in-college and college-bound students, many without home computers. The REL request for salary increases between one and four percent are extraordinarily modest; maybe too modest. Allowing for inflation, there is almost no real net gain. With merchandise, you get what you pay for. With librarians, the higher the skills, the greater should be their salaries and benefits. Professional librarians deserve professional compensation. And remember that branch library staff does the same work as many of their Oakland colleagues, but with fewer benefits. So they are very deserving of — at least — raises, also.

Second, possibly the best reason for an increased book budget has to do with the cost of books themselves, which has soared over the last 10 or 15 years. Try buying a new Physician's Desk Reference, or Webster's Third New International Dictionary and you will see what I mean. And these same references are routinely updated, calling for costly replacement. Even the ubiquitous paperback "... for Dummies" books seem outrageously overpriced and also require periodic replacement.

Third, computers alone take a tremendous toll on library budgets. It's probably not so much the initial costs that drain the budget, but the constant need for service providers, materials, upgrades, trouble shooting, maintenance and repairs. Library Director Cathy Ashby has formidable computer skills, but can hardly be on par with a degree-holding computer expert. I have such a friend who works with mainframe computers for a Kansas municipality, and he tells me that PCs (like REL's) are advancing so rapidly and becoming so complex that even he can't keep up with them anymore. Expecting Ms. Ashby to do double duty with books and computers is a bit like asking your dentist to be your doctor, too.

It has been asked if large increases in funding requests for REL are to be expected annually. This, I cannot answer. But I can suggest that we look at REL in another perspective. The young student who reams to read for pleasure and a larger vocabulary will have a distinct advantage when required to read for a college education. Outside of the school itself, a student has few such opportunities as the public library offers for intellectual self-betterment.

It is often claimed that roads of asphalt are fundamental for prosperity. However true that may be, a highway of superior literacy will have a profoundly deeper impact on a student's ultimate academic success. Money invested in a public library eventually yields a larger harvest of personal fulfillment in life, to say little about the advantages of libraries for leisure.

Let's turn REL into a modern marvel model. It's about "clean" progress, and it's about time.

To the Editor:

It will be two years on April 10 since my mother, at the age of 53, passed away from colon cancer. Since then, it has been an important goal of mine to raise awareness of this disease, and March is designated National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month.

Colorectal cancer is the second leading cancer killer in the United States, and this year an estimated 56,600 Americans will die from it, and 148,300 new cases will be diagnosed. Many of these cases could be prevented by regular screening exams, and of course, healthy lifestyle changes. There are four current methods used to screen for colon cancer: FOBT, or fecal occult (hidden) blood test, flexible sigmoidoscopy, the DCBE, or double contrast barium enema, and colonoscopy. As public awareness grows, so does funding for research and new methods of detection.

So who is at risk? Obviously if you have a family history of colorectal cancer, it's recommended you have regular screenings as advised by your family doctor. But colon cancer is most common in men and women ages 50 and over; therefore, screenings beginning at the age of 50, regardless of one's medical history, is recommended. The survival rate for people with colorectal cancers found early is more than 90 percent. Lack of general public awareness of the disease has limited funding for research, kept colon cancer patients unaware of their treatment options, and, tragically, prevented early detection and treatment in far too many cases.

At the age of 20, I had my first colon cancer screening, a colonoscopy, as recommended by my doctor, and I was, in simple terms, extremely afraid. I've never been one to enjoy doctor visits, so this type of examination horrified me. I remember crying the day before the exam, and right before it for fear of what they might find. To my surprise, the procedure was absolutely painless (thanks to a little something to knock me out). Honestly, the worst thing about getting a colonoscopy is the fact that you cannot eat for 24 hours beforehand (save for a limited list of liquids) and you have to drink the dreaded liquid laxative, Fleet. (Here's a hint to survive that: Mix it with Mountain Dew. Cuts back on the nasty taste.)

A concern, especially for Garrett countians, is the cost of screening. I personally do not have health insurance anymore, as I am no longer eligible to receive benefits through my father who served in the military. This leaves me worried, especially since some programs that help fund screenings, assist only those who are older. I will turn 25 later this year and will be due for another colonoscopy in 2003, but I cannot let the cost of this procedure hinder the concern for my health. I hope that others in the situation will feel the same way.

In memory of my mother, and all of those who have died of colorectal cancer, I urge those who read this to consider if they should have a screening themselves, or if they know of someone, friend or family, who should do the same. Unfortunately, my mother's cancer was discovered too late (in its fourth stage), and two years after her initial diagnosis, my mother passed away. My mother did not notice symptoms until the cancer had progressed, and as a daughter who misses her mother, I sometimes wish I could rewind time and urge my mother to get screened. I cannot do that, but I can raise awareness so other daughters, and other family members, will not have to wish the same thing. I watched my mother suffer and succumb to an illness that could have been prevented through a simple, yearly screening.

I am thankful that awareness of this disease has increased since my mother's death, but there is still a crucial need to keep the general public informed. Dear Ms. Jose,

There would be no greater tribute to your mother than for even one person to read this, heed your advice, and be saved by early detection. We thank you for your letter, and direct your attention to page B-8 of this issue, where you will find a feature article by Beth Bowers on this very topic.

Bill Would Strip Maryland DNR Of Wildlife Management Duties

by Hanah Cho
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland Department of Natural Resources either does too much or too little with its wildlife management programs, critics charge. This year's complaints revolve around management of the state's deer and bear populations and regulation of blue crab fishing.

Now there's a bill, pushed by House Speaker Casper R. Taylor Jr., D-Allegany, to remove wildlife authority from DNR altogether. The proposal, which would transfer management power to an independent wildlife and inland fisheries commission, comes before the House Environmental Matters Committee Friday.

The governor would appoint members to represent each county, and each member would be required to have "experience as a commercial guide for wildlife or fishing activities, or in recreational hunting or fishing."

An executive director would be in charge of carrying out the commission's policies. Commissioners would not be paid a regular salary for meetings held at least every two months. DNR would be left to deal with regulations and programs related to the state's bays, steams, forestry, parks and lands.

The department opposes the proposal, and Secretary J. Charles Fox is expected to speak at the hearing, said spokeswoman Heather Lynch.

A new state agency is needed because DNR has not done a proper job managing the state's wildlife resources, Taylor said.

Pennsylvania has a separate game commission that regulates various hunting seasons and management programs, as well as a natural resources department.

"A commission is used in many, many states," Taylor said Thursday. "Records indicate to me, if it's done properly with the right balance of all interests, it's a very effective way to manage our wildlife resources."

Another measure to create a separate marine fisheries commission, sponsored by Delegate Ken Schisler, R-Talbot, was also heard by the committee Friday. Wildlife management authority has been a point of contention between the General Assembly and the department, with the Legislature finally trying to dictate how deer, bear and crabs should be managed.

The House of Delegates recently approved proposals allowing deer hunting on one Sunday of the firearms season and a permit program allowing landowners to kill nuisance black bears. The measures were born out of some lawmakers' frustration with DNR's inaction on human-animal conflicts, particularly the nuisance bear problem in Western Maryland.

Residents there have been reluctant to work with DNR officials because their concerns have been ignored, said Delegate George Edwards, R-Garrett, sponsor of the bear bill, which in its original form would have established a controversial limited black bear hunt.

Wildlife management decisions have become politicized and emotional, said Steve Palmer of the Maryland Coalition for Responsible Wildlife Management. An independent agency would better direct action based on proven scientific and biological methods, he said.

"There's a carrying capacity of land or what the habitat can support," Palmer said. "If you under-utilize it, or over-utilize it, it can get out of control, like deer in central Maryland."

Not everyone agrees that a separate wildlife agency is necessary. Some animal-rights activists see Taylor's measure as "pro-hunting" in a state where hunters are just 2 percent of the population.

"As I understand, the motivation for this bill is the House speaker believes that the DNR has done a lousy job promoting hunting," said Jeff Leitner of Fund for Animals. "And therefore, he wants to create a new commission to promote hunting as the primary wildlife management tool in the state."

Taylor denies that assertion, calling the bill "pro-wildlife management."

Creation of a new wildlife commission doesn't make economic sense, said Pat McElroy of the Humane Society of the United States. Under the proposal, funds dedicated to the Department of Natural Resources' wildlife division would be transferred to the new agency. But it's not known whether additional money would be needed; a fiscal note was not available last Thursday.

The new agency would cost more taxpayers' money and take funding away from the department for it to run effectively, McElroy said.

"Creating a wildlife commission would be creating another bureaucracy," she said. "And taking more previous taxpayers money from the citizens and taking money from DNR which should be funneled there, so they could do the jobs they were commissioned to do."

President/Ceo Of CareFirst Defends Sale

by Thomas Kim
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield president William Jews answered questions from the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday with aplomb. Jews gave a series of thorough responses to lawmakers skeptical about WellPoint Health Networks $1.3 billion offer to buy CareFirst, and the company's planned conversion from nonprofit to for-profit status.

Senators were particularly concerned about the more than $30 million in compensation Jews and his fellow executives would receive if the sale is successful. Jews alone would make more than $9 million from the deal.

WellPoint, a California company often referred to as the "darling of Wall Street," provides health care services and has about 16,300 employees with more than 80 offices nationwide.

CareFirst's proposed sale to WellPoint has caused controversy among legislators and Marylanders wondering what would happen if the provider many regard as the "insurer of last resort" were to go through.

From the start, Thomas Bromwell, D-Baltimore, had specific questions he wanted answered: Why does CareFirst want to convert and merge?

Without the conversion, CareFirst would not be able to stay competitive, Jews contended.

CareFirst needs to be a profit-making venture to have access to capital. That money would be raised through an initial public stock offering. If the conversion falls through, services would deteriorate and people would seek insurance elsewhere, Jews said.

"If you can't invest in innovation, they'll go else where," Jews said. "If your bank can't invest in an automated teller machine, would you go to another bank? "I don't think this company will crumble in the next two years. But in the next four years, we'll have to worry about staying competitive."

Jews responded to another Bromwell question by assuring the panel that CareFirst would continue to be locally regulated.

"Local management will remain in place in many, if not all instances," he said. WellPoint has even agreed to setup a regional headquarters in the state, he told the panel.

But his confident answers didn't pacify some lawmakers.

"I'm still under the impression this conversion and sale is not in the best interest of Maryland," said Sen. George W. Della Jr., D-Baltimore. People from his district have been telling him their concerns about the proposed deal, especially with the issue of compensation, he said. Many people think that the conversion is motivated by financial incentives, he said.

That skepticism has caused a series of bills to be introduced targeting any financial compensation the CareFirst executives will make. One bill, for example, introduced by Delegate Dan Morhaim, D-Baltimore County, would prohibit executives from making money from the deal.

"Don't you think this golden parachute issue is an issue?" Della asked Jews.

Jews deflected the question to the man sitting next to him, Daniel J. Altobello, CareFirst's board chairman.

"We've done this conscious of the fact that this would create a firestorm — this red herring of compensation," Altobello said. "It is controversial, but we still believe it should be done. I'm sorry this has so much attention, but I'm not surprised."

The compensation is necessary to ensure that the executives are retained, he said.

"When we put a company like this in play...you create an instability in management when you need stability," Altobello said.

Compensation is not the real issue, he said. "We should spend more time focusing on the $1.3 billion and where it should go."

the rooms were crowded with women, who, in many cases, were accompanied by their husbands or by their sons.

In District No. 7, the first woman to register was Mrs. Willey H. Friend, while in the Fourteenth District the first to register was Mrs. H.A. Loraditch, followed by Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell and Mrs. Leah H. Sincell, wife and mother, respectively, of the editor of The Republican.

Pages and pages could be used up to cover even a small portion of the history-rich writings by B.H., who is, incidentally, the great grandfather of current editor Donald Sincell. It would surely please him to know that the paper continues, and that his descendants are pacing the same floor with many of the same thoughts passing through their minds each week. For family was of utmost importance to him. This is evidenced by some of his writing that was published only once in a while, appearing suddenly in the midst of political editorials, town reports, and police blotters.

We end this week's history feature with the following item, his editorial for April 10, 1919, a poignant, bittersweet testament to the late editor's ultimate love of home and family. The advice is as relevant today as it was 83 years ago:

HOME

Cherish the home with infinite tenderness. You cannot love it too much nor give it too much time and thought. Remember life has nothing better to offer you; it is the climax and crown of God's gifts. Make every day of life in it rich and sweet. It will not last long. See to it that you plant to seeds of bitter memory; that there will be no neglect and harshness to haunt you in after years. Your little ones will die and go hence with your words and spirits planted in their eternal nature. Sons and daughters will go from you into the great world, to live as you have taught them, to be strong or weak according to the spirit you have engrafted upon them. How you will yearn for them, whether living or dead. How sweet or how bitter will be the days when they prattled about you in the home from which they have gone forever! So live with them and train them now that when they are gone you and they can look back on the past with thankfulness and not regret.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The really important upcoming event in Bittinger this Friday night is the Bittinger 4-H annual spring dinner with old-fashioned buckwheat cakes and pancakes, sausage, gravy, and drink. The dinner will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. at the fire hall and is all you can eat. Cost of the dinner is just $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 years old and under. Children 5 years and younger eat free. Once again you can eat as much as you can of those raised buckwheats cakes, or if you desire pancakes there will be plenty of them. Also a whole dressed pig was ground into all sausage meat for the dinner. Plus you can see a whole bunch of Bittinger folks. Don't miss it! As some of my old friends from Carroll County used to say, "Y'all come."

You can't get any better attentive waiters and waitresses than our 4-H members, or better looking either. Even when they get a tip they put it in the club till. They use much of their funds for some urgent charity funds, as a couple years ago they gave at least 100 dollars to the International Red Cross for the refugees in Bosnia. Of course, they also need money for 4-H camps and field trips. They deserve some fun too, after all the hard work that they put into 4-H. As much work that I put in for my 4-H years, I got a lot of great memories, friends, and life skills. It provides better opportunity for obtaining scholarships, etc.

4-H is as good of an example of the quote from Hillary Clinton, "It takes a village to raise a child." It takes parents, leaders, and community members to build a grown-up 4-H'er. In myself, I still carry a lot of pieces of the adults who helped me along my 10 years in 4-H. I couldn't have competed at the national level on my horse or without the experience of public speaking and giving good oral reasons in dairy and horse judging. Without it I couldn't nave been a good professor and I wouldn't have the excellent adventure of work on world-class theatrical productions. Without Evelyn Shawley and Ethel Buckel, who worked endlessly trying to drill some basic skills in my hard head, I couldn't have done the work in theater that I did.

It is hard to believe that all my homemaking skills are now wasted since I do not have my own family to cook or care for them. I am very glad that the buckwheat dinner is Friday evening since at least I will keep my girls with me Friday night before they have to go down to Silver Spring to visit their Sussman grandparents. They will escape for the weekend from their chores, animal care, etc., home-cooked meals, and just go shopping, go out to eat, etc. They can depend on me to take care of their pets and just wait for my beautiful three daughters to get back late Sunday. Hopefully their father will allow them to stay with me for just one night. One somewhat painful lesson that I learned in 4-H was that, even if you try your hardest, you still do not win all the time. Sometime you have to let go of something that you really care for and loved very much. When I had to sell my dairy heifers to earn money for college, for example, I cried a river.

Although personally I have not seen a robin yet, I did talk to a couple reliable sources from McHenry and Accident last weekend, and they reported that they had indeed seen some before last weekend's snow. Let's hope that was Garrett County robins snow. Bittinger is always a last stop for spring in Garrett County. I am always amazed that Grantsville is always far ahead of us, even though they are north of Bittinger. On sunny mornings we do have lots of birds singing here.

On Saturday I had a long wait for a parking space at Deep Creek Pharmacy. I was eager to get some cold remedies and, as the staff there said, "70% of Garrett County also have a bad spring cold." It is not only the misery of the endless running nose, but I was also hit by a bad stomach bug. Both left me beat and too tired to make a lot of phone calls trying to get some news items.

Oh yes, I do have one late item that I missed a couple weeks ago. After a vacation in Florida, Nancy and Dave Beachy of McHenry visited their family in Bittinger at the Poholsky house after returning home.

The other day I stopped at Buckel's Store for gas for my car, and Gary appeared bright as could be in a Maryland Terps basketball sweatshirt. In spite of a lot of support from the fans of the Terps, they once again failed to win the ACC Tournament championship, in spite of winning the regular season championship. But who knows? Maybe their loss at the hands of the North Carolina State Wolfpack will inspire their play in the Big NCAA tournament in "March Madness." I agree with Gary that they can beat any team in the country if they play their game. But if they don't, they can lose any game, too. It will only take one loss to exit. My nerves are already too raw for much of March Madness. I already have plenty of things to be disappointed and upset about without watching a lot of basketball games. But that does apply to Claire and Meredith, as they still are very upbeat about the Terps.

Members of each congregation in the Bittinger Lutheran Parish will hold a parish-wide remembrance Palm Sunday, March 24, by a complete reading of the Passion story from the Bible. That is just two weeks from now, which is the same time I will be without my children. Last evening after I was so run down from my illness and when the children left with their father, I completely broke down. I can't face two weekends without them. It is so hard to do it, but I must. Maybe someone will call or visit me, which will help ease the pain.

The Northern High varsity baseball team, with a lot of young Bittinger men, including Greg Whittemore, Jordon and Trey Brenneman, and Torrey Poholsky, will travel down to Hancock-Boonesboro area for a few scrimmage games. It seems as if the Bittinger boys have caught an epidemic of baseball magic.

Landon Southerly recently received notification that he will be inducted in the National Honor Society on March 24 at Point View Inn.

I heard through the grapevine that Elmer Maust of Foxtown Road had a heart attack on Saturday night and is a patient at Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland, where he will undergo surgery on Wednesday. When I phoned the Maust home to find out the details, I was surprised to get my former student from GCC, Conrad Maust, on the phone. He currently lives in Bittinger and works at the new Performance Center at Frostburg University as technical director and designer. That is quite a great job for such a recent graduate.

Grace King of McHenry visited Ferne Beachy on Monday and they had lunch together.

Phyllis Mazer, Columbia, Lea Stanton, Towson, and Kendra and John Wells and family from Rockville were overnight guests of Cindy and Sam Stanton and Ferne Beachy. Bee Buckel, and Kristen and Bill Bogus and sons, Laurel, were overnight guests of Sally Poholsky and family last week. Kerry and Brook Greer and family, Laurel, were overnight guests of the Southerlys. They were all in Bittinger to attend the funeral of Max Buckel.

Ken Buckel was an outpatient surgical patient at Memorial Hospital on Wednesday.

Anthony Carey and fiancée Amanda Wilson spent spring break with family in the area. Other Tuesday evening dinner guests of Julius and Karmen Carey, near Frostburg, were James and Agnes Carey, Chris Carey and friend Janelle; Billy and Susan Powell and daughters, all of near Frostburg; Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty, Tom and Tim Glotfelty, and Ida Reckner, who will celebrate her 97th birthday on March 20. Other evening visitors were the Nathan Walker family of Longstretch. Anthony and Amanda returned to Evangel College, Springfield, Mo., on Saturday.

HEAD START BUSY WITH LITTLE HANDS — The Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. Early Head Start program involves even the smallest hands at play. The teaching staff at the Oakland center stays busy with the classroom of children ranging in age from 6 weeks to 18 months. The Early Head Start program provides year-around services to pregnant woman and children 0-3 years of age with center-based and home-based program options. For more information about Head Start programs, persons may call 301-533-0270 or 1-888-877-8403.

Tom Glotfelty spent several days last week at his home here, and has since returned to Detroit and piloted one of the scheduled Spirit Airlines commercial passenger flights to Puerto Rico.

For those who caught the viewing of "America's Funniest Home Videos" on ABC Friday evening, they saw Jim Glotfelty on national TV upsetting the small motorcycle of his young grandson, Adam Platter, in what was a very funny family episode!

Classes Slated For Diabetics

The Garrett County office of the Maryland Cooperative Extension and the Area Agency on Aging will partner to offer a series that will help people with diabetes and their family members manage diabetes.

"Dining with Diabetes" will meet every Thursday in April from 2 until 4 p.m. for four weeks beginning April 4 at the Friendsville Community Building at 952 Old River Road.

The first session will deal with the cause and effects of diabetes. Each session will have a guest speaker. There will also be discussions and cooking demonstrations. Because nutrition is considered the cornerstone of diabetes management, Beverly R. Carvell, nutrition educator, will be discussing how to cook with artificial sweeteners, low-fat products, herbs, and spices. Class participants will get recipe booklets, watch cooking demonstrations, and taste foods made with less fat, sugar, and salt.

This grant-funded program is free to people with diabetes and their family members or caretakers. No products will be sold at the classes. Spaces are limited. Persons may call 301-334-6960 to enroll.

The delegate added, however, that the legislation could be introduced again next year, if needed, which would give county officials more time to further develop the project.

The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee will also hold a hearing on the bill, cross-filed as SB 423, on Saturday, March 23, at 1 p.m. in Room 3 of the West Miller Senate Building. Persons wishing to express support for the bill may call the committee toll free at 1-800-492-7122, ext. 3690, or Senator John Hafer's office at 1-800-492-7122, ext. 3435.

Senate Backs Pre-Session Peek At Campaign Donors

by Kathleen Johnston Jarboe
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland Senate Tuesday passed the first of several proposed campaign finance reforms, a bill to allow more timely access to the identities of those who donate money just before the General Assembly begins each year. Now those donations aren't disclosed until seven months after the session's end.

About $1.35 million was contributed to state lawmakers from November to January, just before the 2000 session started, according to a Common Cause of Maryland report. The Maryland General Assembly meets from mid-January to mid-April each year. Advocates argue the public should know who is contributing money before lawmaking happens.

"This long delay in reporting contributions in the interim period close to the legislative session undermines the intent of that law and dramatically weakens the effectiveness of disclosure," said Janet Levine, president of Common Cause of Maryland.

Contributions are prohibited during the legislative session to prevent possible conflicts of interest.

The Senate vote was 37 to 8, with vocal opposition. Many lawmakers said the public didn't care about the bill, only media and watchdog groups out to accuse lawmakers of wrongdoing at every turn.

"We're changing this date because someone has said we're doing something wrong," said Sen. Nathaniel Exum, D-Prince George's. "Are we going to let the media determine what's best for us?"

Many lawmakers said there was no difference between their late-year fundraisers and those the rest of the year.

Some legislators also said the change would burden their volunteer treasurers. The date change would make the treasurer's job more difficult, said Sen. Richard Colburn, R-Cambridge, after consulting his treasurer about the change.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Michael Collins, D-Baltimore County, reminded senators that the bill only changed a reporting deadline, it did not add reports.

A sponsor of a similar bill argued its merits. "It is an accountability bill," said Sen. Jean Roesser, R-Montgomery. "The people have a right to know."

The measure now awaits action in the House, where a similar bill has been heard. It would require lawmakers to submit a contribution report for the disputed period only if a lawmaker receives more than $5,000 during that time.

Other campaign finance reform bills under review include a study of public funding of campaigns and a measure to require employer and occupation disclosures from donors.

The Senate Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee has not moved on the disclosure measure. The committee killed an identical bill last year.

The Senate was scheduled to debate the study bill yesterday.

To not move forward is like ignoring what happened at Enron, said Sen. Paul Pinsky, D-Prince George's, the bill's sponsor. Pinsky became especially concerned about the issue after hearing of the existence of an Enron computer program. The bankrupt energy trading company used the program to track legislation and alert lobbyists to pending laws that would affect their company financially.

PERRY'S DONATES TO SCHOLARSHIP — The Garrett County 4-H/FFA Livestock Association Scholarship Fund received a donation from Parry's Solid Waste Disposal recently. Each year members of 4-H and FFA members, leaders, and parents work to clean the county fairgrounds following the conclusion of the Garrett County Fair, and each year Perry's makes a donation to the scholarship fund. The Oakland-based company also recruits other businesses to donate matching scholarship funds for aluminum can recycling. Perry's Earl Williams is pictured presenting the donation check to Vonda Moreland of the Livestock Association Scholarship Fund committee.

Students Urge Lawmakers To Support Cookie

By HANAH CHO
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Lobbyists usually bring sharp tongues when they speak before lawmakers, but Wednesday they brought sweet treats instead.

With individually wrapped apple oatmeal cookies in hand, 20 fifth-graders from Cecil County's Tome School tried to tempt lawmakers into designating the munchie as Maryland's state cookie. The children filed into a House hearing room with three large baskets, filled with 220 apple oatmeal cookies the students baked in the school's cafeteria.

"We think apple oatmeal cookies is a good choice because we don't think people recognize the farming people in Maryland," Caroline Kemp, 10, said before speaking to the House Commerce and Government Matters Committee. She and the other children gave a carefully rehearsed presentation, ending with applause from the audience and lawmakers.

Six students told the panel how a class project on the 50 states brought them to Annapolis, two years after beginning the assignment as fourth-graders. Their research took them to Massachusetts, which designated chocolate chip as its official cookie. That state symbol sparked their interest in a possible Maryland munchie. More study revealed apples and oats were locally grown.

The children then brought Delegate David Rudolph, D-Cecil, into the mix, who sponsored the bill with fellow Cecil County Delegate James Crouse. "The legislation is an outgrowth of student research on state government," Rudolph said. "The students have taken citizenship to a new level."

One of the student presenters is already familiar with the public service responsibilities of good citizenship. Scott Baker is the grandson of Sen. Walter Baker, D-Cecil, as Rudolph pointed out to the panel. "That doesn't help," quipped Chairman John Wood Jr., D-St. Mary's.

The student lobbyists didn't stop with enticing lawmakers at the hearing. They passed out cookies at the Lowe House Office and the Miller Senate buildings.

"Would you like an apple oatmeal cookie?" the girls asked legislative and administrative aides at the Senate Judiciary Proceedings Committee office. "We want to support Maryland farmers."

They proceeded into the committee hearing and handed out cookies to each member. Senate Judiciary Proceedings Committee Chairman Baker acknowledged the students from his grandson's school in North East.

"You all have a license to eat your cookies," the usually imperious chairman told his committee members.

It was a lot of work getting ready for the General Assembly, but the students said the project was worth it. Plus, they learned a lot and had fun, too.

"This experience has helped us become more aware of government," Scott Baker told lawmakers. "Maybe when you retire, we'll be ready to take your jobs."

Student lobbyists have had success in the past. Grade-schoolers in Allegany County last year pushed for calicos to become the official state feline.

Medicines for Blood Clot Prevention and Treatment

The clotting of blood is a normal body process, except in persons with "bleeding disorders." If clotting becomes excessive and uncontrolled, clots can clog small blood vessels. Clogged vessels can lead to strokes, heart attacks, and pulmonary embolism. Aspirin in low doses helps reduce the "stickiness" of blood platelets which are involved in the clotting process. They don't tend to clump together, so they can't become involved in the clotting of blood. Anticoagulant medicines prevent clots by slowing the action of "natural clotting factors." Anticoagulant medicines may be beneficial after heart attack, in persons with artificial heart valves, and in persons confined to bed for periods of time.

Medicines that dissolve blood clots are called thrombolytics. They may be lifesaving if given immediately after a heart attack occurs. These injectable medicines prevent the death of heart tissue by ensuring the flow of blood and oxygen to the heart muscle.

Lakers Sweep So. Maryland, Get Swept By Rappahannock

The baseball team of Garrett Community College officially opened its season this past week, although the Lakers did play an early game, originally unscheduled, with Bridgewater College about two weeks ago. They lost that contest, 8-3.

Garrett then bounced back last Friday to record a doubleheader sweep of Southern Maryland in La Plata, 7-4 and 4-3, but then dropped both ends of a doubleheader on Saturday to Rappahannock Community College, 7-6 and 2-0, to give them a 2-3 record. The Lakers were slated to play a single game yesterday at Potomac State College in Keyser, but that contest had to be postponed because of rain.

A three-run homer by Brian Rockwell in the top of the second inning gave the Lakers the lead for good in Friday's first game against Southern Maryland. The home team rallied for two runs in the bottom of that frame, but Garrett recorded three more runs in the top of the third to take a 6-2 advantage.

Ryan Wetzel and Neal Blewett each finished with two singles in the Lakers' eight-hit effort, and Joe Carper added a two-run single in the top of the third.

Earning the win on the mound was former Southern Ram Josh Bosley, who pitched the first five innings before getting relief from Chris Fisher.

Drew Binder pitched most of the second game for the Lakers, and combined for a four-hitter with Mike Berry, who took the mound in the seventh. Binder allowed the four hits and struck out five.

A two-run single by Dean Altavilla in the second inning broke a 2-2 tie and gave the Lakers the lead for good. Bosley, who finished with three singles, had an RBI in the first inning. Joe Walker hit two singles in the Lakers' seven-hit performance, and also scored a run.

Bob Kittle paced Southern Maryland's offensive effort with a two-run homer in the bottom of the second.

It was errors, five of them, and eight walks that cost the Lakers the first game against Rappahannock (Va.) CC on Saturday, as Garrett pitchers held the home team to just two hits.

The Lakers recorded six hits, with Altavilla rapping two singles for two RBI. Kurt Skasik stroked a double, scored twice, and had an RBI, while P.J. Ross provided a double.

Garrett settled down defensively in the second game, committed only one error, and allowed only three hits, but could not generate any runs offensively.

Mike Clemens and former Southern standout Josh Fitzwater, who came on in the sixth, combined to strike out eight batters, but Rappahannock took a 1-0 lead in the first and added an insurance run in the fifth while keeping the Laker base runners from crossing the plate.

Wetzel hit two singles and Rockwell added a double in the Lakers' five-hit effort.

The Lakers, coached by Ed Wildesen, are slated to host Ulster Community College this Friday for a single game and on Saturday for a doubleheader. They will entertain Penn State Beaver for a single game on Sunday and play at Allegany College of Maryland next Tuesday.

RECOGNIZING NHS WRESTLING CHAMPS — Three members of the Northern High School's wrestling team were recently recognized at the Garrett County Board of Education meeting for their performance at the Maryland Class 1A-2A wrestling championship tournament. Pete Stein, senior, 125-pound division, claimed the state champion title. He was also the state champion when he was in sophomore in the 103-pound division. Darric Kamp, junior, took second place in the 145-pound division, and Trey Brenneman, senior, placed third in the 275-pound division. The NHS team, which sent several wrestlers to the meet, finished fourth overall. Sixty-three teams participated in the tournament, which was held at Western Maryland College. ConDoerr, Midas, Copeland's Win In Mtn. Top Action Sunday's Mtn. Top Basketball League play saw the ConDoerr, Midas, and Copeland's squads take wins in the final slate of regular season action. The league playoffs get under way this Sunday afternoon.

Smiley's and ConDoerr played the first game of the day in a battle for first place and a first round bye in the league tournament. Despite playing without the services of standout Mike Harvey, Smiley's hung close and was up 40-34 at the half. ConDoerr stepped up its running game in the second half and held Smiley's to only 19 points over the final 16 minutes to take a 71-63 win. Dennis Gibson and Mike Saturday Jr. led ConDoerr with 21 and 16 points, respectively, and teammates Pete Brosnihan added 13 points and Poke Winters contributed 12 points. Smiley's placed four players in double figures as Joe Refosco netted 17 points, Jonathan Price had 16, Scott Shahan recorded 13, and Chris Ewing had 10.

In the second game, Midas jumped out to a 27-13 first quarter en route to an 84-62 win over 84 Lumber. The Lumbermen made their only run of the game in the second quarter by outscoring Midas 19-10 to close the gap to 37-32 at the half. Midas used its quickness to run away with the second stanza, as Joey DiSimone and Greg Inglese turned up the pressure on their way to tallying game totals of 27 and 19 points, respectively, mostly on breakaway layups and steals. 84 Lumber's Greg Mortimer continued his hot scoring with 29 points, highwater mark for the day's action, which included four buckets from three-point range. Teammate Gary Upole chipped in with 12 points.

In the final game of the day, what appeared to be a very close game at the outset turned into an 84-63 blowout for Copeland's as it ran away from Skiles by blistering the nets for a 27-8 first-quarter lead. The torrid pace continued as Copeland's scored 29 points in the second quarter on its way to a comfortable 58-25 halftime advantage that included 12 three-point buckets. Doug Copeland and Jason Shreve paced Copeland's to its 21-point victory by netting 23 points apiece. Shreve hit four three-pointers in the first half and one in the second stanza. Craig McConnell actually led the first half with five three-pointers before finishing with 22 points total, but accounted for just one point in the second half.

The league playoff pairings for this Sunday feature a 1 p.m. match-up between Plaza Hobby and Skiles, a 2 p.m. battle pitting Midas and Copeland's, and a 3 p.m. contest between Smiley's and 84 Lumber. Scoring duties for the respective contests will be performed by Copeland's, the winner of Game 1, and the winner of Game 2.

FSU "Greeks" Volunteer For Special Olympics

Members of two Greek organizations at Frostburg State University joined forces with FSU's Center for Volunteerism and National Programs to help out with the Special Olympics Maryland recently held at the Wisp Ski Resort.

The women of Alpha Sigma Tau and the men of Delta Chi spent the afternoon and evening assisting with the opening ceremonies held Sunday, Feb. 24, by setting up tents, posting signs, and cheering on the athletes. Some of the Greeks accompanied athletes from their home counties as they entered the competition area. The students also ate dinner with the athletes.

"Greeks are very involved in service," said Cherie Krug, director of FSU's Center for Volunteerism and National Service.

Shelly Ducatt, FSU's director of Greek Life and Leadership, agrees. "The University is putting a renewed emphasis on community service for Greek organizations and exploring what it means to provide service," she said.

Some of the Greek volunteers were among the 351 individuals who braved the lake's icy waters by participating in the Deep Creek Dunk, which alone raised more than $60,000. Others took part in the Reggae Fest benefit on Friday evening at the Wisp's Bear Claw Snow Tube Park. Joining them were members of FSU's women's softball team and their coach, Becky Keller.

"We are so appreciative and grateful," said Kim Novak, the senior director of Volunteer Resource Management for Special Olympics of Maryland.

Citing the increase in Greek participation since FSU students first became involved in the Special Olympics, Novak said, "Cherie Krug, Colleen Peterson (FSU's director of alumni affairs and associate vice president of university advancement), and Dr. Catherine Gira (FSU president) are the key to our success."

"It was a great end of a wonderful weekend," Krug said of Sunday's activities.

Special Olympics is an international organization dedicated to empowering individuals with mental retardation to become physically fit, productive, and respected members of society through sports training and competition. Special Olympics offers children and adults with mental retardation year-round training and competition in 26 Olympic-type summer and winter sports.

RAMS READY TO RUMBLE — With a simple goal — to repeat as Maryland Class 1A State champions — the 2002 Southern High School girls' varsity softball team is ready to take on all challengers this season. The senior-heavy squad returns with all but one starter from last year's team, and opens its campaign on Thursday, March 21, at Keyser. Pictured in Row 1, from the left, are Holly Sauder, Gina Reeves, Autumn Uphold, and Jenna Rush. Row 2: Assistant Coach Christy Eyler, Rachel Friend, Megan Bernard, Megan Burner, Samantha Skewerls, and Amber Bernard. Row 3: Melissa Flanagan, Erica Green, Becca Flanagan, Jennifer Bosley, Ashley Liller, and Head Coach Dave Bosley.

Those interested in participating in the tryouts should bring a glove, a copy of their birth certificate, and the registration fee. The fee is $20 for individual players, and $30 for family registration of two or more players from the same family. A parent or guardian is required to be on hand for the tryout.

For further information, persons may call Betsy Clare, OLL player agent, at 301-387-2043 after 5 p.m.

NHS BASEBALL TEAM HAS THE TOOLS — With a deep pitching roster and several strong hitters, the Northern High School 2002 varsity baseball squad has a foundation to build upon that could help it rise above a poor showing last season. Several fine returning starters, and some excellent rising prospects from last year's junior varsity squad and the unbeaten Hot Stove League champion Doarr unit, are key to head coach Phil Carr's hopes for a return to winning ways. Kneeling from the left are Dan Vagnetti, Elliott Perfetti, Jordan Brenneman, Bryan Lenhart, Chad Carr, Torrey Poholsky, and Derek Workman. Standing are Josh Perez, Trey Brenneman, Cliff Everett, Greg Whittemore, Jason Rice, Dan Ellis, Landon Southerly, and Kellen Baumgardner.

Southern Opens Hunt For Second State Crown Thursday At Keyser

The only thing more difficult than winning a championship may be repeating the feat the very next season. The Southern High School girls' varsity softball team has that goal firmly in mind as it embarks on a quest for a second consecutive Maryland Class 1A crown as the season opens at Keyser m a 4 p.m. Thursday, March 21 debut.

The Rams have to be the odds-on favorite heading into the upcoming campaign, as the lone face missing from the starting line-up of last year's 22-2 state champion squad is All-Area first team outfielder Stacy Scripp, who graduated last spring.

Southern head coach Dave Bosley and assistant coach Christy Eyler will bring a savvy, battle-tested squad to bear against the Rams' opponents. Seniors fill six of the nine starting spots: Jennifer Bosley, pitcher; Erica Green, first base; Ashley Liller, shortstop; Autumn Uphold, third base; Gina Reeves, catcher; and Megan Burner, outfield.

Juniors Amber Bernard and Megan Bernard have second base and an outfield slot sewn up, according to Coach Bosley, who added that he is still casting his net to come up with the third starting outfielder and a number 2 batter in the offensive line-up. "At this point all non-returning starters are being considered for the vacant outfield spot," stated the Rams' skipper, who has rolled up a 107-43 coaching record in his nine years at the helm.

The brightest light on a squad of returning stars, and in western Maryland as a whole, is superb pitcher and top hitter Jennifer Bosley, who earned her third straight All-Area Player of the Year honor last season. The righty tallied a 19-2 record, with her only losses coming by one run each to teams from much larger schools. She struck out an even 300 batters last season with a blazing fastball and a mesmerizing curve, and finished with an amazing 0.15 earned run average, allowing a measly 35 hits and giving just 35 walks in 133 innings of work.

Bosley also shone at the plate last year, leading Southern with a .461 batting average while swatting eight doubles, four triples, and five home runs on her way to chalking up a Ruthian .868 slugging average. She drove home 26 runs, scored 29 times, and the strikeout artist on the mound did not strike out a single time at the plate herself.

Returning for her final season in red and white, the senior brings with her an astounding array of career statistics as well: a 44-6 overall pitching record, 651 strikeouts in 329 innings with just 41 walks, and a 0.40 ERA. It's an understatement to say that as much as Bosley will be missed by her teammates once this season is completed, her WMIL opponents will have even stronger emotions on the other end of the spectrum at the prospect of not having to face her again on the mound or in the batter's box.

If Bosley is the backbone of the Rams' squad, Liller is its heart. The infield playmaker was named to the All-Area first team at shortstop for the second consecutive year last season as she batted .432, shared the team lead with 38 runs scored, stroked six doubles and three triples, and drove in 24 runs. Her fielding was superb, and she anchored the SHS infield defense along with Autumn Uphold at third base. She also won two games on the mound, whiffing 13 batters in 17 innings and tallying a 1.23 ERA.

Playing to Liller's right, All-Area first team third baseman Uphold went through the entire season without committing an error at the hot corner. She was the third leg in the Southern offensive juggernaut, batting .431, whacking six doubles, drawing six walks, and sharing the runs scored lead with Liller at 38.

A top-notch pitcher requires the services of an excellent catcher, and Southern has one of the best in Reeves, an All-Area honorable mention recipient last season. The dependable backstop has proven to be a perfect batterymate for Bosley as well as a strong hitter in her own right, recording a .347 mark last year.

Burner is another top-rated player at the plate and in the field; however, she and her fellow outfielders may at times feel a bit like Maytag repairmen when Bosley is on the mound. In the event a batted ball does leave the infield, the Rams' speedy outfield of Burner, Megan Bernard, and the third starter — possibly Melissa Flanagan — should get to it quickly.

The Rams will face several big tests during the regular season that should provide a clue as to their post-season chances. Their first 11 games are on the road, and include some long road trips to take part in the Calvert High and Martinsburg (W.Va.) High tournaments. Southern will also be going up against some teams from much larger schools, including Martinsburg, University High of Morgantown, W.Va., and 3A Urbana of Frederick County. Also on the slate is North Marion High (W.Va.), which recorded a 21-2 record last season.

"We're working on improving our offensive output and making the routine plays on defense," Coach Bosley said. "We'll need to do those things in order to reach our team goal of repeating as state champs."

NHS Fielding, Pitching Seen As Key To Rebound From Doldrums

The 2002 Northern High School varsity baseball team is working hard to improve on a disappointing 7-14 season last year, according to NHS head coach Phil Carr, who said his Huskies need to stress their glove work to supplement their strong pitching staff. "One thing we need to do to be competitive from the outset is improve our defensive performance from last year," Carr stated.

NHS will get its first test this coming Thursday, March 21, as the campaign gets under way with a 3:30 p.m. road opener at Allegany.

The Huskies return nine players from last season's roster, with major shoes to fill of the departed Mark Wolf, Jeremy Frazee, and Greg Speicher. Leading the way this year are returning senior starters Greg Whittemore at shortstop, Bryan Lenhart at catcher, and Trey Brenneman at first base, plus junior Landon Southerly at second base. Other returning players who had some spot starts last year are seniors Elliott Perfetti and Josh Perez, and juniors Jordan Brenneman, Dan Vagnetti, and Cliff Everett.

Whittemore led the team last year with a .361 avg (22-61), as he smacked four doubles, one home run, and drove in 12 runs. Lenhart hit .271 (16-59), led the team with five doubles, and hit two home runs. Trey Brenneman hit .269 (14-52) and led the team in home runs with three and RBIs with 19.

Among the players who battling for infield positions are Vagnetti and sophomore Derek Workman at third base, Ellis at shortstop, and sophomore Jason Rice at second base. Those vying for outfield slots are Perfetti, Perez, senior Kellen Baumgardner, juniors Jordan Brenneman, and Cliff Everett, and sophomores Torrey Poholsky, Chad Carr, and Dan Ellis. Also seeing time behind the plate will be Carr and Perfetti.

"One of the strengths of this year's team should be our pitching staff," stated Carr as he noted his staff's experience and depth. Returning to the mound is Whittemore, who led the team in innings pitched with 39.1 and picked up two wins and a save in nine mound appearances. Another returner is Vagnetti, who led the team with three victories, struck out 20 batters in 31.2 innings, and recorded a save. Lenhart worked 17.2 innings last year, and Everett worked four innings.

New Husky hurlers are sophomore lefthander Torrey Poholsky, and righty classmates Rice and Ellis. Each of that trio pitched in the junior varsity program a year ago. "I think we have enough quality guys to give us good depth and the ability to give us a solid effort each time out," commented the Huskies' skipper.

"The key to our season will be improving our fielding in order to play more solid defense behind our pitchers. Our hitting may be a little weak at the beginning, but I'm counting on the guys to get better as the season progresses. Even though we only lost three seniors, I still feel we are a young team with not a great deal of varsity experience — but we will get it as we go along.

"I think we will be a much improved team this 2001-02 Deer Kill Numbers Decline In Md.

Unfavorable hunting conditions and weather led to a 1 percent decline in Maryland's total deer hunting season harvest figures for 2001-02, which numbered 83,787 deer. A total of 82,206 white-tailed deer and 1,581 sika deer were bagged.

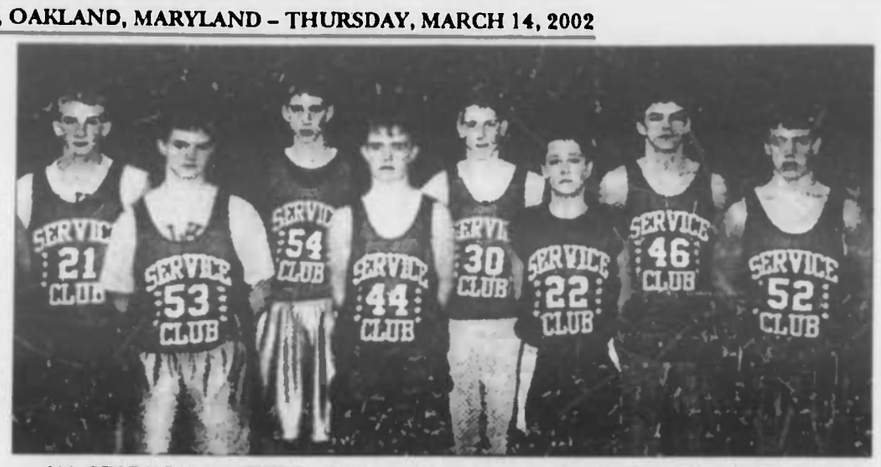
Fog, wind, rain, and unseasonably warm temperatures during the two-week firearms season contributed to a 13 percent decline in harvest numbers. Firearm deer hunters took 42,321 deer, down from 48,248 in the previous year.

Bow and muzzleloader seasons set new deer harvest records. Bow hunters took 18,356 deer, a 1 percent increase from 2000-01. Muzzleloader deer hunters bagged 23,110 deer, a 26 percent increase from the previous year.

The top 10 counties for the 2001 total deer harvest were Frederick, 8,054; Washington, 7,259; Allegany, 7,220; Garrett, 6,264; Carroll, 4,499; Dorchester, 4,397; Baltimore, 4,392; Kent, 3,896; Worcester, 3,737; and Montgomery, 3,546.

"Hunting is an important component of many localized deer management programs that incorporate other lethal, nonlethal, and educational tools," a DNR spokesperson said, adding that Maryland deer hunters spend over 1.1 million days pursuing white-tailed and sika deer across the state.

During the 2001-02 season, Maryland deer hunters donated 45 tons of venison to the needy through the non-profit organization Farmers and Hunters Feeding the Hungry.



ALL-STARS TO COMPETE - This group of outstanding players from the senior division of the Service Club Basketball League, all eighth grade students, will be among the teams participating in the upcoming 19th annual Silver Hoop Classic at Fort Hill High School in Cumberland and the eighth annual Gene Scalette Memorial Tournament at Westmar High School. Pictured from left, front row, are: Nick Gregg, Jason Wakefield, Jimmy Hinebaugh, and David Reams. In the back are: Brett DeWitt, Evan Lantz, Nathan Harris, and Andrew VanBogelen. Not present for the photo were Joey Treasler and Jeremy Sines. The team is coached by Doug Copeland and Jon Hagaman.

DNR Seeks Input On Proposed Hunting And Trapping Changes

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife and Heritage Service is seeking public input on its proposed hunting and trapping season dates and bag limits for resident game species and select migratory game species for both the 2002-03 and 2003-04 hunting license years. Maryland's hunting license year is Aug. 1 through July 31.

"We need to hear from hunters and other Marylanders interested in the state's wildlife as we finalize our new regulations," said Paul Peditto, director of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Service. "These comments will be taken into consideration, along with the recommendations from our biologists, to devise regulations that benefit our citizens as well as our natural resources." DNR is soliciting public comment on the proposals, which may be submitted via telephone, mail, fax, or e-mail, or during an upcoming public information meeting in Cumberland (details appear below).

The full list of proposals affecting the entire state is available on DNR's web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/huntingseasonproposals. Highlights of proposed changes that would include specific impacts on Garrett County, which is located entirely within Region A, follow:

•Eliminate Bonus Deer Stamps for antlerless deer, and require them for the taking of a second antlered deer Bonus Deer Stamps would only be required for hunters who pursue antlered white-tailed deer. No stamp would be required for the first antlered deer taken in each of the three seasons and in each of the four regions. This is being done to encourage the taking of antlerless deer to improve deer population control.

•Change the opening and closing dates of the statewide deer archery season. As deer seasons have lengthened over the years, upland game hunters, fox chasers, and trappers have lost opportunities, especially in the latter part of the hunting season. Deer archery season currently runs for 4½ months. It will continue to run for 4½, but will start Sept. 1 and conclude on Jan. 15, unless either date is a Sunday.

•Limit Region A archery hunters to only one antlered deer. In Region A, a high proportion of yearling bucks are harvested annually. Reducing the harvest of antlered deer will improve the age structure of the deer population in Region A. Archery hunters would be limited to no more than one antlered deer in Region A.

•Increase the number of days a hunter may take antlerless deer on private land during the early muzzleloader season in Region A. Antlerless deer populations continue to increase on private land in Region A. In an effort to slow this growth, DNR is recommending that antlerless deer be harvested on private land during all three days of this season.

•Clarify the time of year when certain furbearers may be hunted at night with the use of lights and predator calls. Current law allows the hunting of coyotes at anytime any other hunting season is permitted. Raccoons and opossum can be hunted at night with a light from Oct. 15 until Feb. 15. Coyotes will be added to this same time frame.

•Allow the use of recorded and amplified calls for certain furbearers. Current statute allows coyotes to be hunted at anytime any other species is hunted. Recorded and amplified calls are allowed for foxes and crows. Adding these species to this regulation will bring the regulation in line with the law.

DNR Sets Hunter Safety Course

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources will offer to the public a hunter safety course on March 26, 28, and 30 at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center. Classes on Tuesday, March 26, and Thursday, March 28, will be from 6 until 9 p.m. The class on Saturday, March 30, will be from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. and will be held at the Savage River State Forest shooting range.

A $5 registration fee is due the first night of the class and is not refundable. Class size is limited to 35 participants. Interested persons must call 301-777-2136 to preregister.

ear," Carr continued. "We have the right attitude and the work ethic has been good. We have a lot of competition going on every night with players trying to earn a starting position. We have been fortunate so far to be outside for some practices, and that should help as we prepare for Allegany next Thursday. We hope to scrimmage downstate this weekend.

"Our schedule is tough with Southern, Alco, and Ft. Hill, but we just want to take one game at a time and work to improve each outing. The Huskies want to be a competitive team going into May," said Carr, whose assistant coaching crew consists of John Helmick, Jon Houser, Jamie Workman, and Ed Carr.

Smoker Embarks On Quest To Quit; Relating Experience Through Series

Glenn Tolbert, a Garrett County resident, is embarking on a quest to quit smoking tobacco. In a series of articles beginning with today's issue, he will describe his addiction and, with luck and perseverance, his road to a smoke-free life. Part one of the series is as follows:

GLENN TOLBERT

Part I,
A Smoker's Confessions
by Glenn Tolbert

Please. If you meet me on the sidewalk or in the hallways, don't lecture. I know, I know. Smoking is not only the single worst thing that you can do for your health, but it is incredibly expensive. I know.

But hey, I'm not the only person in the country who knows all of this yet keeps doggedly puffing. There are 46 1/2 million of us guys and gals still lighting up every year. And more than 778,000 Marylanders smoke cigarettes.

Closer to home, it's about 20 percent of us Garrett Countians who had the guts to admit to someone taking a survey that, yes, they are smokers. And I bet they all have their reasons. I know I do.

My biggest and perhaps only reason is that I enjoy — no, love — everything about smoking cigarettes — except for the consequences. And most of those are only just now beginning to make their presence known.

I like pulling a single cigarette out of a new pack because that means there are lots of them left. I love the act of placing it between my lips and even the sound of flicking on the lighter. I love that first, sensual, pulling of smoke deep into my lungs. And I also can't imagine not having that feeling of release when its time to slowly empty the chest and watch the smoke waft into the air.

Smoking is something that I can depend on. It's a simple action that I can complete — with total competency. It's so simple that it requires hardly any actual thought. It's automatic. And perhaps more importantly, it's a series of very deliberate actions that seem to fill my brain with a chemical that leaves the senses heightened. That's important in a world where the pressure to perform is almost constant.

Oscar Wilde said it best (he always does, doesn't he) when he quipped: "Smoking is the perfect vice because it never leaves you completely satisfied." In other words, unlike alcohol or other drugs, you can pretty much just keep smoking until you run out of them and even then you're still left wanting another. Try that with most other vices and you've either passed out or your heart has stopped.

Despite Mr. Wilde's cleverness with words, the time for me to quit has come. Mr. Wilde's witticisms never mentioned the horribleness that can be caused by "the perfect vice." All of us, especially we smokers, know them like a mantra: lung cancer, cancer of the esophagus, lip and mouth cancer, and on and on and on . . . .

There's also the appeal to vanity for those thinking of quitting. Smokers often develop yellowed, heavily wrinkled skin. Add to these facts a very personal one. I've reached the age of 50. Climbing up steps is now about C-L-I-M-B-I-N-G and not just stepping up. And the accompanying huffing and puffing is embarrassing.

There's also this gut that keeps getting bigger. Its daily expansion occurs because smoking makes exercise about as much fun as scuba diving without air tanks. That lack of interest in keeping the body in shape explains the nagging little number of 400,000. That's how many of us Americans die every year from smoking cigarettes.

And then there's the money. Even buying the cheapest brands means shelling out nearly $3 for what amounts to half a day of lighting up for this smoker. Multiply that per-day expense over a month and then a year and well . . . it makes me so upset I NEED a cigarette.

Oh, and finally the shame factor. You can see us smokers huddled outside our office buildings even in sub-zero weather. Passers-by must be thinking that we are a pitiful sight, willing to stand out in the brutal cold, just to get our fix of nicotine. And more and more lately, I've been feeling that those passers-by are right.

So what to do? How to do it?

I've tried the "cold turkey" method. I made it without cigarettes for several weeks. It was pretty easy except for the fact that every nerve ending in my body screamed something like "Why are you trying to kill us all?" My hands also got bored.

Then I tried the "cutting back" method. But I couldn't smoke just one or two. I had to finish the pack and then the next pack and then . . . . Yes, I finally admitted to myself, I needed help.

That brought me to the office of one Michael Wilburn. Mike (as he wants to be called) has a desk inside the Garrett County Health Department's shiny new (and smoke-free) building. Mike has that healthy glow of a former college football player who doesn't smoke. Turns out that healthy glow is an accurate indicator. He doesn't smoke. But the 44-year-old community health educator in tobacco cessation does admit to being hooked on snuff once.

"Good," I thought to myself. "At least he had a serious snuff problem. That means he has some understanding of the grip that tobacco can have on a person."

Mike Wilburn is a very up-front, tell-it-like-it-is kind of guy. Maybe that has something to do with his West Virginia roots where he received his master's degree in safety and environmental management. Or maybe it's just Mike. Anyway, he was very open about the success rate of the four classes in smoking cessation he has already led. He didn't claim that everyone in the classes quit for good or even quit for a little while. And while he doesn't have any stats for the latest class, out of 28 in the first three groups he led, eight people have quit smoking. He's happy with that. I'll be happy if I become one of the quitters when I begin his next class on Monday at 5:30 at the health department.

The classes are free. And they're going to hand out (also free) those prohibitively expensive nicotine patches. The reason Mike has his job and can hand out those patches is because of monies from court orders requiring tobacco companies to donate $206 billion spread over 20 years for programs like the one Mike is running. Garrett County got $64,625 of that money for this year. Not exactly a generous grant to us here in Appalachian Maryland, especially when your eyes and mind go back up to that $206 billion figure.

But that little bit of money is being wisely used here. It pays Mike an hourly wage and buys those nicotine patches. It also pays for school programs and helps state troopers enforce smoking rules. What that small budget can't provide is what some of the counties who have larger appropriations can offer — things like the drug Zyban that has a proven track record in helping smokers to quit.

And don't look for any wagon from Mike's department pulling up in your community to offer help in quitting cigarettes. You have to live way east of here for that service. But Mike tells all this in a uncomplaining, factual manner. He's more than willing to work with what the county has given his program.

Mike shared some stories that show how addicted some of his students have been.

"One guy would pick up lit cigarettes thrown the windows of passing cars," he said. "Another would search those sand-filled ashtrays full of dirty butts for the ones that 'looked the best.'"

If you're wondering — after both of those guys took the class, the guy who waited for a cigarette to fly out of a car is still smoking. The fellow who would dig through big, sand-filled ashtrays quit for good.

My own stories aren't as interesting. But I do remember risking life and limb during a monstrous Garrett County ice storm to drive on bald tires from a cozy, safe home at 2 a.m. to a store that sold cigarettes. That's addiction. And that's what I hope Mike and his colleagues and my fellow classmates can help me with, beginning this coming Monday.

It all makes me a tad nervous. Yes, that means I need a cigarette. You'll be kept posted if that will always be the case in regular episodes in this newspaper. Maybe my efforts, reported openly and honestly on these pages, will have an effect on your smoking habits or on those of someone you know. Wish me luck.

DNR Seeks Input On Changes

•Add one additional week to the end of the spring season for wild turkeys. Turkeys are established in all counties of the state and continue to increase in many areas. DNR is proposing to add an additional week to the end of the spring season. The fifth week will provide additional hunting opportunities with little effect on the population.

DNR is hosting three public information meetings around the state to provide opportunities for interested persons to comment on the proposed regulation changes. DNR biologists will give presentations regarding the proposed hunting regulations, and will discuss the status of game populations, ongoing research activities, and management considerations. Citizens will be able to provide their input as well.

This area's meeting is set for 7 p.m. Thursday, March 21, in the cafeteria of Fort Hill High School in Cumberland. For those unable to attend, written comments may be mailed to Paul Peditto, Director, DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service, Tawes State Office Building E-1, Annapolis, MD 21401. Citizens may also call 410-260-8540 or toll-free in Maryland at 1-877-620-8DNR, ext. 8540. Comments may also be sent by fax to 410-260-8596, or via e-mail to customerservice@dnr.state.md.us. Comments received by e-mail will be posted on the agency's web site.

Public comment on the proposed regulations will be accepted until 4 p.m. Friday, April 5. Following consideration of public comment, the DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service will present proposed regulations to Maryland's Wildlife Advisory Commission on Wednesday, April 10.

THANK YOU

I would like to publicly thank all the wonderful residents of Oakland who supported my town council campaign. I would also like to thank the individuals that worked on my behalf to made our victory possible. I wish to thank the other candidates for a spirited and positive race. In addition, the poll workers and the town employees that made the election possible are much appreciated.

OTT Schedules Auditions For Spring Comedy

Social Security, a comedy by Andrew Bergman, is scheduled for April 25-28 and May 2-5 at Our Town Theatre. Auditions for the play are set for Sunday and Monday at the theatre.

The play has six adult parts (two females ages 30-50; one female, age 60+, two males ages 30-50, and one male, age 60+). Auditions will take place on Sunday, March 17, from 7-9 p.m., and Monday, March 18, from 7-10 p.m. at the theatre.

Those who wish to try out for the play but who cannot make either of these dates should call the theatre at 301-334-5640 and leave a message for Director Jane Avery, who will schedule separate auditions for them.

Avery said Social Security is about a middle-aged couple who are art dealers in New York City. "Their domestic tranquility is shattered by the arrival of the wife's 'goodie, goodie' sister and her uptight CPA husband, who dump the wife's difficult mother on the couple. Things are in utter chaos until the mother finds a boyfriend.

"This wonderful play is for adults; there are some risque references in it, and at times the language is scurrilous, but the message of the play is what is important," Avery said.

Questions concerning the production should be directed to Avery at 301-334-5640.

Teen Book Club Schedules April Book Discussion

The Ruth Enlow Library Teen Book Club will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 6, in the Oakland library. All teens are invited to attend. The book selection is an original retelling of the classic fairy tale Beauty and the Beast titled Beast by Donna Jo Napoli. In this bold story Napoli seeks to answer the question "Who was Beast, before Beauty found him?"

"Orasmyn is a young Persian prince with all the privileges and responsibilities his royal position holds," the book jacket explains. "But when he falters, and makes a single wrong decision, his pride angers 'a pari' — a fairy — who sets an ancient curse into motion, crucially changing his life on the worst day possible, and forcing him to leave his beloved Persia and his precious family in order to escape death at his father's unwitting hands.

"With all the cunning he can muster from his human memories and his new beastly instincts, Orasmyn makes his way to India and back, across Europe to France, in search of redemption and forgiveness. Beast is his story. A French beauty named Belle is his redeemer. And then you know the rest. But this is before the rest."

All teens are invited to attend Teen Book Club discussions, and a copy of the book may be reserved by calling the library at 301-334-3996. The club's May discussion will focus on the popular young adult novel The Body of Christopher Creed by Carol Plum-Ucci. For further information, persons may consult the library's web site at www.relib.net.

Percussive Dance Ensemble Opens GLAF Season

Footworks, a percussive dance ensemble, will open the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's season on Friday, March 22, in the Garrett Community College auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m.

A full-time company since 1979, Footworks has entertained audiences in the United States, Canada, United Kingdom, and Japan. The dancers performed for GLAF in 2000 to a sold-out-audience.

Most recently, Footworks was the guest artist in the London run of the show Riverdance and sold out its own five-week tour of the UK. The show also drew "rave" reviews on a tour sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution as one of eight groups chosen to represent American culture in Japan.

The group is under the direction of Eileen Carson, who received a two-year National Endowment for the Arts Choreography Fellowship in 1994.

The Green Grass Cloggers were formed in 1971, and their love for traditional dance and music inspired them to seek out and learn from the old-time buck dancers and flatfooters of North Carolina, Virginia, and Tennessee. This group is noted for popularizing traditional Appalachian clogging, and was one of the first teams to carry the form from competition stages to performing arts venues. In 1979, three of these dancers, one of whom was Carson, who went on to form the Fiddle Puppet Dancers.

The Fiddle Puppet Dancers, who changed their name to Footworks in 1994, have become "renowned for respecting the integrity of traditional dance while staging it to meet professional performance standards."

Footworks went on to study with masters of many forms of traditional percussive dance, including Irish, Scottish, English, African, and African American.

Tickets are $15 for adults, $5 for GCC students, and $5 for youth 18-years and younger. It is recommended to purchase tickets in advance by calling the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. Tickets will also be sold at the door, if still available.

Sponsor partners are Judy and Jan Finkel, Tom and Judy Hudson, and Computer Associates International.

Season sponsors for GLAF are the Sprenger-Lang Foundation, Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Lake Realty, and Deep Creek Mountain Resort.

GLAF is supported in part by grants from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency funded by the state of Maryland and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Children's Play Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University Children's Theatre Productions will present Hauncho the Hamster on Saturday and Sunday, March 16 and 17, at 2 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre. A small fee will be charged at the door.

Hauncho is the lovable hamster of Kendall Kip, a young boy whose parents have left him in the care of his Aunt Leena while they look for a new home in Colorado. Kendall is confused by the absence of his parents. With the help of his friend, Hauncho, he travels into the hamster house in an attempt to find Colorado and his parents. Other characters include Shank Longfinger, the childeatcher; Profitess Palmetto, the fortune-teller and resident know-it-all; and the Bewilderbeast. Wild adventure ensues as Kendall learns lessons about friendship, family and the truth.

The play has a running time of 40 minutes.

For more information, persons may call FSU's University Theatre at 301-687-4145.

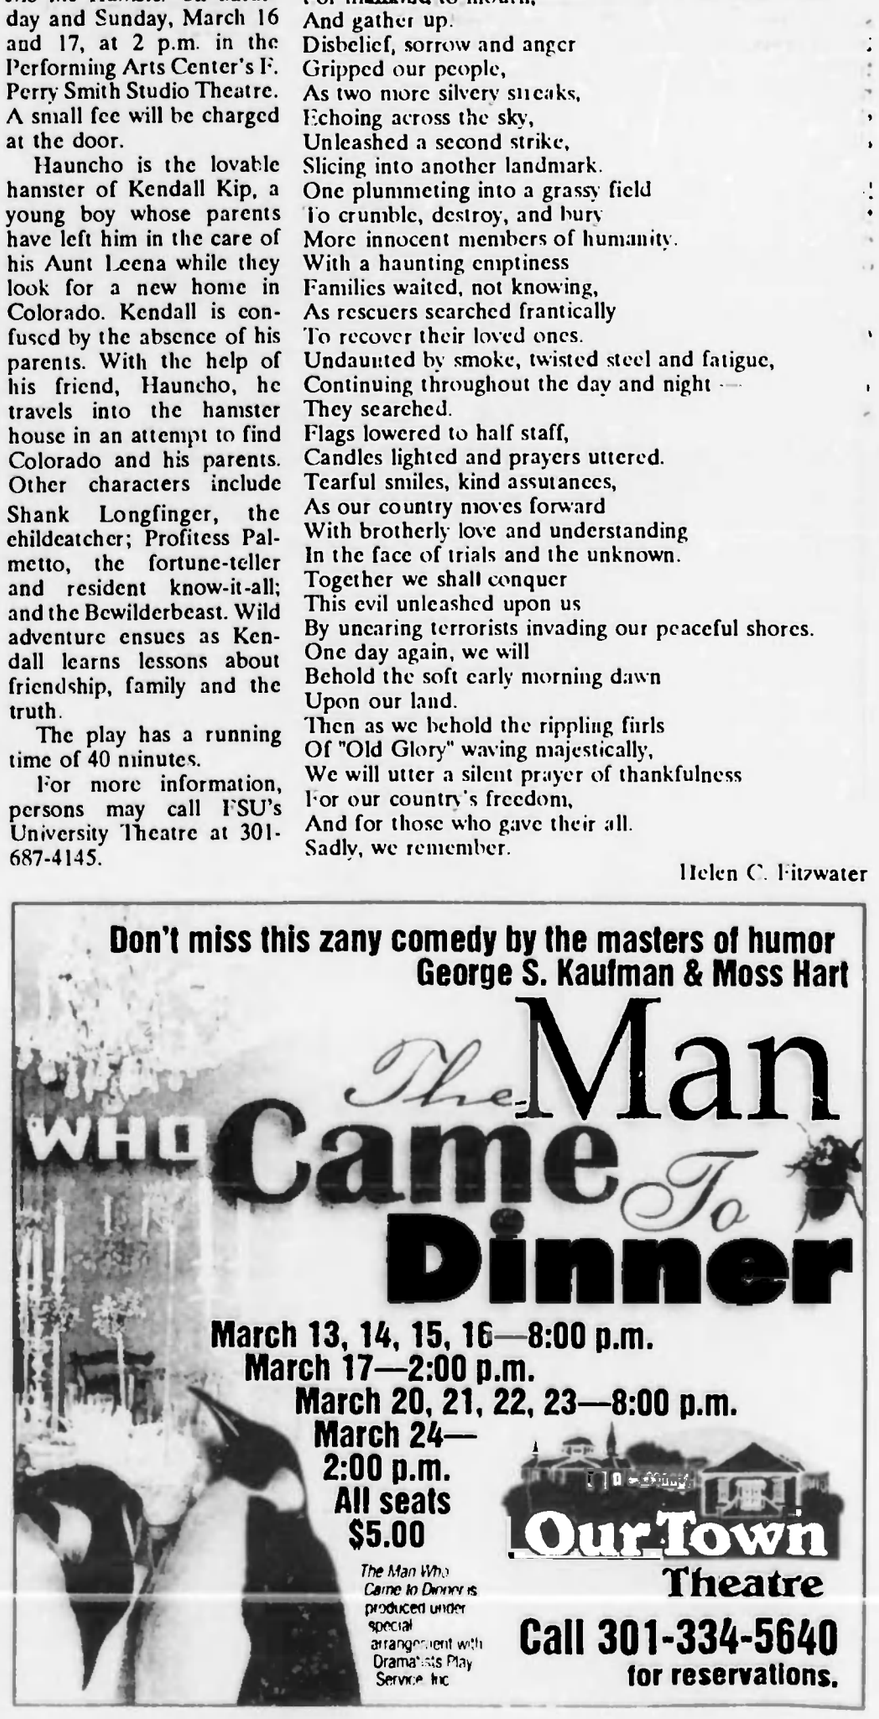
Garrett County, Maryland

WE REMEMBER

Soft glow of early morning dawn,
Sweet upon the peaceful, glorious earth.
Birds soaring to lofty heights —
All nature was in tune.
Families uttered good-byes,
Going their separate ways
To school, work, travel and
The various assortment of activities
That make up the daily routine
Of a busy, bustling life.
Above the city, among the clouds,
Gliding a bit off course,
Glistening wings found their way
To towering skyscrapers,
And reduced their very being
To mere rubble and ash,
For mankind to mourn,
And gather up.
Disbelief, sorrow and anger
Gripped our people,
As two more silvery streaks,
Echoing across the sky,
Unleashed a second strike,
Slicing into another landmark.
One plummeting into a grassy field
To crumble, destroy, and bury
More innocent members of humanity.
With a haunting emptiness
Families waited, not knowing,
As rescuers searched frantically
To recover their loved ones.
Undaunted by smoke, twisted steel and fatigue,
Continuing throughout the day and night —
They searched.
Flags lowered to half staff,
Candles lighted and prayers uttered.
Tearful smiles, kind assurances,
As our country moves forward
With brotherly love and understanding
In the face of trials and the unknown.
Together we shall conquer
This evil unleashed upon us
By uncaring terrorists invading our peaceful shores.
One day again, we will
Behold the soft early morning dawn
Upon our land.
Then as we behold the rippling furls
Of "Old Glory" waving majestically,
We will utter a silent prayer of thankfulness
For our country's freedom,
And for those who gave their all.
Sadly, we remember.

Helen C. Fitzwater



BENJAMIN HINKLE SINCELL was the editor of The Republican from 1890 until 1946, and was witness to a great many changes in Garrett County and the world. Two world wars anguished the nation during his tenure, but in that time he also observed the advent of aviation, as well as the invention and development of the automobile and telephone, to name just a few world-changing items. He maintained his Republican Party affiliation and wrote extensively about the politics of his time, but he also allowed much column space for the events and activities of a young Garrett County, as well as room for the celebration of family and friendships.

125th Anniversary

The Editor's Life Circa 1890-1946

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Benj. Sincell, known by most simply as "B.H.," was the second editor of The Republican newspaper, purchasing it in 1890 from Captain James Hayden. Sincell published his first edition on the day he turned 21: July 11, 1890. His educational background consisted of just elementary school, which was the only schooling available at the time. His eloquent and articulate writing style belies his lack of formal training, however.

"Although young in experience as well as in years," he wrote in his first editorial, "we nevertheless assume control of this journal determined to make it a faithful expositor of the wishes of the people and a truthful recorder of the affairs of our county .... The possibilities of our county are great — in fact cannot be estimated now — and to its development and welfare we shall exert our best endeavors."

Six days a week, Sincell remained at the helm of the paper. He worked alone for the first several years, and slowly added employees, one by one. The entire staff did not number more than five or six, however, even at the time of his death.

He stayed at his editor post for 56 years, until about 1946, when his health completely failed. He died on January 11, 1947. In those 56 years, he wrote nearly 3,000 editorials, in addition to thousands upon thousands of local stories. Occasionally his news columns contained his own musings about his career, such as the following, printed on July 1, 1920:

The country newspaper office, with its odor of printer's ink and the constant call of cold type, where the editor is required to be reporter, editor, business manager, publisher, to look after subscriptions and see to ads and collections, not to mention giving attention as a leading citizen to the affairs of his community, is one of America's greatest universities.

It was hard, perpetual, deadline-fueled work. And the newspaper business in a small community is not among the most profitable, as he wryly noted in the following missive:

HOW EDITORS GET RICH

While we are pointing out the avenues in various industries that lead to prosperity and while attempting to lend words of encouragement here and there to those who milk cows, make hay, cut and manufacture timber into a marketable product, mine coal, work at days labor in various fields of industry, we are not unappreciative of encouraging words for ourselves or suggestions that may lead us to prosperity also.

The other day, while reading the Rotary Reminder, we ran across a paragraph under the caption, "How An Editor Got Rich," which was, indeed, encouraging, for surely it pointed out one way that any editor who is sufficiently fortunate can get rich.

The story, briefly told, is as follows: "An editor who started poor 20 years ago has retired with the comfortable fortune of $50,000. This money was acquired through industry, economy, conscientious effort to give full value, indomitable perseverance, and the sudden death of an uncle, who left the editor $49,999.50."

We do not blame anyone for being envious of editors.

B.H. wrote many an editorial about the political climate of the time. The short opinion pieces were usually placed on page 4, underneath the masthead, and anyone intrigued by the history of United States presidents would surely find most of these pieces to be of supreme interest. He was a staunch supporter of the Republican Party, of course, although the issues of the first part of the 20th century were definitely different than those of this day and age. (The initial editorial on this page is a case in point.)

Women's right to vote was certainly supported in the pages of The Republican, as at the time it was often part of the Republican platform. B.H. supported women's suffrage for probably two reasons: he was a good Republican, and, perhaps more significantly, his wife, Lillian ("Tay") Byrne Sincell, was one of Oakland's leading suffragists.

The following appeared in The Republican in late 1919, not quite a year before women were granted the right to cast ballots. It exemplifies the age-old wisdom of those who farm for a living:

To the Women of This State

Is your husband interested in an appropriation for good roads? Your vote joined to his would be a help.

Do you believe that the rural schools should give your children the best educational advantages? The vote of all the women of the rural districts would be an influence that would help do this.

Is the country town nearest your home, with its poolroom and saloon, a fit place of recreation for your boy? If the women of that town had the vote, they would make it a more wholesome place.

When your girl leaves home to find work in the city, what of her health and safety? The women of that city are asking for the vote in order that they may offer her protection and better working conditions.

The man who said women were too scatter-brained and unreliable to be trusted with the ballot wasn't a Farmer.

The Farmer knows better. A farm that is run without a woman's help isn't much of a farm. And a government that is run without the advice of women is a one-sided government.

It is because the farmers of our Western States and of the Provinces of Canada knew this that they gave their women the right to vote.

How about the farmers of Maryland?

WOMEN FLOCK TO REGISTER

Tuesday was a busy day in the various registration offices of the County. It was the first day in the history of Maryland which, as a Colony and later a State, extends over a period of nearly three hundred years, when women had the same right as men to register as legal qualified voters in all elections hereafter to be held under the laws of the lands, and they exercised that right to an extent that was surprising not only to themselves but also to those of the sterner sex who in many instances gave expression to the belief that not one in a dozen women would grasp the opportunity to become voters.

From nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, at which hour the registration offices were thrown open, until nine o'clock in the evening,

Will Gun Toting Never Be Stopped?

"Whipping out a gun one of the gang shot and killed her."

"He carried a bag in which the police found a revolver."

"He pulled a revolver out of his overcoat pocket and fired at the policeman."

"The other man shot him through the breast."

Just a few of the day's crop of gun stories written on police station blotters of the large and small cities of the nation. It comes again and again and again. Over and over it is set down — "He carried a gun."

Gun toters!

How long is a civilized society going to permit the toting of guns? When are we going to stop putting revolvers into the hands of irresponsible boys and into the pocket of the desperado? Shall we never learn? Will we never profit by the lessons of hold-ups, of murders, of all the crimes of violence in which the gun toter pulls the trigger and sends a soul into eternity without a moment's warning?

Gun toting is a bad habit. It is a costly habit. It sends human beings to the gallows, and their victims to the grave. It fills jails, reformatories, and penitentiaries. It breaks the hearts of people. It makes necessary a larger police force and greatly increases the dangers every policeman faces when he protects the lives and property of law-abiding citizens.

The gun toting habit may be broken easily, quickly, and with no discomfort except to dealers in small firearms, by simply forbidding the sale or lease except to duly appointed and authorized police officials.

QUESTION: When was this editorial published in The Republican newspaper, and who penned it?

ANSWER: The editorial was that of the January 1, 1920, newspaper, written by Editor Benjamin Hinkle Sincell.

Simply Worn Out

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, extra care or serious feminine disorders with it almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact.

OTT Schedules Auditions For Spring Comedy

Social Security, a comedy by Andrew Bergman, is scheduled for April 25-28 and May 2-5 at Our Town Theatre. Auditions for the play are set for Sunday and Monday at the theatre.

The play has six adult parts (two females ages 30-50; one female, age 60+, two males ages 30-50, and one male, age 60+). Auditions will take place on Sunday, March 17, from 7-9 p.m., and Monday, March 18, from 7-10 p.m. at the theatre.

Those who wish to try out for the play but who cannot make either of these dates should call the theatre at 301-334-5640 and leave a message for Director Jane Avery, who will schedule separate auditions for them.

Avery said Social Security is about a middle-aged couple who are art dealers in New York City. "Their domestic tranquility is shattered by the arrival of the wife's 'goodie, goodie' sister and her uptight CPA husband, who dump the wife's difficult mother on the couple. Things are in utter chaos until the mother finds a boyfriend.

"This wonderful play is for adults; there are some risque references in it, and at times the language is scurrilous, but the message of the play is what is important," Avery said.

Questions concerning the production should be directed to Avery at 301-334-5640.

Teen Book Club Schedules April Book Discussion

The Ruth Enlow Library Teen Book Club will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 6, in the Oakland library. All teens are invited to attend. The book selection is an original retelling of the classic fairy tale Beauty and the Beast titled Beast by Donna Jo Napoli. In this bold story Napoli seeks to answer the question "Who was Beast, before Beauty found him?"

"Orasmyn is a young Persian prince with all the privileges and responsibilities his royal position holds," the book jacket explains. "But when he falters, and makes a single wrong decision, his pride angers 'a pari' — a fairy — who sets an ancient curse into motion, crucially changing his life on the worst day possible, and forcing him to leave his beloved Persia and his precious family in order to escape death at his father's unwitting hands.

"With all the cunning he can muster from his human memories and his new beastly instincts, Orasmyn makes his way to India and back, across Europe to France, in search of redemption and forgiveness. Beast is his story. A French beauty named Belle is his redeemer. And then you know the rest. But this is before the rest."

All teens are invited to attend Teen Book Club discussions, and a copy of the book may be reserved by calling the library at 301-334-3996. The club's May discussion will focus on the popular young adult novel The Body of Christopher Creed by Carol Plum-Ucci. For further information, persons may consult the library's web site at www.relib.net.

Percussive Dance Ensemble Opens GLAF Season

Footworks, a percussive dance ensemble, will open the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's season on Friday, March 22, in the Garrett Community College auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m.

A full-time company since 1979, Footworks has entertained audiences in the United States, Canada, United Kingdom, and Japan. The dancers performed for GLAF in 2000 to a sold-out-audience.

Most recently, Footworks was the guest artist in the London run of the show Riverdance and sold out its own five-week tour of the UK. The show also drew "rave" reviews on a tour sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution as one of eight groups chosen to represent American culture in Japan.

The group is under the direction of Eileen Carson, who received a two-year National Endowment for the Arts Choreography Fellowship in 1994.

The Green Grass Cloggers were formed in 1971, and their love for traditional dance and music inspired them to seek out and learn from the old-time buck dancers and flatfooters of North Carolina, Virginia, and Tennessee. This group is noted for popularizing traditional Appalachian clogging, and was one of the first teams to carry the form from competition stages to performing arts venues. In 1979, three of these dancers, one of whom was Carson, who went on to form the Fiddle Puppet Dancers.

The Fiddle Puppet Dancers, who changed their name to Footworks in 1994, have become "renowned for respecting the integrity of traditional dance while staging it to meet professional performance standards."

Footworks went on to study with masters of many forms of traditional percussive dance, including Irish, Scottish, English, African, and African American.

The Republican POETIC LICENSE
Garrett County, Maryland

WE REMEMBER

Soft glow of early morning dawn,
Sweet upon the peaceful, glorious earth.
Birds soaring to lofty heights —
All nature was in tune.
Families uttered good-byes,
Going their separate ways
To school, work, travel and
The various assortment of activities
That make up the daily routine
Of a busy, bustling life.
Above the city, among the clouds,
Gliding a bit off course,
Glistening wings found their way
To towering skyscrapers,
And reduced their very being
To mere rubble and ash,
For mankind to mourn,
And gather up.
Disbelief, sorrow and anger
Gripped our people,
As two more silvery streaks,
Echoing across the sky,
Unleashed a second strike,
Slicing into another landmark.
One plummeting into a grassy field
To crumble, destroy, and bury
More innocent members of humanity.
With a haunting emptiness
Families waited, not knowing,
As rescuers searched frantically
To recover their loved ones.
Undaunted by smoke, twisted steel and fatigue,
Continuing throughout the day and night —
They searched.
Flags lowered to half staff,
Candles lighted and prayers uttered.
Tearful smiles, kind assurances,
As our country moves forward
With brotherly love and understanding
In the face of trials and the unknown.
Together we shall conquer
This evil unleashed upon us
By uncaring terrorists invading our peaceful shores.
One day again, we will
Behold the soft early morning dawn
Upon our land.
Then as we behold the rippling furls
Of "Old Glory" waving majestically,
We will utter a silent prayer of thankfulness
For our country's freedom,
And for those who gave their all.
Sadly, we remember.

BENJAMIN HINKLE SINCELL was the editor of The Republican from 1890 until 1946, and was witness to a great many changes in Garrett County and the world. Two world wars anguished the nation during his tenure, but in that time he also observed the advent of aviation, as well as the invention and development of the automobile and telephone, to name just a few world-changing items. He maintained his Republican Party affiliation and wrote extensively about the politics of his time, but he also allowed much column space for the events and activities of a young Garrett County, as well as room for the celebration of family and friendships.

125th Anniversary

The Editor's Life Circa 1890-1946

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Benj. Sincell, known by most simply as "B.H.," was the second editor of The Republican newspaper, purchasing it in 1890 from Captain James Hayden. Sincell published his first edition on the day he turned 21: July 11, 1890. His educational background consisted of just elementary school, which was the only schooling available at the time. His eloquent and articulate writing style belies his lack of formal training, however.

"Although young in experience as well as in years," he wrote in his first editorial, "we nevertheless assume control of this journal determined to make it a faithful expositor of the wishes of the people and a truthful recorder of the affairs of our county . . . . The possibilities of our county are great — in fact cannot be estimated now — and to its development and welfare we shall exert our best endeavors."

Six days a week, Sincell remained at the helm of the paper. He worked alone for the first several years, and slowly added employees, one by one. The entire staff did not number more than five or six, however, even at the time of his death.

He stayed at his editor post for 56 years, until about 1946, when his health completely failed. He died on January 11, 1947. In those 56 years, he wrote nearly 3,000 editorials, in addition to thousands upon thousands of local stories. Occasionally his news columns contained his own musings about his career, such as the following, printed on July 1, 1920:

The country newspaper office, with its odor of printer's ink and the constant call of cold type, where the editor is required to be reporter, editor, business manager, publisher, to look after subscriptions and see to ads and collections, not to mention giving attention as a leading citizen to the affairs of his community, is one of America's greatest universities.

It was hard, perpetual, deadline-fueled work. And the newspaper business in a small community is not among the most profitable, as he wryly noted in the following missive:

HOW EDITORS GET RICH

While we are pointing out the avenues in various industries that lead to prosperity and while attempting to lend words of encouragement here and there to those who milk cows, make hay, cut and manufacture timber into a marketable product, mine coal, work at day's labor in various fields of industry, we are not unappreciative of encouraging words for ourselves or suggestions that may lead us to prosperity also.

The other day, while reading the Rotary Reminder, we ran across a paragraph under the caption, "How An Editor Got Rich," which was, indeed, encouraging, for surely it pointed out one way that any editor who is sufficiently fortunate can get rich.

The story, briefly told, is as follows: "An editor who started poor 20 years ago has retired with the comfortable fortune of $50,000. This money was acquired through industry, economy, conscientious effort to give full value, indomitable perseverance, and the sudden death of an uncle, who left the editor $49,999.50."

We do not blame anyone for being envious of editors.

B.H. wrote many an editorial about the political climate of the time. The short opinion pieces were usually placed on page 4, underneath the masthead, and anyone intrigued by the history of United States presidents would surely find most of these pieces to be of supreme interest. He was a staunch supporter of the Republican Party, of course, although the issues of the first part of the 20th century were definitely different than those of this day and age. (The initial editorial on this page is a case in point.)

Women's right to vote was certainly supported in the pages of The Republican, as at the time it was often part of the Republican platform. B.H. supported women's suffrage for probably two reasons: he was a good Republican, and, perhaps more significantly, his wife, Lillian ("Tay") Byrne Sincell, was one of Oakland's leading suffragists.

The following appeared in The Republican in late 1919, not quite a year before women were granted the right to cast ballots. It exemplifies the age-old wisdom of those who farm for a living:

To the Women of This State

Is your husband interested in an appropriation for good roads? Your vote joined to his would be a help.

Do you believe that the rural schools should give your children the best educational advantages? The vote of all the women of the rural districts would be an influence that would help do this.

Is the country town nearest your home, with its poolroom and saloon, a fit place of recreation for your boy? If the women of that town had the vote, they would make it a more wholesome place.

When your girl leaves home to find work in the city, what of her health and safety? The women of that city are asking for the vote in order that they may offer her protection and better working conditions.

The man who said women were too scatter-brained and unreliable to be trusted with the ballot wasn't a Farmer.

The Farmer knows better. A farm that is run without a woman's help isn't much of a farm. And a government that is run without the advice of women is a one-sided government.

It is because the farmers of our Western States and of the Provinces of Canada knew this that they gave their women the right to vote.

How about the farmers of Maryland?

WOMEN FLOCK TO REGISTER

Tuesday was a busy day in the various registration offices of the County. It was the first day in the history of Maryland which, as a Colony and later a State, extends over a period of nearly three hundred years, when women had the same right as men to register as legal qualified voters in all elections hereafter to be held under the laws of the lands, and they exercised that right to an extent that was surprising not only to themselves but also to those of the sterner sex who in many instances gave expression to the belief that not one in a dozen women would grasp the opportunity to become voters.

From nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, at which hour the registration offices were thrown open, until nine o'clock in the evening,

Will Gun Toting Never Be Stopped?

"Whipping out a gun one of the gang shot and killed her."

"He carried a bag in which the police found a revolver."

"He pulled a revolver out of his overcoat pocket and fired at the policeman."

"The other man shot him through the breast."

Just a few of the day's crop of gun stories written on police station blotters of the large and small cities of the nation. It comes again and again and again. Over and over it is set down — "He carried a gun."

Gun toters!

How long is a civilized society going to permit the toting of guns? When are we going to stop putting revolvers into the hands of irresponsible boys and into the pocket of the desperado? Shall we never learn? Will we never profit by the lessons of hold-ups, of murders, of all the crimes of violence in which the gun toter pulls the trigger and sends a soul into eternity without a moment's warning?

Gun toting is a bad habit. It is a costly habit. It sends human beings to the gallows, and their victims to the grave. It fills jails, reformatories, and penitentiaries. It breaks the hearts of people. It makes necessary a larger police force and greatly increases the dangers every policeman faces when he protects the lives and property of law-abiding citizens.

The gun toting habit may be broken easily, quickly, and with no discomfort except to dealers in small firearms, by simply forbidding the sale or lease except to duly appointed and authorized police officials.

QUESTION: When was this editorial published in The Republican newspaper, and who penned it?

ANSWER: The editorial was that of the January 1, 1920, newspaper, written by Editor Benjamin Hinkle Sincell.

Simply Worn Out

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorders which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such pains in my back and I was caused by displacement of the womb. I suffered so much at the menstrual periods that my trouble was pronounced by a physician to be ovarian tumor and I would have to have an operation. I was in bed for over a year, unable to do my housework. That was an awful time for me as I was left with a young baby and five other children, so one day I wrote to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it helped me soon began to show in my health. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am now able to do my own housework and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicine to others who have troubles similar to mine and you can use my letter in any way."—Mrs. Park, Prospect St., Sandusky, Ohio.

THE TIME MACHINE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:35 - Released 3/8/02

There have been numerous movies and TV shows spawned by the writings of legendary British sci-fi/fantasy author H.G. Wells over the years, from The War Of The Worlds to The Invisible Man to The Island Of Dr. Moreau, and one of the most famous and popular is The Time Machine. A fascinating story about a man who travels into the distant future, it has been produced at least twice for TV and once on the big screen. Working from David Duncan's 1960 film screenplay, revamped for the new millenium by Gladiator co-writer John Logan, this would seem to be the authoritative version, as it is directed by Wells's own great-grandson, Simon Wells (with help from Gore Verbinski). As would be expected in this day of computer graphics, this version is certainly cram-packed with cool, futuristic effects, and it also contains a few interesting societal predictions reminiscent of Bicentennial Man or Spielberg's A.I. Otherwise, however, it's not much more than a standard re-hash, family ties or no, the most notable difference being that the action is transplanted from London to New York City, with an eminently standard performance by Guy Pearce as the titular machine's pilot.

It is 19th-century New York, and absent-minded physics professor Alexander Hartdegen (Pearce) is just about to ask his true love, Emma (Sienna Guillory), to marry him. Unfortunately she is killed in a freak accident before the evening is over, and Alex spends the next four years working on a way to turn back time to before that fateful night. Ignoring the pleas of his best friend (Mark Addy) and his maid (Phyllida Law) to move on, he creates a beautiful but unexplained machine in which he can sit and fly through time, watching the dramatic changes in the world around him without even needing to change his underdrawers. After an abortive attempt to save Emma, he abandons caution and sets the machine for the 2030s, during which he meets a computerized librarian with an attitude (Orlando Jones) and witnesses the moon's disintegration and the resulting chaos on Earth. At this point he is knocked unconscious and misses the best part of the film, a short but spectacular voyage through countless millennia and many digital CGI renderings. While the machine's wheels spin out of control, the landscape around it changes radically, with mountains rising and falling, streams carving huge chasms in the earth, desert wastelands and ice ages coming and going, and unprecedented drops in Microsoft and Disney stock.

Finally he wakes, and the machine comes to rest near a colony of primitive cliff-dwellers called Eloi, where he meets a beautiful babe named Mara (played by African/Irish pop singer Samantha Mumba) and her son Kalen (Mumba's younger brother Omero), who are the only two people still fluent in the "stone language" (English). Upon further investigation he discovers that the Eloi are constantly pursued and eaten by a race of grotesque creatures called Morlocks, who bear a striking resemblance to the Orcs from Lord Of The Rings, and whose leader is none other than Jeremy Irons in ice blue makeup and a fetching white wig. Alex must choose whether to get in his machine and leave these people to their problems, or stay and try to save Marra, on the off chance that she might go to bed with him.

This is a movie that lives or dies on its effects. If you take away the impressive computer imagery, you're left with characters who are not terribly well defined, and whose relationship interaction does not exist below the surface. Even Alex is not greatly developed; Pierce plays him like a sort of wondrous schoolboy rather than a 19th-century scientist and physics instructor forced to get his mind around the technology and society of the distant future. Furthermore, the film's shameless deus-ex-machina ending is not only ridiculous, but a radical departure from the source text. But this is an effects movie, and the computer-generated wizardry is certainly present and accounted for, even if the opportunity for social commentary or literary integrity has been left largely untapped. ★★★½

40 DAYS AND 40 NIGHTS

Teens love sex, and movie producers love money. It's a match made in Hollywood. From Michael Lehmann, whose first directorial effort was a 1988 USC film project tellingly titled Beaver Gets A Boner (he's also responsible for The Truth About Cats And Dogs and My Giant), comes the appallingly shallow 40 Days And 40 Nights, another entry in the endless continuum of teen comedies where sex is a contest and everyone is a beautiful, sexually desirable cardboard cutout. The freshman effort of writer Rob Perez, it centers around a young man who is so accustomed to casual sex, the idea of taking a 6-week break from orgasms seems unthinkable. I suppose we have Seinfeld to thank for this; the famous "Contest" episode brought the topic of masturbation, both male and female, out in the open in a way it hadn't been before. But the difference, you see, is that Seinfeld had writers.

San Francisco web designer Matt Sullivan (Josh Hartnett) has just suffered a devastating breakup with his longtime girlfriend Nicole (Vincssa Shaw), and he can't stop thinking about her. In fact, every night while he's having sex with some anonymous female, he sees visions of a black hole opening up in his ceiling. Symbolic, eh? So, since it's the beginning of Lent, he comes up with the perfect plan: he'll give up all sex and "sex-like acts" for the required 40-day period, cleanse his system, and forget about Nicole. The trouble is, he meets the perfect girl (Shannyn Sossamon, A Knight's Tale) and falls in love, but can't tell her about his vow lest she think he's some kind of pervert. Meanwhile, his roommate (Paulo Costanzo) and several other friends are so sure he can't do it, they start betting on what day he'll crack.

This movie was about the most excruciating hour and a half I've endured recently. There are a few humorous lines sprinkled here and there, and Costanzo is nicely quirky, but neither of the lead characters are likable enough to make us care about them, and Hartnett and Sossamon are nowhere. The premise of a celibacy contest is so classically contrived, it must be on page one of the "guide to writing teen sex comedies" handbook. Not only is Perez's pretext uninspired and hacky, it perpetuates the stereotypes of men controlled by their libidos and women who exploit that by sexually manipulating them. Both the sexes are thusly maligned.

One thing I can say for this movie is that it contains the laxicst use of flower petals since American Beauty. Other than that, it doesn't have much going for it. ★½

Hospice Classes For Volunteers Set For April

Hospice of Garrett County has scheduled volunteer training classes for Saturday, April 6, 13 and 20. The classes will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday and will be held at the Community Service building at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

According to Brenda Butscher, executive director, Hospice is in need of volunteer caregivers who go into a patients' homes, and be companions to the patients and families. "They may be asked to sit with the patient, run errands or help in many ways," she said. "Our bereavement department is in need of more volunteers. The Hospice Bereavement team stays in touch with the family for one year after the death of a loved one. We do mailings, home visits, and maintain a relationship with the family by telephone."

The schedule for April 6 includes an "Overview of Hospice" by Butscher; "Listening Skills," "Family Dynamics," and "Stress Management" led by Nancy Elizabeth Nimmich, M.S.W., hospice social worker; and "Working With the Volunteer Coordinator," presented by Ida Maust, volunteer coordinator.

A class on "Personal Care" will be led by Charee Reckner, B.S.N, M.B.A, director of clinical services. She will also teach "Universal Precautions," "Infection Control," "Documentation," Confidentiality," "Safety," and "Signs & Symptoms of Approaching Death." This is scheduled for Saturday, April 13. Audrey Kennedy, PT, Garrett Rehab Services, will teach a class on "Transfer Skills."

The final session, scheduled for Saturday, April 20, will feature a variety of topics, such as "Legal & Financial Planning" taught by Shirley Fitzwater, First United Bank & Trust. The class will visit Durst Funeral Home to learn funeral home skills. Pastor Paul Yoder will lead a class on "Spiritual Aspects." A class on "Grief Counseling Skills" will be presented by Jane Sealing, director of bereavement.

"Hospice extends an invitation to local residents to become part of the hospice team and to be a volunteer caregiver or bereavement volunteer," Butscher said. "Volunteers will find working with the terminally ill and their families is very rewarding. Keep in mind that doing good for others is doing good for oneself."

To register for the training class, or to obtain more information, persons may call the Hospice office at 301-334-5151, Grantsville area at 800-521-5252, or TTY 800-735-2258.

Medicare Issues Consumer Alert

Medicare has recently received information that a person(s) is attempting to obtain Medicare information from beneficiaries by going door-to-door. The solicitor claims to be a representative of Medicare and requests individual beneficiary information, claiming that a new Medicare card will soon be issued.

It is not the policy or practice for Medicare to go door-to-door to inform consumers of changes. "The standard way we notify you of changes in the Medicare program is through the mail," said a Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) spokesperson. "Occasionally, Medicare will contact beneficiaries in order to conduct surveys. Real Medicare survey takers will always have Medicare identification and a letter of introduction, and they will never ask you for your Medicare number."

CMS suggests that if consumers are approached by someone claming to be a Medicare representative, they should ask the solicitor for identification. "Do not give them your Medicare number or any other personal information," said the spokesperson. "Have them leave the information, along with a mailing address."

CMS requests that consumers report suspicious behavior immediately. Consumers may call their Medicare office or the Inspector General's fraud hotline at 1-800-447-8477 to report that someone has approached them in a attempt to obtain Medicare information. Persons may also call Community Action's Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 142. "With your help we can prevent people from using your Medicare number to commit fraud in the Medicare program," said the spokesperson.

National Poison Prevention Week Is March 17-23

The Maryland Poison Center is urging families across Maryland to take measures to poison proof their homes to mark the 40th annual observance of National Poison Prevention Week, March 17-23.

Data compiled in 2001 from calls made to the Maryland Poison Center, a local resource for poisoning triage, treatment information, and education, suggest that poison scares in Garrett County can be curtailed. Last year 313 phone calls were made to the Maryland Poison Center by Garrett County residents. Of those calls, 231 were the result of direct exposure to poisons.

Maryland Poison Center officials would like to increase awareness about poisonings in Maryland counties as communities across the country recognize the 40th annual Poison Prevention Week.

To obtain a poison proofing checklist for the home, persons may visit a pharmacy or a public library in the area, or call the Maryland Poison Center's newly launched phone number at 1-800-222-1222.

"Poison Prevention Week provides us a great opportunity to educate people, particularly parents with small children, about how to avert dangerous situations," said Bruce Anderson PharmD, A.B.A.T., director of the Maryland Poison Center. "Using the poison proofing checklist is an easy way to implement poison safety awareness into our everyday lives."

Children under 6 years of age account for 55 percent of all poisonings in Maryland. Additionally, a child is poisoned in the United States every 30 seconds. Parents should be aware that poisons come in various forms, including liquids, solids, sprays, and invisible gases and vapors.

While the Maryland Poison Center experiences heavy phone traffic for children's cases, the resource is also helpful for adult and animal-related exposures. Analgesics like Tylenol and Motrin (3,719), cosmetics and personal care products (2,599), and sedatives (2,007) are the top three reasons adults call the poison center for themselves.

Poison Prevention Week was annually designated the third week in March by the president of the United States on Sept. 26, 1961.

Experts at the Maryland Poison Center handle nearly 60,000 calls each year. In 2001, they handled more than 35,000 poison exposure cases resulting from everything from household cleaners to spider bites. More than 75 percent of these poison exposures were treated on the site where they occurred — generally the patient's home — with the help of an expert from the Maryland Poison Center on the phone.

The Maryland Poison Center, a leader in providing poisoning and overdose care to Marylanders since 1972, is a service of the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. The center provides poisoning triage, treatment information, education, and prevention services. For more information about the Maryland Poison Center, persons may call 1-800-222-1222 or visit www.pharmacy.umaryland.edu/~mpc/

There have been numerous movies and TV shows spawned by the writings of legendary British sci-fi/fantasy author H.G. Wells over the years, from The War Of The Worlds to The Invisible Man to The Island Of Dr. Moreau, and one of the most famous and popular is The Time Machine. A fascinating story about a man who travels into the distant future, it has been produced at least twice for TV and once on the big screen. Working from David Duncan's 1960 film screenplay, revamped for the new millenium by Gladiator co-writer John Logan, this would seem to be the authoritative version, as it is directed by Wells's own great-grandson, Simon Wells (with help from Gore Verbinski). As would be expected in this day of computer graphics, this version is certainly cram-packed with cool, futuristic effects, and it also contains a few interesting societal predictions reminiscent of Bicentennial Man or Spielberg's A.I. Otherwise, however, it's not much more than a standard re-hash, family ties or no, the most notable difference being that the action is transplanted from London to New York City, with an eminently standard performance by Guy Pearce as the titular machine's pilot.

It is 19th-century New York, and absent-minded physics professor Alexander Hartdegen (Pearce) is just about to ask his true love, Emma (Sienna Guillory), to marry him. Unfortunately she is killed in a freak accident before the evening is over, and Alex spends the next four years working on a way to turn back time to before that fateful night. Ignoring the pleas of his best friend (Mark Addy) and his maid (Phyllida Law) to move on, he creates a beautiful but unexplained machine in which he can sit and fly through time, watching the dramatic changes in the world around him without even needing to change his underdrawers. After an abortive attempt to save Emma, he abandons caution and sets the machine for the 2030s, during which he meets a computerized librarian with an attitude (Orlando Jones) and witnesses the moon's disintegration and the resulting chaos on Earth. At this point he is knocked unconscious and misses the best part of the film, a short but spectacular voyage through countless millennia and many digital CGI renderings. While the machine's wheels spin out of control, the landscape around it changes radically, with mountains rising and falling, streams carving huge chasms in the earth, desert wastelands and ice ages coming and going, and unprecedented drops in Microsoft and Disney stock.

Finally he wakes, and the machine comes to rest near a colony of primitive cliff-dwellers called Eloi, where he meets a beautiful babe named Mara (played by African/Irish pop singer Samantha Mumba) and her son Kalen (Mumba's younger brother Omero), who are the only two people still fluent in the "stone language" (English). Upon further investigation he discovers that the Eloi are constantly pursued and eaten by a race of grotesque creatures called Morlocks, who bear a striking resemblance to the Orcs from Lord Of The Rings, and whose leader is none other than Jeremy Irons in ice blue makeup and a fetching white wig. Alex must choose whether to get in his machine and leave these people to their problems, or stay and try to save Marra, on the off chance that she might go to bed with him.

This is a movie that lives or dies on its effects. If you take away the impressive computer imagery, you're left with characters who are not terribly well defined, and whose relationship interaction does not exist below the surface. Even Alex is not greatly developed; Pierce plays him like a sort of wondrous schoolboy rather than a 19th-century scientist and physics instructor forced to get his mind around the technology and society of the distant future. Furthermore, the film's shameless deus-ex-machina ending is not only ridiculous, but a radical departure from the source text. But this is an effects movie, and the computer-generated wizardry is certainly present and accounted for, even if the opportunity for social commentary or literary integrity has been left largely untapped. ★★★½

Teens love sex, and movie producers love money. It's a match made in Hollywood. From Michael Lehmann, whose first directorial effort was a 1988 USC film project tellingly titled Beaver Gets A Boner (he's also responsible for The Truth About Cats And Dogs and My Giant), comes the appallingly shallow 40 Days And 40 Nights, another entry in the endless continuum of teen comedies where sex is a contest and everyone is a beautiful, sexually desirable cardboard cutout. The freshman effort of writer Rob Perez, it centers around a young man who is so accustomed to casual sex, the idea of taking a 6-week break from orgasms seems unthinkable. I suppose we have Seinfeld to thank for this; the famous "Contest" episode brought the topic of masturbation, both male and female, out in the open in a way it hadn't been before. But the difference, you see, is that Seinfeld had writers.

San Francisco web designer Matt Sullivan (Josh Hartnett) has just suffered a devastating breakup with his longtime girlfriend Nicole (Vinessa Shaw), and he can't stop thinking about her. In fact, every night while he's having sex with some anonymous female, he sees visions of a black hole opening up in his ceiling. Symbolic, eh? So, since it's the beginning of Lent, he comes up with the perfect plan: he'll give up all sex and "sex-like acts" for the required 40-day period, cleanse his system, and forget about Nicole. The trouble is, he meets the perfect girl (Shannyn Sossamon, A Knight's Tale) and falls in love, but can't tell her about his vow lest she think he's some kind of pervert. Meanwhile, his roommate (Paulo Costanzo) and several other friends are so sure he can't do it, they start betting on what day he'll crack.

This movie was about the most excruciating hour and a half I've endured recently. There are a few humorous lines sprinkled here and there, and Costanzo is nicely quirky, but neither of the lead characters are likable enough to make us care about them, and Hartnett and Sossamon are nowhere. The premise of a celibacy contest is so classically contrived, it must be on page one of the "guide to writing teen sex comedies" handbook. Not only is Perez's pretext uninspired and hacky, it perpetuates the stereotypes of men controlled by their libidos and women who exploit that by sexually manipulating them. Both the sexes are thusly maligned.

One thing I can say for this movie is that it contains the sexiest use of flower petals since American Beauty. Other than that, it doesn't have much going for it. ★½

Hospice Classes For Volunteers Set For April

Hospice of Garrett County has scheduled volunteer training classes for Saturday, April 6, 13 and 20. The classes will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday and will be held at the Community Service building at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

According to Brenda Butscher, executive director, Hospice is in need of volunteer caregivers who go into a patients' homes, and be companions to the patients and families. "They may be asked to sit with the patient, run errands or help in many ways," she said. "Our bereavement department is in need of more volunteers. The Hospice Bereavement team stays in touch with the family for one year after the death of a loved one. We do mailings, home visits, and maintain a relationship with the family by telephone."

The schedule for April 6 includes an "Overview of Hospice" by Butscher; "Listening Skills," "Family Dynamics," and "Stress Management" led by Nancy Elizabeth Nimmich, M.S.W., hospice social worker; and "Working With the Volunteer Coordinator," presented by Ida Maust, volunteer coordinator.

A class on "Personal Care" will be led by Charee Reekner, B.S.N, M.B.A, director of clinical services. She will also teach "Universal Precautions," "Infection Control," "Documentation," Confidentiality," "Safety," and "Signs & Symptoms of Approaching Death." This is scheduled for Saturday, April 13. Audrey Kennedy, PT, Garrett Rehab Services, will teach a class on "Transfer Skills."

The final session, scheduled for Saturday, April 20, will feature a variety of topics, such as "Legal & Financial Planning" taught by Shirley Fitzwater, First United Bank & Trust. The class will visit Durst Funeral Home to learn funeral home skills. Pastor Paul Yoder will lead a class on "Spiritual Aspects." A class on "Grief Counseling Skills" will be presented by Jane Sealing, director of bereavement.

"Hospice extends an invitation to local residents to become part of the hospice team and to be a volunteer caregiver or bereavement volunteer," Butscher said. "Volunteers will find working with the terminally ill and their families is very rewarding. Keep in mind that doing good for others is doing good for oneself."

To register for the training class, or to obtain more information, persons may call the Hospice office at 301-334-5151, Grantsville area at 800-521-5252, or TTY 800-735-2258.

Medicare Issues Consumer Alert

Medicare has recently received information that a person(s) is attempting to obtain Medicare information from beneficiaries by going door-to-door. The solicitor claims to be a representative of Medicare and requests individual beneficiary information, claiming that a new Medicare card will soon be issued.

It is not the policy or practice for Medicare to go door-to-door to inform consumers of changes. "The standard way we notify you of changes in the Medicare program is through the mail," said a Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) spokesperson. "Occasionally, Medicare will contact beneficiaries in order to conduct surveys. Real Medicare survey takers will always have Medicare identification and a letter of introduction, and they will never ask you for your Medicare number."

CMS suggests that if consumers are approached by someone claming to be a Medicare representative, they should ask the solicitor for identification. "Do not give them your Medicare number or any other personal information," said the spokesperson. "Have them leave the information, along with a mailing address."

CMS requests that consumers report suspicious behavior immediately. Consumers may call their Medicare office or the Inspector General's fraud hotline at 1-800-447-8477 to report that someone has approached them in a attempt to obtain Medicare information. Persons may also call Community Action's Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 142. "With your help we can prevent people from using your Medicare number to commit fraud in the Medicare program," said the spokesperson.

National Poison Prevention Week Is March 17-23

The Maryland Poison Center is urging families across Maryland to take measures to poison proof their homes to mark the 40th annual observance of National Poison Prevention Week, March 17-23.

Data compiled in 2001 from calls made to the Maryland Poison Center, a local resource for poisoning triage, treatment information, and education, suggest that poison scares in Garrett County can be curtailed. Last year 313 phone calls were made to the Maryland Poison Center by Garrett County residents. Of those calls, 231 were the result of direct exposure to poisons.

Maryland Poison Center officials would like to increase awareness about poisonings in Maryland counties as communities across the country recognize the 40th annual Poison Prevention Week.

To obtain a poison proofing checklist for the home, persons may visit a pharmacy or a public library in the area, or call the Maryland Poison Center's newly launched phone number at 1-800-222-1222.

"Poison Prevention Week provides us a great opportunity to educate people, particularly parents with small children, about how to avert dangerous situations," said Bruce Anderson PharmD, A.B.A.T., director of the Maryland Poison Center. "Using the poison proofing checklist is an easy way to implement poison safety awareness into our everyday lives."

Children under 6 years of age account for 55 percent of all poisonings in Maryland. Additionally, a child is poisoned in the United States every 30 seconds. Parents should be aware that poisons come in various forms, including liquids, solids, sprays, and invisible gases and vapors.

While the Maryland Poison Center experiences heavy phone traffic for children's cases, the resource is also helpful for adult and animal-related exposures. Analgesics like Tylenol and Motrin (3,719), cosmetics and personal care products (2,599), and sedatives (2,007) are the top three reasons adults call the poison center for themselves.

Poison Prevention Week was annually designated the third week in March by the president of the United States on Sept. 26, 1961.

Experts at the Maryland Poison Center handle nearly 60,000 calls each year. In 2001, they handled more than 35,000 poison exposure cases resulting from everything from household cleaners to spider bites. More than 75 percent of these poison exposures were treated on the site where they occurred — generally the patient's home — with the help of an expert from the Maryland Poison Center on the phone.

The Maryland Poison Center, a leader in providing poisoning and overdose care to Marylanders since 1972, is a service of the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. The center provides poisoning triage, treatment information, education, and prevention services. For more information about the Maryland Poison Center, persons may call 1-800-222-1222 or visit www.pharmacy.umaryland.edu/~mpc/

Ginkgo Biloba May Improve Alzheimer's Symptoms

Dementia is a disorder of the brain leading to progressive loss of memory and other determinants of intelligence. The brain decreases in size from the loss of nerve cells and the nerve tracts become distorted due to deposits of a protein called amyloid. Although a number of medicines are under investigation currently, there are only one or two prescription medicines approved for mild to moderate Alzheimer's symptoms.

Researchers have shown interest in herbal medicines, due in part to their generally low incidence of side effects. One such herb that is gaining interest in this area is Ginkgo biloba, a species of tree used for medicinal purposes. An analysis of 4 studies was published recently in Archives of Neurology.

Those who took Ginkgo scored about 2 points higher on memory tests than those who took placebo (fake Ginkgo). Researchers involved in the analysis are calling for more studies to confirm these findings.

Have you ever overheard a conversation between a boy and his beloved dog? Sounds pretty one-sided, doesn't it? Perhaps, but they communicate just the same. A look, a raised ear, a cocked head; the boy pays close attention to his friend's every unspoken inflection. They understand one another perfectly.

In Proverbs 4:1, the wise King Solomon said, "...pay attention and gain understanding." In our hurried world, do we really pay attention to others... to what they say, as well as to what they do not say? Truly, it is difficult to communicate personally in such an increasingly impersonal world.

Yet, when God speaks, we must pay close attention, for our Creator speaks subtly... the rush of the wind through the trees, the gratitude in the eyes of a less fortunate soul, the sunrise that gives us a new chance for a better day tomorrow.

God also speaks to us in His House. Visit God each week. You can feel His presence... but you must pay close attention.

IS ABRAHAM IN YOUR FAMILY TREE?

March 17, 2002

Background Scripture: Romans 4
Devotional Reading: Psalms 32:6-11

It seems that we spend the first half of our lives hoping anxiously that we will get what's coming to us, and the second half hoping desperately that we will NOT get what is coming to us. We begin looking for justice and end depending upon mercy. At the start, our lives are focused on our own merit; at the end, upon the grace of God.

Sooner or later in life we realize that we will never be righteous enough to earn the favor of God. The gap between our moral capacity and God's will is just too wide to be bridged by human effort. God alone can and does bridge this terrible distance.

Many of us enter adult life believing that if we work hard enough, love enough, sacrifice enough, and watch enough, we can win whatever it is in life that we are seeking. Our trust is basically in ourselves, but then, after the way life deals us some blows and we learn that the results are not in our own hands, it is then that many of us realize that the only solution is to trust not in ourselves but in God and his promises.

Far Beyond Belief

This trust entails belief, but it goes far beyond belief. There are lots of things which I may believe, but it is the things in which we trust that make the difference in my life. For example, there is a chair which is solid enough to support a person, but a person can be hypnotized into thinking that the chair is not there and the would-be subject will fall down when invited to sit. Many people will do just what he says. But there are some who, no matter how much they believe in the solidity of the hypnotist's command, simply will not sit down. They believe in the chair, but they do not trust him.

When Paul and other biblical writers speak of "faith," they often mean not merely an act of the mind which goes far beyond belief, but it calls our trust into much more of an act. So when Paul quotes Genesis 15:6, he is speaking of a belief which is demonstrated in trust. Abraham believed God's promise and entrusted himself to the Lord. Faith is a belief so strong that we entrust ourselves to it.

The word "reckoned" here means "credited." God gave Abraham credit, not for his works or his pronounced beliefs, but for his trust. It is like getting a bill for a tuition dollars and finding on the statement a credit in the same amount. The amount of the credit is a gift that you could never have earned.

Easy To Say

It is easy to say "I believe in God Almighty," but something else to put yourself and life into the hands of that One. This attitude requires a leap of faith. For example, the promise of God to Abraham seemed utterly ridiculous. At their age they knew it was virtually impossible to conceive and have a child. So the faithful response of Abraham is based not upon the reasonableness of the promise, but on the One who makes it. Certainly Abraham must have doubted the promises, even if only momentarily. But Paul says, "No distrust made him waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave the glory to God, fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised" (Rom. 4:20-21).

This trust is not a family or racial trait. Abe and all of us can have it. If we offer God this trust we become the spiritual descendants of Abraham. It is offered to those who share the faith of Abraham, for he is the father of us all (4:16).

Maybe actor once played Donny Osmond

Patrick Levis

Q: Please tell me about Patrick Levis, who plays Grant on Maybe It's Me. I think he is very talented. –Colby G., Archbald, Pa.

A: There's a simple reason Levis, 20, is doing such a good job of mining laughs as born-again musician Grant Stage – without making him seem ridiculous: Both actor and character are professed Christians.

He comes by Grant's musical side of things honestly as well. A high-school production of The Sound of Music when Levis was 10 led to national tours of Oliver! and Macbeth, then to the featured role of Young Josh in the ill-fated Broadway musical adaptation of the Tom Hanks comedy Big.

The native of Silver Springs, Md., also is known for his three seasons on the Disney Channel series So Weird, as well as his on-target performance as Donny Osmond in last season's TV movie Inside the Osmonds.

Hobbies include rollerblading, hiking, camping and rock climbing.

Q: Please help me remember the name of a show with two stuffed koala bears, Blinky and Pinky, who came to life at the beckoning of a young girl. Her dad was an archaeologist. –Alice Saucier, Acushnet, Mass.

A: You're thinking of The Noozles, an animated hit that ran in Nickelodeon's "Nick Jr." lineup from 1988-93. The show's heroine, 12-year-old Sandy Brown, discovered that if she "noozled" noses with her stuffed toy koala, Blinky, he would come alive.

Blinky had a watch that could stop time, while his sister, Pinky, could open holes in space and time by using her special makeup compact. The trio had dozens of adventures both in our world and in Koalawalla Land for some 65 episodes.

Q: Wasn't there a remake of The Time Machine back in the '80s or so, co-starring an actress who joined the cast of Three's Company? –Jamie In Atlanta.

A: The year was 1978, Jamie, but otherwise you are on target. Heroic John Beck (Dallas) was joined by Priscilla Barnes – who later played Terri Alden on Three's Company (1981-84) – in this TV-movie remake.

Q: Was Valerie Bertinelli ever married to Steven Spielberg? –Mrs. Norma Manna, Port St. Lucie, Fla.

A: Bertinelli is still on her first husband, rock star Eddie Van Halen, whom she married in 1980. Spielberg has been married twice: Amy Irving (1985-89) and Kate Capshaw (1991-present).

Q: What is the name of the Providence theme song and who sings it? –R. Draganski, Washington, Mich.

A: It's the John Lennon-Paul McCartney song "In My Life," performed by a singer named Chantal Kreviazuk.

Have you ever overheard a conversation between a boy and his beloved dog? Sounds pretty one-sided, doesn't it? Perhaps, but they communicate just the same. A look, a raised ear, a cocked head; the boy pays close attention to his friend's every unspoken inflection. They understand one another perfectly.

In Proverbs 4:1, the wise King Solomon said, "...pay attention and gain understanding." In our hurried world, do we really pay attention to others... to what they say, as well as to what they do not say? Truly, it is difficult to communicate personally in such an increasingly impersonal world.

Yet, when God speaks, we must pay close attention, for our Creator speaks subtly... the rush of the wind through the trees, the gratitude in the eyes of a less fortunate soul, the sunrise that gives us a new chance for a better day tomorrow.

God also speaks to us in His House. Visit God each week. You can feel His presence... but you must pay close attention.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS ABRAHAM IN YOUR FAMILY TREE?

March 17, 2002

Background Scripture: Romans 4.
Devotional Reading: Psalms 32:6-11.

It seems that we spend the first half of our lives hoping anxiously that we will get what's coming to us, and the second half hoping desperately that we will NOT get what is coming to us. We begin, looking for justice and end depending upon mercy. At the start, our lives are focused on our own merit; at the end, upon the grace of God.

Sooner or later in life we realize that we will never be righteous enough to earn the favor of God. The gap between our moral capacity and God's will is just too wide to be bridged by human effort. God alone can and does bridge this terrible distance.

Many of us enter adult life believing that, if we work hard enough, long enough, sincerely and wisely enough, we can win whatever it is in life that we are seeking. Our trust is basically in ourselves. But then, along the way, life deals us some blows and we learn that the results are not in our own hands. It is then that many of us realize that the only solution is to trust, not in ourselves, but in God and his promises.

Far Beyond Belief

This trust entails belief, but it goes far beyond belief. There are lots of things which I may believe, but it is the things in which we trust that make the difference in my life. For example, there is a test which is sometimes given to determine in advance if a particular person can be hypnotized. The hypnotist stands behind the would-be subject and tells him to let himself fall backwards into his arms. Many people will do just that because they believe he will do what he says. But there are some, who, no matter that they believe the sincerity of the hypnotist, cannot bring themselves to fall backward. They believe him but they do not trust him.

When Paul and other biblical writers speak of "faith," most often they are talking about the trust which goes far beyond belief. Belief is easy, but trust asks much more of us. So when Paul quotes Genesis 15:6, he is speaking of a "belief" which is demonstrated in trust. Abraham believed God's promises and entrusted himself to the Lord. Faith is a belief so strong that we entrust ourselves to it.

The word "reckoned" here means "credited." God gave Abraham credit, not for his works or his pronounced beliefs, but for his trust. It is like getting a bill for a million dollars and finding on the statement a credit in the same amount. The amount of the credit is a gift that you could never have earned.

Easy To Say

It is easy to say "I believe in God Almighty," but something else to put yourself and life into the hands of that God. This usually requires something of a struggle. For example, the promise of God to Abraham seemed utterly ridiculous. At their age they knew it was virtually impossible to conceive and bear a child. So, the faithful response of Abraham is based, not upon the reasonableness of the promise, but on the One who makes it.. Certainly Abraham must have doubted the promises, even if only momentarily. But Paul says, "No distrust made him waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave the glory to God, fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised" (Rom 4:20,21).

This trust is not a family or racial trait. Any and all of us can have it. If we offer God this trust we become the spiritual descendants of Abraham. It is offered to all "those who share the faith of Abraham, for he is the father of us all..." (4:16).

Ginkgo Biloba May Improve Alzheimer's Symptoms

Dementia is a disorder of the brain leading to progressive loss of memory and other determinants of intelligence. The brain decreases in size from the loss of nerve cells and the nerve tracts become distorted due to deposits of a protein called amyloid. Although a number of medicines are under investigation currently, there are only one or two prescription medicines approved for mild to moderate Alzheimer's symptoms.

Researchers have shown interest in herbal medicines, due in part to their generally low incidence of side effects. One such herb that is gaining interest in this area is Ginkgo biloba, a species of tree used for medicinal purposes. An analysis of 4 studies was published recently in Archives of Neurology.

Those who took Ginkgo scored about 2 points higher on memory tests than those who took placebo (fake Ginkgo). Researchers involved in the analysis are calling for more studies to confirm these findings.

'Maybe actor once played Donny Osmond

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Patrick Levis

Q: Please tell me about Patrick Levis, who plays Grant on Maybe It's Me. I think he is very talented. –Colby G., Archbald, Pa.

A: There's a simple reason Levis, 20, is doing such a good job of mining laughs as born-again musician Grant Stage – without making him seem ridiculous: Both actor and character are professed Christians.

He comes by Grant's musical side of things honestly as well. A high school production of The Sound of Music when Levis was 10 led to national tours of Oliver! and Macbeth, then to the featured role of Young Josh in the ill-fated Broadway musical adaptation of the Tom Hanks comedy Big.

The native of Silver Springs, Md., also is known for his three seasons on the Disney Channel series So Weird, as well as his on-target performance as Donny Osmond in last season's TV movie Inside the Osmonds.

Hobbies include rollerblading, hiking, camping and rock climbing.

Q: Please help me remember the name of a show with two stuffed koala bears, Blinky and Pinky, who came to life at the beckoning of a young girl. Her dad was an archaeologist. –Alice Saucier, Acushnet, Mass.

A: You're thinking of The Noozles, an animated hit that ran in Nickelodeon's "Nick Jr." lineup from 1988-93. The show's heroine, 12-year-old Sandy Brown, discovered that if she "noozled" noses with her stuffed toy koala, Blinky, he would come alive.

Blinky had a watch that could stop time, while his sister, Pinky, could open holes in space and time by using her special makeup compact. The trio had dozens of adventures both in our world and in Koalawalla Land for some 65 episodes.

Q: Wasn't there a remake of The Time Machine back in the '80s or so, co-starring an actress who joined the cast of Three's Company? –Jamie in Atlanta.

A: The year was 1978, Jamie, but otherwise you are on target. Heroic John Beck (Dallas) was joined by Priscilla Barnes – who later played Terri Alden on Three's Company (1981-84) – in this TV-movie remake.

Q: Was Valerie Bertinelli ever married to Steven Spielberg? –Mrs. Norma Manna, Port St. Lucie, Fla.

A: Bertinelli is still on her first husband, rock star Eddie Van Halen, whom she married in 1980. Spielberg has been married twice: Amy Irving (1985-89) and Kate Capshaw (1991-present).

Q: What is the name of the Providence theme song and who sings it? –R. Draganski, Washington, Mich.

Michelle Geis Gets Degree At Virginia Tech

Michelle R. Geis, Accident, graduated magna cum laude and first in her class with a bachelor of science degree in interior design from Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, Va., during the fall 2001 commencement ceremony. Geis had an emphasis in business, hospitality and tourism management, and kitchen and bath design.

While attending Virginia Tech, Geis was named the recipient of the Interior Design Advisory Board Rising Senior Scholarship. She also placed third in the National Kitchen and Bath Association Design Competition. As a result, her design, along with other award winners in both the professional and student categories, was published in an annual NKBA magazine — Let the Ideas Flow: 2001 Focus on Design.

Geis was named to the dean's list every semester at Virginia Tech. She served as the fund-raising chairperson for the Student Interior Design Association and as a peer mentor. She was also a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, Phi Eta Sigma, and Golden Key National Honors Society, and was a recipient of the Maryland Delegate's Scholarship, as well as the Maryland Senatorial Scholarship.

Geis is currently employed by Elements of Design and is an allied member of American Society of Interior Designers (ASID). A 1997 graduate of Northern High School, Geis is the daughter of Ellen and Sam Housley, Accident, and Ed and Dixie Geis, Frostburg. Her grandparents are Jim and Margaret Hershberger-Wagner, Accident, Glyn and Laverne Geis, Frostburg, and the late Donald Hershberger.

Virgina Tech has been recognized as the 11th best school in the nation for interior design education by DesignIntelligence and has been FIDER accredited since 1985. Its program is said to challenge students to think critically throughout the design processes. This involves knowledge and understanding of issues such as design theory, ergonomics, universal design, and visual aesthetics.

Allegheny Power has contracted to maintain portions of its rights-of-way with an aerial saw consisting of fifteen 24-inch rotary blades powered by a motor and suspended on a vertical boom beneath a helicopter. This maintenance method allows for the quick, safe, and efficient trimming of trees along our transmission lines. The aerial saw will be in operation from March 6 through March 16 on the following lines in Garrett County, Maryland.

Garrett County
(Snowy Creek-Oakland Line)
Starting at Oakland Substation and heading west, this subtransmission line crosses State Route 39 west of Oakland. The line then continues westerly, crossing the Youghiogheny River and State Route 39 again near Hutton, Md., before entering Preston County, W.Va.

Garrett County
(Oakland-Gorman-William Line)
Starting at Oakland Substation and heading east, this subtransmission line crosses State Route 219 south of Oakland, Pleasant Valley Road, and Smouse Road. The line then turns sharply to the south crossing near Doctor Tolson Road, Landon's Dam Road, and King Wildeson Road. The line continues south, crossing State Route 560 and Le Moyne King Road. The line then taps off to the southwest to Gorman Substation. Continuing south, the line crosses the Potomac River into Grant County, W.Va., east of Gormania.

Garrett County
(Westernport-Mastellar Line)
Beginning at Westernport Substation, this subtransmission line heads north along State Route 36 before turning to the east and crossing State Route 36 near Moran Manor Health Care Center. The line then turns southwesterly, crossing Westernport Road north of Bloomington. The line continues southwesterly crossing State Route 135 and the Potomac River at Bloomington, Md., then into Mastellar Substation.

Colorectal Cancer Is Preventable, Yet Many Fear To Be Tested

by Beth L. Bowers

Colonoscopy. The word alone makes people uneasy, and the procedure is something they would rather avoid. But local doctor/surgeon Dr. Ihor Zakaluzny and the American Cancer Society (ACS) hope to change people's predisposed notions.

Colorectal cancer is the nation's second leading cancer killer and is preventable through regular screening. Yet fewer than half of Americans for whom a screening is recommended get regular tests for the illness, according to a new survey by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

March is National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, and this year marks the third annual observance of National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month.

According to Dr. Zakaluzny, the "bad reputation" the colonoscopy has received is "undeserved."

He added that most patients who have had the procedure will not say the procedure was bad. "The preparation of the bowels is the usual negative we hear about," Dr. Zakaluzny said. "In the old days of rigid scopes and with the early flexible scopes, pain was a definite issue."

The Cancer Research Foundation of America is a nonprofit group that is participating in the awareness effort. Sonja Weisel-Jones, a spokeswoman for the foundation, said more than 2,000 people have submitted questions on its web site seeking advice from experts in colorectal cancer.

"From the questions that are coming in, it's clear there's an embarrassment about anything to do with rectal health," she said. "They have questions that they are afraid to ask."

Routine colon cancer screening identifies suspicious or pre-cancerous polyps, which can be removed before they develop into a serious health problem.

"Societal roadblocks, however, need to be overcome to make this the norm," said Robert C. Young, MD, national volunteer president of the ACS. "Many people find colon cancer an embarrassing topic to raise, even with their doctors. For a variety of reasons, many doctors do not discuss the issue with patients at risk for the disease, including those 50 or older and African Americans."

According to the ACS, an estimated 2,900 people in Maryland will be diagnosed with colon cancer this year, and approximately 1,100 will die.

"With colon cancer testing, we can see parallels with where Pap testing was 60 years ago," said Dr. Durado D. Brooks, MD, MPH, director of colon cancer programs at the ACS's national home office. "Once Pap testing became widely discussed and implemented, the beneficial results in preventing cervical cancers were clearly evident. Likewise, we could expect the same widespread prevention success with colon cancer if doctors openly discuss the subject with their patients and urge them to get the recommended test."

Both men and women are at risk for the disease. Factors associated with increased risk for colon cancer include age, 50 years or older; race, African Americans; personal or family history; smoking; physical inactivity; and diets high in red meat.

There are several different tests that are used to detect colon cancer.

One is a colonoscopy, which is a procedure of viewing the interior lining of the large intestine (colon) using a colonoscope, a flexible fiber-optic tube. Most colonoscopies are done on an outpatient basis with minimal inconvenience and discomfort.

"Many patients wonder if it will hurt and if they will need a ride home," said Dr. Zakaluzny. "We reassure them that we strive to minimize or eliminate pain during the procedure with the intravenous medications that we give them, and if they have discomfort, they probably will not be able to recall that they did have pain.

"Our goal with pain control is to ensure that the patients will not be fearful to undergo a repeat colonoscopy."

Physicians recommend an exam if a patient has a change in bowel habits or bleeding, unexplained abdominal symptoms, are over the age of 50, or have a family history of colon cancer or polyps.

The Garrett County Health Department offers cancer screenings to eligible participants.

The Garrett County Cancer Task Force, organized by the health department, focuses on the screening diagnosis and coordination of care on cancers that are curable when detected early. The plan also includes preventive strategies aimed at addressing cancers that may be prevented through lifestyle changes.

Eligible participants must meet these requirements: be age 50 to 64, be uninsured or underinsured, and meet income guidelines. The 2002 federal guidelines are: family of one, $22,150; family of two, $29,850; family of three, $37,550; and family of four, $45,250.

The health department can perform the preliminary tests and then will refer the patient to a participating physician for additional tests.

The tests offered for colorectal cancer are a fecal occult blood test and a colonoscopy, if indicated by the blood test.

Persons wanting further information or to sign up for the screenings may contact Rebecca Parks, RN, at 301-334-7770.

GETTING OFF TO A GOOD START — A meeting, pictured above, was recently held at Garratt Community College for new team captains for the 4th annual Relay For Life. Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• According to the Screen Actors Guild, its members working in television movies and series earned a total of $280,379,856 in one year. That sounds like a lot, doesn't it? Not so fast. Take into account the number of members who perform on television, and that averages out to only $5,998.07 per year — well below the poverty line. Think you'd have better luck in movies? Nope — movie actors' earnings average only $4,026.46 per year.

• Every day, a single private company prints $137 million a day. Play money, that is — for the game Monopoly.

• St. George is the patron saint of Boy Scouts.

• If you smoke one pack of cigarettes a day, you'll inhale approximately one-half cup of tar every year.

• People in Tibet and Mongolia put salt in their tea instead of sugar.

• The great composer Wagner, of "Ring Cycle" fame, wrote his first play at the age of 14 — and by the end of the fourth act, 42 characters were dead.

• The creator of Coca-Cola got only $2,500 for the secret formula that has since made so much money for so many people.

• President James Garfield could write Latin with one hand and Greek with the other — simultaneously.

• A recent survey determined that 92 percent of the population claims never to have made a call to a 1-900 phone number. So then why do we see the advertisements everywhere?

• In high school, actress Sandra Bullock was voted "Most Likely to Brighten Your Day."

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. I began collecting older cookbooks several years ago and now have more than 300 in my collection. Most were published during the 1920s and '30s. Is there much interest in this field of collecting? — Kathy, Houston

A. Cookbooks have become a delectable source of pleasure for collectors. Those published before 1900 are in high demand and often sell in the $100 to $200 range. Most of the cookbooks published during the 1920s and '30s are generally more common and sell for much less.

At church sales and flea markets, vintage cookbooks often can be found for $5 or less. Pay special attention to cookbooks that were illusurated by famous artists or ones given away as advertising premiums. There has been a growing interest in cookbooks published during World War II, especially those featuring "sugarless" recipes.

Recent online auction results of cookbook sales have included the "Better Homes and Gardens Cookbook," 1949, $30; the 1924 "Fannie Farmer Cookbook," $60; "Your Mexican Kitchen" by Natalie Scott, 1935, $40; "The Joy of Cooking," 1944, $70; and the "Central City Teller Opera House Cookbook," $175.

There are two major newsletters for collectors. They are Cookbook Gossip, P.O. Box 56, St. James, MO 65559; and the Cookbook Collector's Club Bulletin, 4756 Terrace Drive, San Diego, CA 92116. The club also provides a free search service for members who are trying to track down specific titles.

Paw's corner

by Sam Mazzotta

King of the Hill

Q. I have a large male dog and so does my mother-in-law. They have a history of fighting: Both dogs and my husband needed medical treatment after the last fight. We keep them separated, but would like to be able to put them and my mother-in-law's two female dogs out at the same time. The dogs aren't aggressive in any other way, except with each other. Lately, we have been thinking of buying muzzles for the males and letting them get used to one another, hoping they won't be able to do much damage with the muzzles on. What do you think? Is there any solution?

A. What's going on here is aggression used to gain dominance: Both dogs want to be the boss of the back yard.

If the dogs only fight with one another, then this is a battle between them over territory. As long as they share the same space, even with muzzles on, they will continue to fight. And if there are bitches in the area, they'll fight even more. After all, they've got a "rep" to protect.

This fact doesn't make their aggression acceptable.

Putting muzzles on them won't work. They'll still go after each other, and muzzled dogs can still inflict injury.

If neither of the dogs will be used for breeding, seriously consider having them neutered. Many dog owners consider this a drastic step, but it will curb the dogs' aggression. And really, unless the dogs are purebreds with papers, breeding shouldn't be considered.

If you choose not to have them neutered, or if they still show aggression after the procedure, you'll have to keep them separated. When one male goes outside, the other must stay inside. Of course, the guy stuck inside will go nuts if he knows his arch-enemy is running around "his" territory, so draw the shades and close the doors until it's your dog's turn to go out.

SHS Students Take Second In Md. Stock Game

An investment team composed of a group of Southern High economics students earned second place honors in the regional competition of the Maryland Stock Market Game, which was played over 10 weeks during the fall semester. The winners were announced by the Maryland Council on Economic Education, based in Towson.

Seniors Brian Fike and Kim Thayer, along with junior Matt Lucas finished second in the Western Region, which includes schools from Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties. The region fielded 57 teams composed of 431 students.

The winning Southern High team, one of seven SHS entrants, registered an equity of $128,647.44 by the end of the game. Each competing team began the game with a hypothetical $100,000 to invest based on their research and forecasts of market trends. Statewide, 2,406 individuals from the elementary, middle, high school, college, and adult levels formed a total of 505 investment teams, and the SHS team placed 28th overall.

Southern High economics teacher Lisa Bender, competing in the adult division, took first place in the state in a field of 102 teams. Her concluding portfolio of $181,528 earned her in fifth place among the state's overall 505 teams and individuals.

Bender works with PrimeVest analyst Rob Sharps to bring the Stock Market Game into the classroom. "It is so important to get students actively engaged in the learning process," she said. "The competitive nature of this game challenges students to follow real market conditions and take an active interest in learning about our nation's economy. Sharps is an excellent role model for our students. We have been fortunate to work with him for the last seven years."

PrimeVest Financial and First United Bank and Trust are again sponsoring this competition for business students in Southern High's Accounting II class during the spring semester. The state will recognize winners from both the fall and spring competitions in May at awards ceremonies that will take place downstate.

SHS TEAM BULLISH ON STOCK MARKET GAME — This Southern High School economics class team invested its way to some big returns in the fall semester Maryland Stock Market Game, a statewide role-playing financial education activity for students. The SHS team took second place in the West Region field of 57 teams, and 28th in the state competition of 505 teams of all age groups. Faculty advisor Lisa Bender, Southern High economics teacher, took first in the state's adult competition, beating 102 other participants, and placed fifth overall among all competitors. Pictured from the left are Bender, Matt Lucas, Brian Fike, Kim Thayer, and team financial advisor Rob Sharps of PrimeVest Services.

Support Sought For Broadford Easter Egg Hunt

The third annual Easter Egg Hunt at Broadford Lake Park has been scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday, March 23, (raindate Saturday, March 30) by WKHJ and WWHC radio stations and the AmeriCorps program of the Garrett County Community Action Committee. The sponsors are asking for the public's assistance through donations and volunteer support.

Monetary, candy, and prize donations are being accepted for use toward eggs and prizes. Volunteers are also being sought for the event, which presents an opportunity for high school students to earn credit for service learning hours.

Last year's event attracted over 275 egg hunters, who sought approximately 2,250 hidden eggs, each containing either candy or a prize. Included among the prizes were three $50 savings bonds, one per age category, which had been donated by local banks.

"We hope to build on the success of the previous two years with just as many or more young people enjoying a fun and safe Easter egg hunt," WKHJ's Pam Trickett said. "We would also like to have a few planned activities before the hunt begins this year. It will take more Easter eggs, more candy, prizes, and basically more money to make this event bigger."

WKHJ will broadcast from the event, and all businesses and organizations making financial contributions will receive on-air sponsorship mentions on both 92.3 FM the Train and 104.5 FM WKHJ. Checks should be made payable to WKHJ Radio, ref. Egg Hunt, and mailed to Radio FX, P.O. Box 2337, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550.

Southern High School Students Of The Month Selected

The Southern High School Students of the Month winners for February 2002 are: Matt Burner, art; Emily Green, math, Lori Fox, social studies; Holly Sauder, science; David Wolf, vocational; and Jessie Woods, English.

Matt Burner, a senior, is the son of Ron and Brenda Burner. He has played soccer for four years, is a member of the National Art Honor Society, and was voted in as president this year. He has been on distinguished honor roll and regular honor roll for all four years in high school. He was nominated for Who's Who all four years, and he had an art piece on display at the Maryland State Treasury Building for over six months. In the community, Matt is a snowboard instructor at the Wisp, and he attends St. Peter's Catholic Church. In the future Matt plans to attend Columbus College of Art and Design, where he plans to go into animation, with illustration as a backup. He wants to get a job at Disney World as an animator.

Emily Green, a freshman, is the daughter of Dan and Kim Green. She has been on distinguished honor roll both first and second term this year. She was a Student of the Month throughout middle school, and she was nominated as a 2001 National Science Merit Award winner. Emily has been nominated for Who's Who and is a mathematics award winner. She attends Pleasant View Baptist Church. She is a member of the Trail Blazers 4-H Club. She also plays softball in summer league. Emily plans to finish high school and go to a good college. She may pursue a degree in elementary education.

Lori Fox, a sophomore, is the daughter of Tina Fox. She is a member of the JV basketball team and is on the yearbook staff. Lori has been on honor roll both ninth and tenth grades. She has helped the House of Hope with the Hopefest and fund raising. In the future, Lori would like to further her education in oceanography.

Holly Sauder, a sophomore, is the daughter of Steve and Anna Sauder. She played soccer in ninth grade and ran cross country in tenth grade. She also played softball. Holly has received the United States Mathematics Award, National Science Merit Award, and Success Star Award. She has been nominated for the United States Achievement Academy and Who's Who Among American High School Students. Holly attends Gortner Union Church, and she is an active member of the youth group. She is currently undecided on her future plans.

David Wolf, a senior, is the son of Ted Wolf and Angela Blythe. He has received many art awards and is an honor roll student. He enjoys snowboarding, skateboarding, and wakeboarding. He was awarded third place, out of 24 skaters, at a skateboarding competition at Myrtle Beach. He plans to go to college and take business classes, hoping to open his own business some day.

Jessi Woods, a sophomore, is the daughter of Clifton and Eleanor Woods. She is involved in the drama courses at school and has been on the honor roll every year except one. Jessi attends Kitzmiller Assembly of God, where she helps her mother teach a class. She has been in an Easter program with her church for two years. She is the treasurer for the North Glade 4-H Club, of which she has been a member for eight years. Jessi wants to attend college at either New York University or Boston University. She would like to major in performing arts so she can become a writer, photographer, designer, or interior decorator.

The business partner for this month is Our Town Theatre.

Small Business Development Ctr. Slates Classes

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett Community College has slated three classes during April that will meet during weekday evening hours at GCC.

"Financing the Small Business" will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. for three consecutive Tuesdays, April 2-16. The instructor is Jim White, a relationship manager for M&T Bank. The course is designed to provide an understanding of the lending process and to prepare participants to approach a funding source for their business. Participants will be instructed in the "Four Ps" and "Five Cs" of credit; examine credit options; identify financial needs; develop a financial plan, define values, establish goals; and create an action plan.

"Self Defense for Adults" will meet from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on five Tuesdays, April 2-30. The instructor, John Sagal, has a 2nd degree black belt in hap ki do and is affiliated with the United States Korean Martial Arts Foundation. This course is designed for persons age 15 and older who want to learn basic self-defense techniques. This form of martial arts is new to the area and can be safely practiced by men and women of all ages, according to Sagal, who said that hap ki do provides mental and physical training which incorporates mind and body coordination. Students will learn a variety of martial art skills, including punching, kicking, breakfalls, and self-defense tactics.

"Beginning Desktop Publishing," a five session course, is slated for 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday evenings April 8-22. The instructor is Alice Bosley, a former Gateway programmer/trainer. This course will provide hands-on experience in producing brochures, flyers, and newsletters for use as advertising tools. Students will use Microsoft Word to set up business forms, modify text, and integrate designs with color, all at minimal cost. Clip Art and Word Art will also be introduced.

For fee information or to register for any of these classes, persons may call Cathy Fazenbaker at 301-387-3080 or Sue Smith at 301-387-3089.

OAKLAND MLP LIONS CLUB ACTIVITIES — The Oakland Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club had a busy agenda during a recent meeting. The guest speaker was Jeannette Fitzwater, shown above flanked by the club's first vice president Luther Parrack and president Robert Stockslager. Fitzwater's outlined the goals of the United Way of Garrett County, which, she said, benefits major local programs such as Big Brothers Big Sisters, Scouts, the Dove Center, the Garrett County Community Action Committee, the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, and the Red Cross. She emphasized that all funds donated stay in the county and that United Way is encouraging the establishment of a broad base of giving from several of the larger service clubs. The Lions also inducted a new member, Robert Speranzella, who is pictured below flanked by membership committee chairman Dave Beard, and his sponsor, Robert Baker. Speranzella and his wife Carol, both Baltimore natives, moved to Garrett County in July 2000 and reside near Oakland. The Lions also honored Roger Uber — shown in the bottom photo being congratulated by club president Robert Stockslager — who earned a number of honors in the recent Western Maryland Winter Special Olympics competition at the Wisp. Uber netted a gold medal in bowling, a silver medal in the 50-meter ski run, and a bronze medal in the 100-meter ski competition.

BPW Members Want Applicants For Scholarship

Applicants for the Garrett County Business & Professional Women's Club's "A Scholarship for Women" are being sought. The annual award of $600 is given to a woman over the age of 30 who is furthering her education through a vocational, technical, or academic program that results in a degree or certificate.

The scholarship is available to Garrett County women who are working and/or attending school. All applicants must submit a completed application, a transcript of grades, three letters of reference of character and abilities, and proof of acceptance into a program, school, or college/university. Interviews may be scheduled with Scholarship Committee members.

Scholarship Committee chairperson Phyllis Trickett encourages all interested women to apply. "The Business & Professional Women's Club members believe in 'Women Helping Women.' Much of this involves supporting, mentoring, and networking with women in their places of work. However, many women are struggling to complete the education or training needed to enter or re-enter the job market in their chosen fields. Past scholarship award winners have gone on to enter the health care professions, the business world, and the field of education. This scholarship is one way we can encourage women to persevere. I know there are many qualified women in the community and urge them to apply," she said.

Applications are available by contacting any BPW member or Phyllis Trickett at 301-334-4810. The deadline for receipt of applications is April 14.

LOCAL BUSINESSES SPONSOR LIFESKILLS LUNCHEON — The Mental Health Center held its monthly Celebration of Parenthood luncheon in partnership with Lewis Used Cars and Bonnie's Cleaning Service. The recent luncheon's topic was "Enjoyment In Parenting," and information was shared on finding humor in children, taking time to laugh, and creating positive memories. Pictured above, from the left, are Ed Lewis Used Cars owner Ed Lewis, LifeSkills representative Rick Leyton, and Bonnie's Cleaning Service owner Bonnie Lewis. For more information about Celebration of Parenthood, or the LifeSkills program, contact Jeff Graham of the Mental Health Center 301-334-9002.

He is an ordained minister with the Assemblies of God and has been a traveling evangelist since 1994. Rochkind stated that he has "a real desire to minister to those who are lonely, depressed, restless, and brokenhearted, who feel lost with seemingly no direction." He added that he "loves to encourage people through song and the preaching of God's word."

The students also helped their parents make fire escape plans for their homes and watched a video about Smokey Bear. Pictured above, left to right, in the first row are Krystal Tasker, Nicole Wilt, Courtney Sanders, Hailey Cortez, and Alexis Sharpless. Pre-kindergarten Registration Information

Beginning March 1, 2002 , and ending May 1, 2002, the Garrett County Board of Education will be accepting applications for its Extended Elementary Education Program or Pre-kindergarten. To be eligible for this program a child must be four years of age on or before December 31, 2002. [Please be aware that the Maryland State Board of Education is expected to change the enrollment period for pre-kindergarten to children born between January 1, 1998, and November 30, 1998. This action is expected in April or May 2002. If approved, then all children born in December 1998 would be ineligible for enrollment in the pre-kindergarten program this year. Parents will be notified in writing if the State Board of Education enacts this anticipated change in the existing enrollment criterion.]

There is a two-step application process:

1. Interested parents should obtain a copy of the Notification of Interest for Pre-kindergarten Program documents. (These documents can be obtained from the nearest elementary school or from the Office of Pupil Services at the Board of Education office in Oakland.) The first document explains the enrollment and selection process for the pre-kindergarten program. The second document is an information sheet. This information sheet should be completed and forwarded to the Office of Pupil Services, Garrett County Board of Education, 40 South 2nd Street, Oakland, Maryland 21550. The form can also be taken to the closest elementary school.

2. Upon receipt of the Notification of Interest for Pre-kindergarten Program information sheet, the parents will be given or sent a second set of documents. This second set includes a parent letter, a photocopy of the Board of Education s guidelines for determining the eligibility and selection of pre-kindergarten students, and a Garrett County Pre-kindergarten Program Questionnaire. This questionnaire will need to be completed and returned as soon as possible to the Office of Pupil Services. The information provided by parents on this questionnaire will be used to determine which children are enrolled in the pre-kindergarten program. The Office of Pupil Services will date and log in all questionnaires.

Any questions about this enrollment process should be directed to Ms. Liz Lewis, administrative secretary, Office of Pupil Services, at 301-334-8939.

Rains Promise Little Relief After Record-Dry Winter

By Candia Dames
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland farmers are hoping the worst winter drought in 70 years won't lead to a bone-dry summer reminiscent of the drought of the 1960s, but record-breaking low water levels could push Maryland into a state of emergency.

"If we don't start getting moisture in the ground real soon, there's going to be a serious crop failure during the summer," said Hank Passi, a Cecil County farmer who chairs the Maryland Agriculture Commission.

But forecasters say the outlook is not good.

U.S. Geological Survey hydrologist Wendy McPherson said the state needs 15 to 27 inches of rain over the next three months to prevent it from plunging into the drought-like conditions experienced in the 1960s.

The region has experienced unusually warm temperatures over the past six months and record-low rainfall. Potomac River flow in February fell 25 percent below the 1934 record average-low of 2.1 billion gallons a day. By the end of last month, there was no doubting the state was experiencing a drought.

"This is the worst drought at this time of year that any of us has seen in Maryland," said Tony Evans, an emergency services officer at the Maryland Department of Agriculture. Evans said farmers were already severely low on hay and other cattle feed.

"The pastures are severely stressed," he said. "We're going to need a real miracle to bring them back."

That miracle was lacking last month, the driest February on record for Maryland and Delaware, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. Only 0.36 inch of rain fell in the month. The inch of rain that fell was not enough to make up the shortfall.

Evans, staring at his orchard last Wednesday, said there were no signs that any rain had fallen.

Paul Crowl, a Harford County dairy farmer, said many farmers may have to look to hauling water from new sources if the trend continues.

Some counties already have fire trucks on standby to take water to farmers, said Lester Vough, a University of Maryland forage specialist.

"In previous years when we've had a major drought, dry weather has occurred later in the year," Vough said. With only two weeks before spring, when many farmers plant crops, very little growth is likely to take place, he added.

The drought could lead to higher prices at produce stands, or it could force cattle farmers to kill off livestock, said Don Vandrey, a state Department of Agriculture spokesman. "It's a critical time," he said.

It could also lead to mandatory restrictions on water for lawn care, car washes, and other non-essential uses, said Saeid Kasraei, water supply administrator at the Maryland Department of the Environment. The entire state is either under a drought watch or warning, and a state of emergency could be imminent, he said.

Conditions are most serious along the Eastern Shore and in central Maryland, said Kasraei, who hoped for a good weekend of "nice and steady" rainfall.

Farmers like Passi, meanwhile, were taking a wait-and-see attitude.

"We need rain to turn things around," he said. "But we don't just need rain. We need lots of it."

Crop Insurance Deadline Friday

The final day to purchase or change crop insurance policies on corn, soybeans, and other spring seeded crops is this Friday, March 15.

Farmers are advised to talk to their insurance agent about the new products available, premium rates, and strategies for protecting farm income.

Persons who do not have an agent are invited to call the Garrett County FSA office (301-334-6954) for a list of licensed agents in the area.

Crop insurance policies automatically roll over from one year to the next unless the holder requests the coverage be cancelcd.

"The deadline for reporting your 2001 crop production is fast approaching. In order to keep your history current it is very important to report your production to your local crop insurance agent," stated Michael Kozier of the Garrett County FSA office.

Preston County Will Observe Agriculture Week

The Preston County Farm Service Agency will observe National Agriculture Week, March 17-23, and recognize farmers and ranchers for their contributions to America and the world.

"The farmers and ranchers in this nation are the most productive and efficient in the world," said Eric M. McCartney, executive director for the Preston County FSA. "Each U.S. farmer feeds 129 people here and abroad. Not only do we have the safest and most abundant food supply in the world," said McCartney, "we also have the most affordable." According to the Agriculture Council of America, U.S. consumers spend about 10.9 percent of their income on food, compared with 17 percent in Japan, 27 percent in South Africa, and 51 percent in India.

The Farm Service Agency is responsible for implementing federal farm programs, said McCartney. "I'm very proud of the role FSA plays in supporting farmers and ranchers and promoting agriculture," he said.

With the ongoing debate over the new farm bill, many people have heard about the subsidies and disaster assistance payments FSA makes to farmers. McCartney said these programs are critical to the survival of America's family farms, but added that there are other programs that haven't been in the media spotlight.

Among those programs, McCartney said, is the beginning farmer loan program. "The American farmer is getting older," he said. "In 1997, the average of age was 55 years old, and 17 percent of farmers were age 70 and over. To ensure the future of agriculture, we need to recruit younger farmers.

"Farming is an expensive business," he said, "and without financial help many promising farmers wouldn't have a chance to get started." Through the beginning farmer program, eligible applicants can borrow money at low interest rates to buy land and equipment and cover operating expenses. Loans and loan guarantees totaling $299.5 million have been provided to 3,145 beginning farmers throughout the United States so far in Fiscal Year 2002. "We have youth loans for 10- to 20-year-olds so they can start up agriculture related businesses," said McCartney.

"We also have a loan program that provides funding to members of socially disadvantaged groups — women and minorities — so they can get funding to buy and operate farms," said McCartney. Loans and loan guarantees totaling $123.1 million have been provided to 1,362 minority and women farmers nationwide this fiscal year. Direct farm ownership loan assistance totaling $12.3 million has been provided to 95 minority and women farmers in the U.S.

"The men and women who work for FSA are not only responsible for implementing federal farm programs, they are there to help producers understand what programs are available to them and to help them complete the application or forms required to qualify. They frequently go above and beyond to provide this assistance," said McCartney.

For information on other Farm Service Agency programs, persons may contact the Preston County FSA Office located in the USDA Service Center in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza.

Coalition Urges Re-Authorization Of Farm Bill

Banding together to support the re-authorization of the national Farm Bill, a broad coalition of Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia farmers, senior government leaders, and Chesapeake Bay advocates recently released an analysis that describes the bill as an unprecedented opportunity to drastically improve water quality in both the bay and its five-state watershed.

The analysis, jointly prepared by the Chesapeake Bay Commission, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, regional agricultural advocates, and the offices of the respective natural resource secretaries in Maryland and Virginia, indicates that the Conservation and Commodities portion of the bill now before Congress, by itself, represents a four- to eight-fold increase in funding for land conservation practices and price supports in each of the three primary watershed states.

"Our latest scientific findings point to the fact that we may need to triple our commitment to keeping harmful polluting nutrients out of the bay and its tributaries," said J. Charles Fox, secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. "Maryland and its surrounding states are willing to make that extra effort, but we'll need a sizable new investment from the federal government."

Among other findings, the analysis reveals this bill could provide $1.7 billion in funding for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) nationally every year. These funds that would allow every farmer, not just the one in three in the three states under the current funding formula, who wants to plant cover crops, plant protective buffers or otherwise further reduce nutrient impact on waterways to do so.

"Farmers were the first conservationists, and most farmers today are hampered in that effort due to lack of funds," said W. Taylor Murphy Jr., Virginia secretary of natural resources. "Farmers across Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland want to do more to help the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, and this is an opportunity that may not come again."

"Never before have we had such a chance to increase funds going to agricultural conservation. This is an exceptional opportunity," said Pennsylvania representative Russ Fairchild, chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Commission.

"Maryland farmers are committed to doing their part to protect the Chesapeake Bay, and the funding provided in the federal farm bill is integral to that effort," said Maryland Department of Agriculture Secretary Hagner Mister.

State Goat Conference To Focus On Health, Marketing, Production Issues

An increasing number of farmers with small and part-time operations in the Mid-Atlantic region are finding that goats can form the basis for a worthwhile agricultural enterprise. Helping farmers make such an enterprise profitable is the purpose of the Maryland Goat Conference, scheduled for Saturday, March 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Carroll County Ag Center in Westminster.

Goat producers and anyone else with an interest in goat production are welcome to attend the day-long event, which is sponsored by Maryland Cooperative Extension, with financial support from USDA Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education Chapter 3 funds.

Speakers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia will share their expertise on a variety of issues:

- Dr. Anne Zajac, a veterinarian and parasitologist from the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine (VMRCV-M), will discuss parasites;
- Dr. Kevin Pelzer, a veterinarian from the V-MRCVM who specializes in sheep and goat production management medicine, will share information on diseases;
- Robert Herr, Ph.D., a goat broker and feedlot operator in eastern Lancaster County, will share his expertise on marketing issues;
- Don Schwartz, a grazing expert and Maryland Cooperative Extension agricultural educator in Washington County, will discuss pasture management for goat producers;
- Dr. Niki Whitley, Maryland Cooperative Extension livestock specialist at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, will describe the various breeds of goats and their role in production systems; and
- Susan Schoenian, Maryland Cooperative Extension's new area agent for sheep and goats in western Maryland, will cover the economics of meat goats and feeding practices for goat herds.

Commercial exhibits and door prizes also will be included in the day's activities.

A registration fee of $25 per person will be charged. The fee includes lunch, refreshments, and resource materials. The luncheon menu will feature various goat meat samples. Registration by Monday, March 25, is recommended to assure a seat and meal at the conference.

To register, persons may contact the Carroll County Extension office in Westminster at 410-386-2760, 888-326-9645 or mb232@umail.umd.edu. Checks should be made payable to the Carroll County EAC and mailed to 700 Agricultural Center, Westminster, MD 21157.

Herbicides for Newly Seeded Alfalfa

For years we have not had many choices of herbicides to apply postemergence to newly seeded alfalfa. Pursuit and Raptor are now labeled for postemergence weed control in newly seeded or established alfalfa. Some of the primary research indicates that Raptor may be more effective on lambsquarter and velvetleaf. Both herbicides provide good control of mustard, pigweed, chickweed, foxtail, barnyard grass, nightshades and smartweed. There is some slight risk of injury, but the alfalfa normally recovers in a few days. Read the label for precautions and rate of application.

Managing Your 3-Year Old Beef Cow
by Dr. Scott Barao, University of Maryland

The most difficult job in the cowherd is being a first calf heifer. When she weaned her first calf, she was 2½ years old. She will be 3 years old at her next calving and the youngest producing cow in the herd. She is youthful, but she is also low on the pecking order.

After a summer of having room to run, she finds herself with all of the old bose cows and wondering where to turn. Her life gives new meaning to stress: facing down mature fully grown cows when they are hungry, fighting for room to lie down on bedding, etc. Old cows outweigh the first calf heifer by 220 pounds and have more energy reserve in terms of body condition.

Cows continue to grow until they reach 7 years of age. Body condition is more constant and levels off a year earlier at 6 years of age. The important point to remember is that cows are not fullygrown as heifers and actually have seven years of growth before they start to decrease in weight. Cows slowly work themselves up to a peak weight at 7 years of age and then start to lose weight until they leave the herd. Fourteen-year-old cows weigh the same as 3-year-old cows in the fall of the year. If you have a spare minute or two, look in on those 3-yearolds.

Timely Tips for Fruit Growers

Now is a good time to select and order fruit plants from reputable mail order companies. Select recommended, disease-resistant varieties when possible and be sure you indicate a desired shipping date. For apple trees, be sure you know the exact rootstock you are ordering.

Fruit plants can be set out as long as the soil is not wet. If you receive bare-rooted plants and cannot get them planted right away, keep them in a cool, dry, well-ventilated area where they will not freeze. Keep the roots covered with moist sawdust or shredded newspaper. Be prepared to protect fruit plants and trees this spring from vole feeding by keeping organic mulches away from the trunk and surrounding the trunk with pea gravel. You can also surround the lower four feet of tree trunks with hardware cloth that extends a few inches below the soil line. This will also prevent deer browsing. Remove and dispose of all rotted or fallen fruits from trees, vines and bushes. This will help reduce the amount of disease inoculum and number of insect pests that over-winter and attack your orchard this spring.

This is a good time to spray fruit trees that were attacked during the growing season by aphids, mites and scale insects. Dormant oil sprays are very effective at reducing populations of some tree fruit pests. Spray trees thoroughly with a dormant oil spray if temperatures are above 40 degrees F. and expected to remain above freezing for the 24-hour period after spraying. Dormant oil sprays will burn open leaf and flower buds. If buds have broken or green tissue is showing, apply horticultural oil at the summer (2%) rate. Never spray dormant oil within 10 days of a sulfur-containing spray unless the product indicates otherwise.

Pull mulch away from blueberry plants and gently cultivate the soil around each plant to a depth of one inch. This will help prevent mummy berry disease. Liquid lime sulfur is a safe and inexpensive material that can be sprayed on raspberry, blackberry, and blueberry plants prior to bud swell to prevent cane diseases. It should also be applied to peach trees and plum trees when buds begin to swell but before green tissue is visible. This will help prevent peach leaf curl disease and plum pockets diseases. Liquid lime sulfur can also burn green tissue. If green tissue is showing, use captan instead. Bordeaux mix and other copper or copper sulfate products labeled for backyard orchards can be applied to apple and pear trees at bud swell, silver tip or early green stage (when green tissue at the top of the bud is first observed) to reduce the incidence of fireblight.

Fruit plants can be pruned now through the bloom period. Remove the fruited, dead canes of brambles and any flowering canes that are weak, diseased or infested with borers. Fall bearing raspberry plants should have been mowed to the ground. Apple and pear trees can be pruned at this time. Remove dead, broken and crossing branches and keep younger trees pruned to a Christmas tree shape. Peach trees should be pruned after flowering. Maintain an open vase shape to encourage good air circulation and fruiting through your peach trees. Shorten up branches and thin out weak growth. Fireblight damage on apples and pears should be pruned out now to lessen the chance of spreading this bacterial infection in the spring.

All fruit plants can be fertilized in March, except strawberries, which are fertilized in August. Peach trees usually require an annual early spring application of a balanced fertilizer. Be careful not to over-fertilize apple trees. It can lead to excessive, weak growth and promote disease and insect pest problems. If apple and pear trees are healthy, fruitful and making 12-18 inches of new shoot growth each year, they don't need to be fertilized at all. Blueberry plants require the ammonium form of nitrogen for best growth and this can be supphed with ammonium sulfate fertilizer.

Russian Ban on U.S. Chicken Could Cost Maryland Producers $15 Million

By Candia Dames
Capital News Service

Maryland poultry producers stand to lose about $15 million in trade annually if U.S. officials cannot convince Russia to reverse a March 1 ban on U.S. poultry imports.

A Maryland Department of Agriculture official said exports account for about $67 million of the state's annual $460 million in broiler sales each year. The $15 million in chicken that goes to Russia may be a small percentage of overall exports, but its loss would have a "substantial impact," said the spokesman, Don Vandrey.

"This would be painful for the industry," Vandrey said.

Officials from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative were scheduled to travel to Russia last weekend in an attempt to get the ban reversed, according to industry officials.

Russian embassy officials were not available for comment Friday, but a statement on the embassy's web site by Ministry of Foreign Affairs spokesman Alexander Yakovenko said the ban was imposed due to sanitary concerns.

But a group of senators protesting the ban said it was imposed after the USDA provided "quick" answers to 14 production-related questions posed by the Russian government.

Maryland Democratic Sens. Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes joined other senators in a letter to U.S. Ambassador to Russia Alexander Vershbow last week, saying "the Russian-imposed embargo will cause extreme hardships for U.S. producers and will have a severe impact on states and communities throughout our country.

"This embargo has no veterinary basis and it clearly violates the 1996 US-Russian bilateral veterinary agreement," the letter said.

Trade Representative Robert B. Zoellick labeled the ban "unjustified" in a statement this week and said, "U.S. poultry and poultry product exports meet the highest safety standards in the world."

Published reports have linked the ban to President Bush's recent decision to impose a tariff of up to 30 percent on steel imports from countries including Russia. But Yakovenko said there was no connection "between the strictly protectionist measures" of the steel tariff and Russia's ban on U.S. poultry imports "stemming from the problem of compliance with sanitary standards and the protection of the people's health."

Richard Lobb, a spokesman for the National Chicken Council, said Russia wants to sever poultry trade with the United States to protect its own producers, who are unable to meet the demands of their market. Lobb said Russian farmers produced only 565,000 metric tons of poultry to add to the more than 1 million metric tons of U.S. imports.

"They feel like they're getting swamped," Lobb said. But he cited Russian media reports that American chicken is a "godsend" and "the staff of life" in the country.

Lobb said 8 percent of U.S. poultry production ends up in Russia, and an embargo would mean the loss of $630 million in exports. In 2001, the United States shipped more than 1 million metric tons of poultry to Russia, its largest export market.

"This is a very important trade for us," Lobb said. "It's also important to Maryland consumers."

The Russian market is important for the export of dark meat, which American consumers generally shun in favor of white meat, he said.

Vandrey said if Russian imports were cut off, cheap chicken would flood the domestic market, which is bad news for poultry producers.

"It goes beyond poultry farmers," he said. "It goes down to industries that support poultry farmers. It'll eventually affect the whole economy."

Maryland is the eighth-largest poultry farming state in the nation, producing about 283 million chickens a year, according to the National Chicken Council, an industry trade association.

Production Of Ethanol Moves Ahead In Md.

The reality of Maryland having its first ethanol plant took steps forward, as a formal name was chosen at a strategic planning meeting last week. "Mid-Atlantic Bio Fuels" is the new project name for the process that has been working for almost a year to lay the groundwork for the construction of a small-grains ethanol plant. The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board and the Maryland Center for Agro-Ecology Inc. originally commissioned a feasibility study last spring to investigate this project in the hope that it would evolve into reality.

Robert Hutchison, newly elected chairman of the Mid-Atlantic Bio Fuels Project and a grain farmer in Talbot County, stated, "I am very pleased with the direction this project is taking. Though we have much more ground to cover, I feel we are moving on course with the ultimate goal being a small grains ethanol plant in full operation in the region."

Al Voudrie of Voudrie Business Development, Elk River, Minn., the firm that conducted the feasibility study, has been chosen to develop the next phase of this project — the business plan, often thought of as the most important part of a project's success. Before the project can complete the business plan, other issues that must be decided on include financing, engineering process, operational structure, and feedstock combinations.

The Mid-Atlantic Bio Fuels Project hopes to draw the interest of farmers in Maryland and surrounding states. Many of the existing ethanol plants, mostly located in the Midwest, are farmer-owner cooperatives. Ideally, it will be the farmers and other interested individuals and groups who invest in the ethanol plant, provide the needed small grains feedstock, and capture the profits from the sale of the ethanol and the two byproducts, dried distillers grains and carbon dioxide, according to Hutchison.

"The ethanol industry has expanded over the past years and continues to increase its production each month. The events of Sept. 11 increased awareness of the need to have energy independence. To achieve such a task, it will take forward thinkers to make it a reality. I would like to think that Mid-Atlantic Bio Fuels is fulfilling this role in Maryland," Hutchison said.

The small-grains ethanol plant in question will be designed to produce 15 million gallons of ethanol per year and will cost approximately $31 million to construct. It is the hope of the Mid-Atlantic Bio Fuels Project that this plant will use primarily barley as its feedstock. Approximately 7 million bushels of barley will be needed to produce 15 million gallons of ethanol. It is the feeling of Hutchison that farmers would be willing to increase their barley production should there be a demand and increase in price per bushel. Both could exist with the construction of a Maryland-based ethanol plant. Barley also serves as a great cover crop — a benefit to the environment by helping to clean up the Chesapeake Bay.

Over the next six months, Voudrie Business Development will develop the business plan. At that point, if all seems favorable, investors will be sought to move this project to its next step.

Anyone having interest in this project may contact Lynne Hoot at 410-956-5771.

Southern States Joins Observance Of Nat'l Ag Week

March 17-23 will be observed as National Agriculture Week in the United States, but the U.S. industry featured in the annual event has a worldwide scope.

"U.S. agriculture is important throughout the world because the productivity of our nation's farmers provides food and fiber to millions of people around the globe," said Wayne Boutwell, president and CEO of Southern States Cooperative. Southern States is a Richmond-based co-op serving more than 300,000 farmer-owners, as well as other urban and rural customers, in 23 states.

"The U.S. farmer's productivity and efficiency also spell major benefits here at home," Boutwell adds. "U.S. consumers spend only about 9 percent of their income on food." That figure compares with 11 percent in the United Kingdom, 17 percent in Japan, 27 percent in South Africa, and 53 percent in India.

National Agriculture Day, March 20, highlights the weeklong observance on the first day of spring. The event has been celebrated since 1973.

In 1999, Ag Day included the launching of "America's Largest Classroom on Agriculture" to provide customers young and old with information about the scope and diversity of the nation's largest industry and employer. A web site (www.agday.org) offers facts explaining how agriculture "is everywhere and how it touches everyone." The Agriculture Council of America, a not-for-profit entity composed of leaders in agricultural, food, and fiber businesses and organizations, sponsors the site.

Among other things, the web site reports the following:

- Nearly 2 million people farm or ranch in the United States, with almost 90 percent of U.S. farms operated by individuals or family corporations.
- More than 15 percent of the U.S. population is employed in farm or farm-related jobs, including production agriculture, farm inputs, processing and marketing, and wholesale and retail sales.
- In the 1960s, one U.S. farmer supplied food for 25.8 persons in this nation and abroad. By 1994, productivity gains meant that one farmer supplied 129 people.

"Agriculture is such a fundamental and significant part of our economy and our nation's strength that a broad understanding of it is essential," Boutwell added. "It's simply too important a topic to be limited to those who have a direct role in the industry."

HILTON HEAD, S.C. - A doctor believes that a natural formula containing the extract of a small Asian fruit can help cause significant weight loss.

Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported in an American Medical Journal that the formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000®, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

Dr. Conte says that animal studies suggest the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to interruption of the "Krebs Cycle", an important step in the body's fat storage process. He says it may work the same way in humans. According to Dr. Conte, "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a dietary food supplement. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States with one big exception -- it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips Gulf Corp., is calling the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."

Suggested retail price for a four week supply of Bio-Rex is just $19.99. Available through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com

Doctor's discovery may end obesity

HILTON HEAD, S.C. – A doctor believes that a natural formula containing the extract of a small Asian fruit can help cause significant weight loss.

Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported in an American Medical Journal that the formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000®, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

Dr. Conte says that animal studies suggest the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to interruption of the "Krebs Cycle", an important step in the body's fat storage process. He says it may work the same way in humans. According to Dr. Conte, "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a dietary food supplement. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States with one big exception-- it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips GulfCorp., is calling the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."

Suggested retail price for a four week supply of Bio-Rex is just $19.99. Available through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com

It's a dot.com (without the initials)

It's an MBA (without the IOU).

And it's all mine.

Running a business appealed to me. But let's face it, there's never a venture capitalist around when you need one. So I was open to Enterprise. Here they train me to run a profit center, manage people and handle myself in business settings. It's like my own startup, backed by a $5 billion company.

Enterprise isn't for me uniforms. It's dressing professionally, conducting sales calls, planning logistics. Easy? No. But people who succeed here aren't afraid to prove themselves, or have fun together. And now that I have the potential to outearn most MBAs, I look forward to doing both.

How To Buy An Outdoor Furnace

1. Read the warranty. Will the dealer give you a copy to look at? Know what you're buying.
2. Look in a new furnace, not a used one. See what you're buying. Is it designed well to save on wood and coal?
3. How many years has the furnace been manufactured?
4. 20 year warranty? What does it cover?
5. Shop the internet for furnaces and warranties. If warranty isn't listed, they don't want you to know. Look Out!

St. Patrick's Day Dance Set In TA

The Terra Alta Civic Club has scheduled its annual Luck of the Irish Dance for Saturday, March 16, beginning at 9:30 p.m. at Alpine Lake Resort. Disc jockey Mike Falkenstein will be playing "oldies" music for dancing. The minimum age to enter is 21, and proper identification is required. The cost is $5 per couple and $3 for singles.

Local Student Is Habitat Volunteer

Freshman biology major Maria Harsh of Terra Alta, W.Va., and 28 other Bridgewater (Va.) College students spent spring break this year as construction workers, volunteering for Habitat for Humanity's Collegiate Challenge: Spring Break 2002.

The students, accompanied by college chaplain Robbie Miller, left campus for Miami, Fla., on Saturday, March 2, and returned on Sunday, March 10.

The Bridgewater College Campus Chapter is one of nearly 700 campus chapters worldwide. Organized by Bridgewater students, the group is affiliated with Central Valley Habitat for Humanity, located in Bridgewater, and helps provide shelter to residents of Harrisonburg and Rockingham County in Virginia. This makes the tenth year that Bridgewater students have been using their spring break to work in various Habitat projects.

Dinner, Drawing Will Raise Funds For TA Students

The Luck of Irish drawing and rib dinner will be held at the Terra Alta East Preston School today, Thursday, March 14, to support the computer curriculum at the school.

The dinner is sponsored by the Terra Alta East Preston Technology Team, Russ's Ribs of Fairmont, and the Garrett Rural Information Cooperative (GRIC). Dinner tickets are $7.50 for adults and $5 for children under 12.

The drawing will be held at 7 p.m., and persons do not need to be present to win. The prizes will be a get-away package, a car care package, a bird watcher package, a spring clean-up package, a flower garden package, and an Internet package.

Tickets for the drawing are $1 each or 4/$4.50, and can be purchased at the door or at local merchants.

Entertainment will be provided by Jim Hollis and his band, and there will be a bake sale, sponsored by the Mars Millennium Group from the sixth grade.

Several couples from the Maple Spring Church spent an afternoon of fun and fellowship on Sunday at the church. The party was planned and arranged by Kelly and Ronnie Junkins.

Carl Fike of Oakland was the Sunday guest minister at Maple Spring. His brother, Jeff Fike, also of Oakland, was the March 3 speaker. Russell Sines of Swallow Falls served as speaker for three of the February Sundays.

Erma Gnegy of Amboy is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she underwent surgery Tuesday.

Jerry and Barbara Hauser of Cash Valley were recent visitors in Delaware with her aunt, Lela Judy, who, though past 100 years of age, lives alone and welcomes company from "home."

Aurora VFD Sets Monthly Breakfast

April 29, 1914 – March 18, 1996

There is a place called Memory Lane
It's down the path of time
We see it from our window pane
Each vision is sublime.

We go there on each special day
We go there when we're blue
God has given us this unique way
To spend some time with you.

Yes, there is a place called Memory Lane
We visit there today
The day God called you home
Leaves us with moments to replay.

It brings back life when you were here
We can feel the love you shared
Each thought of you becomes more dear
And reveals how much you cared

Broken is the family circle
Since you - "Our Dear One" passed away
Passed from earth and earthly darkness
Into bright and perfect day

Grant Awarded To Garrett Teacher Training Program

A mathematics teacher training program sponsored by Garrett Community College is one of 25 educational programs across Maryland that have been awarded grant funding to help pre-K through college-level teachers bring curriculum and instructional innovations to their classrooms. The Maryland Higher Education Commission distributed the grants to 19 Maryland public and private colleges, universities, and higher education research centers for educational programs.

GCC's program — "Bridge Goals: A Staff Development Plan to Enrich Algebra 2/Intermediate Algebra and College Algebra Instruction" — received $90,000 out of a total of $2 million being awarded this year through the federally funded Eisenhower Professional Development Program. For 17 years the Eisenhower Program has provided grants to institutions of higher education to offer teachers and administrators high-quality training in critical shortage areas, especially math and science. The awards range from $45,000 to $100,000.

"This grant will enable us to train teachers across the state in new ways of presenting algebra to strengthen course content and promote student success," said Dr. Nancy Priselac, chairperson of the GCC Math Department. "The program partners the public schools and higher education in a new and exciting way.

"A lot of the training will be done via the distance learning classroom throughout Maryland. There are about 150 such classrooms located throughout the state, and in order to conduct the training we'll be utilizing each of the three Garrett County locations — GCC and Northern and Southern high schools — plus a compressed video classroom at GCC.

"The training will focus on new content, and in the new assessment using the Rubrik Form. All teachers need to be skilled in assessing extended response questions, such as word problems and essays, where a graphing calculator will be needed to assist in their analysis. Most career fields require knowledge of algebra, including allied health, medicine, information tech-

Olney Man Gets 30 Days For Drug Offenses

Jon Robert Borderieux, 30, Olney, pleaded guilty in the Garrett County Circuit Court last week to two drug-related offenses — possession of LSD and possession of marijuana. Borderieux was then sentenced by Judge Jim Sherbin to two years in the Department of Corrections, with all but 30 days of that sentence suspended. After his release from the Garrett County Jail, Borderieux will be on supervised probation.

Borderieux was arrested last June by Maryland State Police, who responded to a complaint of suspicious persons in the area of the Garrett 8 Cinemas at Deep Creek Lake. When officers requested identification, Borderieux retrieved his from his truck. Reportedly, during the retrieval, officers standing nearby saw Borderieux toss a bag into the rear of the truck. They also saw a plastic baggie of suspected marijuana on the driver's side floor. An additional quantity of marijuana and the LSD were found when the vehicle was searched.

Although orginally charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana, that charge was dismissed upon Borderieux's plea to the possession offenses, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, Garrett County state's attorney.

Trails Task Force Planning To Blaze New Biking/Hiking Routes

The Recreational Trails Task Force, appointed last year by the Garrett County commissioners and co-sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, has been meeting regularly to discuss how best to utilize the county's abundant outdoor resources for leisure biking and hiking. The group has initiated a comprehensive planning process to review and study the current condition of trails in the county and how best to integrate them into a organized system of trails, according to chairperson Steve Green.

The task force has put together a trail plan for connecting many Garrett County locations, applied for funding, and hired a consultant to help implement the trail plan. "We've been impressed with the interest shown by local businesses, the state departments of Natural Resources and Transportation, towns, and user groups," Green commented. "Garrett County has more quality outdoor environments than any other county in the state, but sadly all of our trails are fairly short in length. We hope to add some distance by adding connections to our towns.

"We believe the benefits of a developed recreation trail system for the county will have far-reaching positive effects on the quality of life for residents and visitors," said Green. "There are significant potential economic benefits for local businesses, and the opportunity to increase biking safety in the county. The best part of a trail is that everyone can benefit, as there are no admission fees."

The task force has listed the following proposed general trail routes, in order of importance, as the backbone of a Garrett County recreational trail system: Deep Creek Lake State Park to Wisp Mountain Resort; Oakland to Herrington Manor State Park and then on the Friendsville; Meadow Mountain Trail from Grantsville to DCL State Park; Wisp to Herrington Manor; and a feeder trail for the Allegheny Highlands Trail System, which connects Washington, D.C., and Pittsburgh.

The continuing planning process will necessitate a number of public meetings to discuss specific routes, according to Green, who said he expects the plan to include a blend of available improved roadway shoulders, public and private lands, and rights of way. "Additional off-road trails, whether on private or public lands, may prove controversial," Green noted, citing the debate over a Youghiogheny River biking trail. "However, the studies we have reviewed conclude that property values increase when a trail is constructed on adjoining property.

GCAC Requests $6,000 From Commissioners

Representatives of the Garrett County Arts Council requested $6,000 from the Garrett County commissioners this week to fund a small portion of their fiscal year 2003 budget. In FY 2002, the officials allocated the nonprofit organization $4,000. The previous year, it received $2,000. Sixteen GCAC members and supporters asked the commissioners to continue their financial support, citing the group's positive impact on the county's tourism, culture, artists, and youth.

"A community without cultural arts is like a community without books — functionally and culturally illiterate," said Steve Schlosnagle, GCAC executive administrator. He gave the commissioners an overview of some of the group's accomplishments and a folder containing detailed information about its FY 2003 proposed budget, current membership roster, upcoming projects, and recent grant recipients.

In FY 2001 the Arts Council contributed $33,332 to 22 local organizations,

House, Senate Panels Approve Wildlands Bill

The House Environmental Matters Committee and Senate Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee both recently gave favorable reports to a bill in the Maryland General Assembly that would give a portion of Garrett County forestland a more restrictive designation. Sponsored by Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer, HB 617 — cross-filed as SB 552 — would place the wildlands designation on nearly 4,000 acres in Savage Ravines and South Savage Mountain.

Motorized vehicles, timber harvesting, and development would not be allowed on those lands with the designations. Backpacking, camping, hunting, fishing, and other recreational activities, however, would still be permitted.

At Edwards and Hafer's mid-legislative session meeting held earlier this month at Garrett Community College, some residents questioned the legislators' support of the bill. "We don't want the county to become one big state park," said David Moe.

Karin Miller and Art Beckman, who are involved the local timber industry, pointed out that not cutting old trees in that area would be disastrous, not only to the county's economy but also to the forestland itself. Beckman said 150- to 200-year-old trees that are not harvested will fall down in 10 to 15 years anyway, which in dry conditions could result in fires. "You are setting yourself up for catastrophe," said Miller.

Edwards and Hafer said that they tentatively supported the bill because it was apparent to them that other state lawmakers were going to push for the bill anyway, with or without them, and they wanted to have some control of the local issue. "Some people think we are up here raping the land," said Edwards, despite the fact that the Department of Natural Resources has a good 10-year plan in effect that does an excellent job of managing state forests.

Hafer agreed with Beck-

D.P. Residents Voice Frustrations About Progress Of Water Project

Deer Park officials and residents voiced their frustrations with the slow progress of their water project during a meeting this week with Garrett County commissioners and Sanitary District officials. The commissioners arranged the forum in order to address the residents' concerns and questions about the almost four-year-long attempt to bring water to their town.

"We're here to learn where we stand on the project," said Deer Park mayor Donald Dawson. "The project's been drug out too long." He was also concerned about losing a grant, which expires in April, that would allow low-income residents to hook up to the system. He said he applied for the grant "a few years ago."

Town resident Charles Kitzmiller and his wife have been without water since September. "It's getting old," he said. He has to haul water to flush the toilet, and his wife has to take the laundry to a laundromat.

Former Deer Park mayor Jack Hinebaugh said he has a house that he cannot rent, due to lack of water. Council member Linda Kourey added she also has water problems and has several neighbors with problems. One home in the town was abandoned by its owners three or four years ago because of no water, said Kourey.

"We need water," said council member Rodney Bird. "We're frustrated." Bird and his wife Connie also voiced their frustrations about the lack of information and communication from the Sanitary District about the status of the project.

"I'm equally frustrated," said Ron Petrella, Sanitary District administrator. He added that the project has always been a top priority with his department. The major reason for the delay in the project, apparently, is the lack of water.

"I thought finding water would be the least of our

W.Va. Man Gets One Year For Assault Charge

A Terra Alta, W.Va., man was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court last week for a second-degree assault charge. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Jason Michael Ringer, 20, to two years in the Department of Corrections. One year of that sentence was suspended, and Ringer will serve the remaining year in the Garrett County Jail. He is also required to pay restitution of $550 to the victim. After Ringer's release from the jail, he will be on supervised probation for one year.

Ringer was charged by officers with Garrett Bureau of Investigation in October 2000 with first- and second-degree assault, reckless endangerment, and misdemeanor theft after an investigation revealed he had followed an Oakland-area man to Sanders Lane, off Finger-

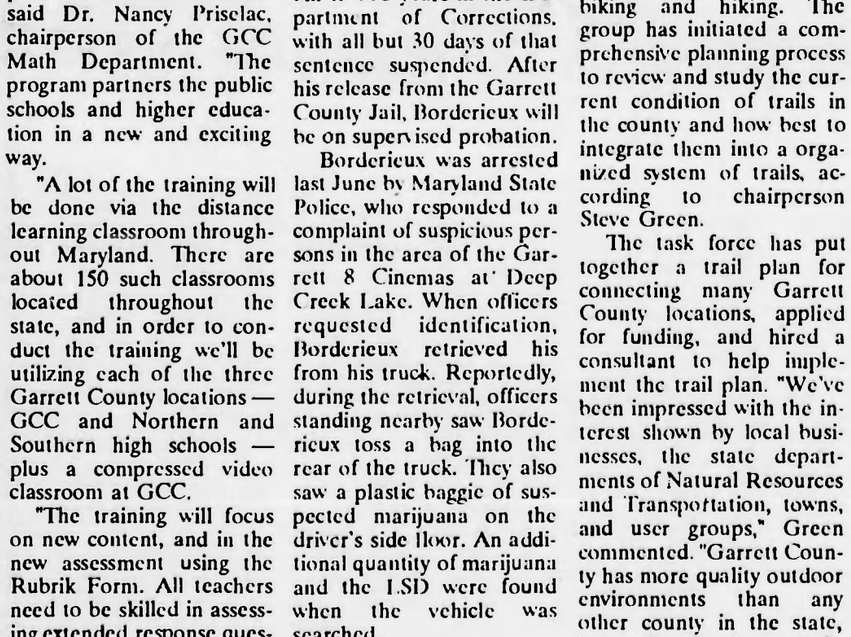
Man Arrested For Allegedly Having Sex With Child

A joint probe by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation and the Garrett County Child Protective Services Unit led to the arrest of a Frostburg man Friday on charges stemming from an alleged sexual relationship he had with a child.

Jackie Lee Burner II, 25, was charged with second degree rape, second degree assault, second degree sex offense, incest, and perverted practice after investigators determined that he allegedly maintained on-going sexual relationship with a 13-year-old that began two years ago.

During the course of the probe personnel from the Maryland State Police Crime Lab were summoned to a Garrett County address where Burner was reportedly having relations with the alleged victim. DNA evidence recovered from inside the residence was deemed to support the child's allegations.

Following his arrest, Burner was released from the Garrett County Jail when he posted a $25,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.



GLAF SEASON TO OPEN TO A SOLD-OUT CROWD — Footworks, a percussive dance ensemble, will open the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's season tomorrow, Friday, March 22, in the Garrett Community College auditorium to a sold out crowd at 8 p.m. The dancers performed for GLAF in 2000 to a sold-out audience also. Most recently, Footworks was the guest artist in the London run of the show Riverdance and sold out its own five-week tour of the United Kingdom. According to a GLAF spokesperson, persons may wait at the box office to see if there are any cancellations for the performance.

IT WAS A FULL HOUSE at last night's meeting of the Garrett County Development Corporation, held at Garrett Community College. The purpose of the meeting was for development consultants Ben Tomb and Valerie Schlitt to continue their efforts in updating the county's economic development strategic plan. Tomb and Schlitt, who have over the past several weeks conducted interviews of numerous local officials and business persons, made a presentation summarizing their findings to date, and provided opportunity for those present to voice their opinions. A meeting for the general public will be held this evening from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room 314 at GCC to give all local citizens an opportunity to provide input to the consultants. The county's economic development plan was last updated in 1996. The consultants' contract calls for them to provide the county a final plan by the end of May. Photo courtesy of Glenn Tolbert.

Discussions Begin For Possibility Of Spring Festival

A five-member board has formed to investigate the possibility of a yearly spring celebration of this region's history that is designed to eventually rival in scale the county's annual Autumn Glory event.

The event has the working title of "The Western Maryland Historical Festival." The idea was presented to a sizable audience in the Oakland Town Hall that included members of the Economic Restructuring Committee from Oakland's Main Street program; representation from the Garrett County Historical Society, Our Town Theatre, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, and the Garrett County Board of Education; and numerous local business owners and citizens.

The initial concept was presented by John Arnold, a local electrician and member of a Civil War re-enactment group. Arnold took the concept to Oakland mayor Asa McCain, who asked Main Street manager Glenn Tolbert to set up the public meeting to discuss the idea.

The plans call for closing much of the Oakland for the three-day event and might include historically accurate camping scenes from both Union and Confederate armies as well as re-enacted battle scenes from the war between the states.

"It just seemed like this part of the state didn't have anything dedicated to our country's history," Arnold said during the meeting. "This would not only accomplish that but would also be good for educational reasons and for business in the area."

Arnold also pointed out that there were few major events in the area in the spring of the year to match anything near fall's Autumn Glory celebration.

As outlined by Arnold and members of the audience, the event would have a strong educational outreach segment spearheaded by Dr. Wendell Teets, who volunteered his services to serve on the planning board. Business people in attendance saw the event as an opportunity to bring large groups of people into town, and some said they would be willing to dress in period costume for the event.

"Just think of all the antiques and things that could be sold while this was going on," said Arnold. "And other forms of local businesses could offer tie-ins to the festivities with their merchandise."

In addition to Dr. Teets, members of the planning board include John Arnold, Larry Cosuer of the Historical Society, Doug Railey of Gonder's Insurance, Sheila Menchaca of the Decorator's Nook, Judy Finkel of Our Town Theatre, and Peggy Santamaria of the Chamber of Commerce.

A small testing of public interest for this type of event is to occur April 26. It was on that date in 1863 when Confederates captured a contingent of Union soldiers guarding a railroad bridge near Oakland. The location of the event has been tentatively set for Broadford Park.

For more information on the plans for the Western Maryland Historical Festival, persons may call Glenn Tolbert at 301-616-5837.

Oakland Couple Arrested After Contacting MSP

An Oakland couple were arrested on charges including drug possession after the husband drove to the Maryland State Police barrack in McHenry Friday morning and told police he needed assistance.

Steven Ritchie and his wife Christina, both 42, each face charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of cocaine, and possession of drug paraphernalia. The man also faces additional charges of driving while under the influence and two counts of illegal handgun possession. Both subjects were released from the Garrett County Jail after each posted a $2,500 bond set by a district court commissioner.

Police said the incident unfolded when Steven Ritchie drove to the McHenry barrack around 6:40 a.m. and told police he was concerned that something may have happened at his home. While speaking to Ritchie, troopers reportedly observed two handguns lying in his vehicle and placed him under arrest for DUI and illegal gun possession.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies and detectives with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation then responded to the Ritchie residence along Fingerboard Road to check on the welfare of anyone who may have been at the home. They spoke with Christina Ritchie on the scene, and although it was determined that she was safe and nothing was amiss, police reported observing suspected drugs at the home.

A search and seizure warrant was obtained, and the ensuing search of the home located a quantity of suspected marijuana, cocaine, and drug paraphernalia.

Traffic Stop Leads To Trio's Marijuana Bust

Maryland State Police arrested two residents of Allegany County and one resident of Washington County, each 18 years old, Friday evening on drug-related charges. The three were stopped shortly after 5 p.m. when the 1997 Chevrolet Cavalier they were riding in was clocked traveling at 80 miles per hour on eastbound Interstate 68 just prior to Friendsville Road.

Before coming to a complete stop, the driver, Nickole Renee Barling, Hancock, pulled off the highway and onto the exit ramp to westbound Friendsville Road, and as she did so police reportedly observed a passenger, Jonathan Thomas Poland, Cresaptown, throwing a clear plastic bag out the car's window. The bag caught on the vehicle's antenna and was retrieved by the state trooper, who determined that it contained suspected marijuana.

Poland, Barling, and the car's third occupant, Ashley Nicole McKenzie, Rawlings, were each charged with marijuana possession, while Barling also received a speeding ticket. Poland was released from jail after he posted a $500 bond, while Barling and McKenzie were both released on their own recognizance.

A traffic stop led to the arrest of Pennsylvania man on a theft charge early Friday afternoon. Paul Gene Pressy Jr., 30, Quakertown, was stopped for a seat belt violation on National Highway just west of Garrett Highway at 1:32 p.m. A routine computer check of his vehicle's license plates revealed that they had been reported stolen by the Richland Township (Pa.) Police Department.

Pressy was immediately arrested on a misdemeanor theft charge, which he faces in addition to charges of driving on an expired and suspended license, possession of a suspended license, failure to produce a registration card, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, displaying license plates issued to another vehicle, and driving without wearing a seatbelt.

Pressy remains incarcerated on a $2,500 bond.

DUI Arrests

State police made several DUI arrests this week. Jennifer Leann Stemple, 26, Oakland, was arrested on Garrett Highway in the McHenry area shortly after 2 a.m. Sunday. Anthony Dale Hincbaugh Jr., 25, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested along Garrett Highway south of Oakland at approximately 3:20 a.m. Sunday.

Fog, Ice Help Lead To Sunday Vehicle Mishaps

A spate of Sunday afternoon and early evening ear crashes in northern Garrett County were attributed in large measure to fog and ice, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack. Each of the accidents led to minor injuries, although only one involved the filing of charges against a driver.

John Augustus Fadeley, 69, Frostburg, was charged with driving at a speed greater than reasonable in the wake of a 5:32 p.m. accident along Interstate 68 just east of Finzel Road. Fadeley was hospitalized at Cumberland Memorial Hospital for several days after the accident, while the occupants of the other vehicle involved were treated and released.

Fadeley was driving a 1996 Jeep Cherokee westbound on the highway when he came up from behind a 1984 Chevrolet Blazer that was slowing for traffic ahead. Fadeley's Jeep struck the other vehicle in the rear, and the resulting collision injured Fadeley and the Blazer's driver, Donald Lauer, 38, and his two passengers, Ruth Lauer, 42, and Cerri Lauer, 8, all of Swanton.

The Frostburg Area Ambulance Service transported all injured parties to the hospital. Personnel from the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene. Troopers cited fog and ice as contributing factors in the accident.

That accident came 30 minutes after another mishap at almost the same location. At 5 p.m. Jennifer Sudlow, 33, Reynoldsburg, Ohio, was driving westbound on I-68 when another vehicle traveling in front of her began to slide on the icy roadway. When she was forced to take evasive action to avoid a collision, Sudlow lost control of her 1995 Pontiac Grand Am and struck a guardrail.

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Sudlow to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. The Grantsville VFD assisted at the scene. Fog and icy road conditions were cited as factors in the single-vehicle crash, and no charges were filed.

The western end of the Garrett County portion of the interstate was the scene of a 3:05 p.m. single-vehicle accident Sunday, when a 2001 Lincoln LS sedan went out of control and skidded off the highway near the entrance to the Maryland rest area. The driver, Anne Werun Lambright, 51, was injured slightly and was transported by the Northern Rescue Squad to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, where she was treated and released. The Friendsville VFD assisted at the scene. Again, weather and road conditions were cited in the accident, and no charges were filed.

A two-car collision early Sunday afternoon along Chestnut Ridge Road resulted in minor injuries for two Allegany County residents, both of whom were treated at Cumberland Memorial and released.

Shortly before 12:30 p.m. a 1999 Pontiac Grand Am operated by William Flewood Klotz, 55, Cumberland, was traveling south along the road when it approached from behind a

Spring Discovery Day To Showcase GCC Offerings

Garrett Community College's "Spring Discovery Day" will be held on Saturday, April 13, beginning at 8:30 a.m. in the college auditorium. The event will showcase GCC's programs and services to prospective students with a special afternoon session featuring the Agricultural Management program.

Planned for delivery in a different format from previous open houses, the Discovery Day program will include information sessions and the GCC showcase in the morning. Those activities will be followed by campus tours and a pig roast prepared by students in the Agricultural Management program, and the afternoon will be devoted to special outdoor activities and demonstrations.

"We are having two open houses in one day — the indoor one in the morning and the outdoor one focusing on agriculture in the afternoon," said Director of Enrollment Development Crystal Roberson, who is coordinating the event. "We hope that interested students will attend the entire day."

THE "AYES" HAVE IT — A large group of local citizens came to hear Carol Vitale, on the right, speak about the pros and cons of Oakland having an officially designated "arts and entertainment" district. Benefits include tax cuts for people and buildings dedicated to the arts. Representatives from Our Town Theatre, the Garrett County Historical Society Museum, and many local business people attended the quarterly Greater Oakland Business Association meeting. The invitation of the speaker is a development that Oakland's Main Street program manager has been advocating for every GOBA meeting in order to regenerate enthusiasm for the organization. At the end of the meeting, the crowd voted overwhelmingly to process all the paper work to have a major part of Oakland declared an "arts and entertainment" district. Following this meeting, the Chamber of Commerce "After Hours" was held at The Republican newspaper along Second Street. (Photo by Glenn Tolbert.)

The day's activities will get under way in the auditorium with brief presentations about GCC's admissions process by Roberson, financial aid services by Pat Bennett, career services by Stacie Upole, Business and Information Technology program by Dr. Terry Norris, academic programs by Dr. Lillian Mitchell, and student government activities by Lauren Stillwagon.

Following those presentations, participants will move on to the Lakers' Café, where tables will be set up to showcase these services and programs, along with teacher education, other transfer programs, and adventure sports. Designated faculty and administrators will be at each table to give specific information and to answer questions.

The campus tours will then proceed toward the Advanced Technology Center, where prospective students will see the welding shop, greenhouse, aquaculture building, rabbit and goat barn, and the adventure sports rental shop.

Agriculture Management students and faculty, led by Willie Lantz, Kris DeWitt, and Amanda Gregory, will then serve a luncheon featuring a roast pig. Afternoon activities will include a tractor pull, hayrides, livestock and GPS (Global Positioning System) demonstrations, and roping. Ice cream will be served, and door prize drawings will be held. Interested students will have opportunities to speak with Lantz about the college's Agriculture Management program.

All high school students and other interested persons are invited to attend GCC's Spring Discovery Day. Those interested in further information may call Roberson at 301-387-3046.

The task force was created to provide the Maryland Department of Natural Resources with suggestions for managing the bear population. Virginia Man Jailed After Vehicle Chase

A Charlottesville, Va., man was apprehended by Maryland State Police troopers after a short vehicle chase in the Friendsville area Monday evening.

Anthony Christopher Mayo, 19, faces a variety of charges from the incident, which began at 5:23 p.m. when a trooper tried to flag down his speeding 1999 Dodge Durango on westbound Interstate 68 just east of Friendsville. Although motioned to stop, Mayo kept going, and a pursuit ensued that led into the town of Friendsville, where he was stopped on Maple Street just south of Route 42.

When Mayo exited the vehicle under police orders, some loose suspected marijuana was observed on his pants and he was arrested. A vehicle search uncovered additional suspected marijuana, suspected cocaine and drug paraphernalia, and a knife.

Mayo was charged with possession of marijuana, cocaine, drug paraphernalia, and a concealed deadly weapon, as well as fleeing and eluding a police officer, driving on a suspended license, and speeding. He was subsequently released from the Garrett County Jail when he posted a $500 bond.

Complaints From Callers Lead To Two Arrests

Several calls to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office concerning subjects in a vehicle destroying mailboxes in the Pleasant Valley and Underwood Road areas led to the arrest of two Oakland men early Friday morning.

At approximately 4 a.m., sheriff's deputies located a vehicle in the Oakland area which matched the description given by witnesses and stopped it at Third and Oak streets.

After an investigation, Joshua D. Moyer, 19, and Daniel P. Friend, 20, were arrested, police said.

Both were charged with destruction of property, disturbing the peace, and possession of alcohol under the age of 21. Moyer was also charged with driving while impaired (DWI), DWI per se, and driving under the influence (DUI).

More charges are pending, police said.

In another incident, a Richmond, Va., woman was arrested early Sunday morning along Paull Street, Loch Lynn, on drunk driving charges.

Linda Lee Hoffman, 42, was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, failure to drive right of center, driving without a license, and driving a motor vehicle on a highway on a revoked out-of-state license.

She was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $1,500 bond, according to a spokesperson.

In other police news, deputies made three arrests after responding to a residence along Hutton Road for an alleged disturbance.

Upon arrival at the residence around 7 p.m. on Monday, the deputies met the complainants and conducted an investigation of the incident.

According to police, Elizabeth Jean Kelley, 27, and Matthew Allen Butler, 20, accused Michael Patrick Glotfelty, 25, of assault. Glotflety accused Kelley and Butler of the same.

Deputies placed all three under arrest, charging each with second degree assault.

Kelley, Butler, and Glotfelty were all released from jail on their own recognizance.

In another incident, Bonnie Ann White, 42, Terra Alta, W.Va., was arrested Wednesday around 11 p.m. along Hutton Road and charged with DUI and failure to drive right of center.

She was released that night on her own recognizance, police said.

1996 Chrysler Concord that was stopped in the same lane waiting to turn left onto Davies Road. Police said that Klotz failed to reduce his speed to avoid a collision, and struck the other vehicle, which was being driven by William Earl Dorsey Jr., 60, Cumberland.

Although both drivers escaped injury, two of Dorsey's three passengers, Albert Francis Long, 54, and Christina Louise Piper, 52, were both transported by the Northern Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial, where they were treated and released.

Why No Arrests?...

"That cigarettes are deadly poisonous is an absolute scientific fact. A physician made a solution of all the nicotine from one cigarette; one-half of it was injected into a full-grown frog, from the effects of which the frog died almost instantly. The other half was used upon another frog with the same result. The poison of the cigarette is as deadly to the human being as to the frog, but slower in its work. Diseases resulting from its use are well known to physicians. The same physician who experimented upon the frogs says that instead of the fancy pictures which accompany cigarette packages each ought to bear a skull and crossbones and be marked 'deadly poison' the same as other poisonous drugs... It is to be hoped that the earth will not have passed many milestones in the new century before the deadly 'coffin nail' is relegated to obscurity."

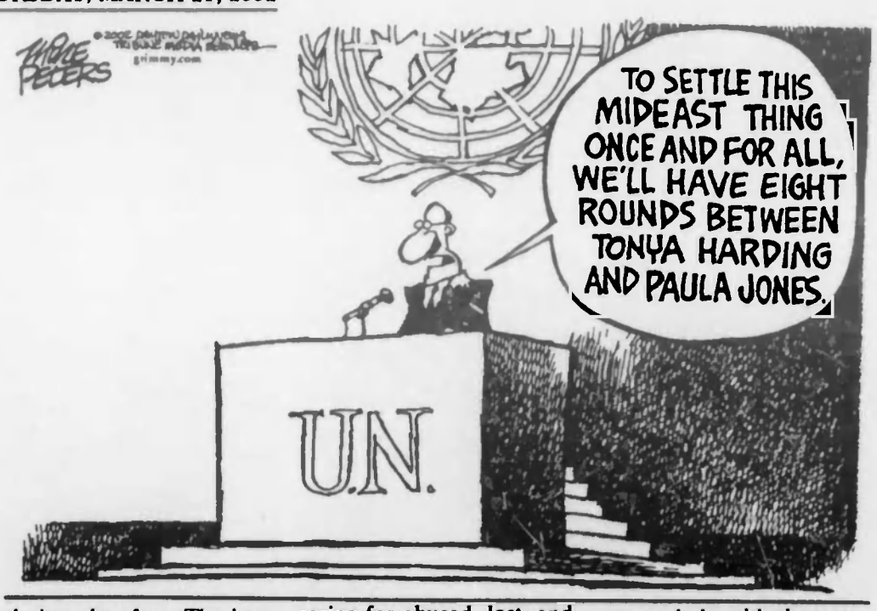
The above words appeared in an issue of The Republican, which in and of itself is no big thing. However, believe it or not, the "new century" referred to is not the 21st century, but the 20th century, as the article was published in a January 1901 issue. We just happened to stumble upon it this morning while searching for items for our 125th anniversary page.

We were somewhat stunned to see this, well remembering the 1960s when the tobacco industry was still trying to tell the public that there was no proof that cigarette smoking was harmful to one's health. It took more than six decades after this aforementioned wise physician made the suggestion for our government to demand any kind of warning label on cigarette packs.

Meanwhile, we are pleased that we have a currently nicotene-addicted writer who is supplying us with a series of articles about his experience as a member of a local smoking cessation class sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department. Being one of them, Glenn Tolbert can speak first-hand about what it is like to be addicted to smoking in the 21st century, and he has had many comments from fellow smokers who appreciate his description and assessment of his addiction. Fortunately, there are over 30 people enrolled in the class, and we hope his series encourages others to sign up for future classes.

It is also good news that smoking trends have been slowly but surely decreasing among young people over the past five years. However, there are still far too many children taking up the deadly habit.

We would love to see our law enforcement officials enforce the Maryland state law that prohibits minors from using tobacco products. Scarcely a week goes by that our newspaper doesn't carry information about the arrest and incarceration of someone smoking marijuana, but almost never do we see an arrest or a juvenile using tobacco products. Why is this?



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I just wanted to express my appreciation to Mr. Donald Sincell, editor of The Republican, for providing a very valuable public service to the people of Garrett County. Most people I know do read the letters to the editor section of this newspaper and they read them all the way through, regardless of the layout.

In a county such as this where discussion of important issues seems to be frowned upon and, yes, even discouraged by our elected officials, this service provides a forum for those of us who think these issues should be aired publicly. Judging from the calls I get, many others agree.

Although I don't agree with some of the writers, I usually find them very entertaining, especially those individuals who are afflicted with logorrhea and advise others to "be brief." Indeed, those people would do well to heed their own advice.

Dawn Panther's two letters, on the other hand, just bubbled over with enthusiasm, excitement, and a positive attitude. The positioning and length of those letters was, in my opinion, appropriate. I thoroughly enjoyed reading both of them. Keep 'em coming, Dawn!

I am always grateful when my letters get published, and for that I thank you, Mr. Sincell.

To the Editor:

On behalf of the GCMH Board of Governors, Medical Staff and entire employee body, I want to express to both you and your staff our sincere congratulations and appreciation for the exceptional community service The Republican has offered the local community(ies) for the past 125 years.

As someone interested in local history, I have very much enjoyed the vintage articles placed in the recent editions of the paper. These glimpses of the past have reiterated to me that this community was, and remains, a family-oriented, caring, compassionate and close-knit group of people.

The Republican not only provides high quality reporting and writing, but is also an outstanding family-owned business. It is evident that quality leadership and personal commitment by your individual family has sustained this publication for generations. Garrett County Memorial Hospital prides itself on continual delivery of personalized care because our patients are really our friends, neighbors, relatives, and guests. I believe this is the same for The Republican. Your continual dedication to the latest news, engaging advertising, and the numerous local issues affecting the residents of Garrett County express these same values of "family" and "neighborly."

We at Garrett County Memorial Hospital thank you for your consistent personal and corporate support of our facility and the assistance The Republican has provided to our residents over the years on all sorts of health care issues. You have afforded the hospital a venue for news articles and advertising as well as a source for dissemination of health care commentary and public health information. You, your family members, and your staff have also committed thousands of hours of personal time performing volunteer work for the hospital, local fire companies, rescue squads, the arts, and many other civic organizations. Therefore, the community has assuredly been enriched by the presence of your newspaper, but even more so by your collective volunteerism in service to others.

Congratulations to you, your family, and your entire staff on this momentous anniversary, and best wishes for continued success.

Sincerely,
Donald P. Battista

To the Editor:

Literacy — the ability to read, to comprehend, and to analyze a written text — is widely recognized to be indispensable in a modern society, and yet the critical importance in our modern economy of financial literacy — the comparable ability to read, grasp, and analyze financial information — is regularly overlooked.

Indeed, there is growing evidence that Americans do not have an adequate basis for making sound decisions about their personal and household finances, especially given the myriad of choices they face. The issue touches all Americans — at every age and income level — as they attempt to make sound financial decisions in their everyday lives. And in this increasingly complex financial marketplace, too many people are victims of scam artists and unscrupulous operators, in part because they lack adequate financial education.

Recently, in my capacity as the Chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Committee, I convened two days of Congressional hearings on the issue of financial literacy and education. Among our witnesses were Alan Greenspan, the chairman of the Federal Reserve, Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill, Securities and Exchange Commission Chair Harvey Pitt, and individuals from outside groups who are working with school-aged children to young people who are handling credit for the first time, first-time mortgage borrowers, and those trying to save enough for retirement.

Some interesting facts were raised during the hearings to highlight these concerns:

--As was pointed out in a Wall Street Journal story, a bank account today constitutes "a passport required for admission to the mainstream economy." Yet an estimated 10 million people in this nation do not have bank accounts;

--The average American high-school senior failed a personal financial quiz. Yet 40% of our 12-19 year-olds have access to a credit card; and

--Among adults, average credit card debt per household exceeds $8,100—triple the amount of a decade ago. Regular payment on credit cards now takes about one dollar in every seven of Americans' disposable income.

We know that the largest generation in this nation's history is approaching retirement. One example of the challenges facing us with respect to retirement is the status of women who face particular financial hurdles as they grow older. Millions of women through widowhood or divorce find themselves in charge of their household's finances at or near retirement age, without having any financial education. These women are then expected to make complex financial choices that will affect them throughout their retirement.

While financial literacy is not a magical solution that will solve all the problems consumers face in making their financial decisions, it is critical to our future. Many Americans are too often spending for consumption now, with little thought to the years ahead. In fact, America's personal savings rate has averaged only 1.6% for the last year, while consumer debt has grown at a much faster rate of 10.2%. It is my strong belief that higher levels of financial literacy will help Americans approach the decisions they must make in a responsible and productive manner. The time has come to bring the public and private sectors together in a national strategy to raise the level of financial education in our nation.

Sincerely,
Senator Paul S. Sarbanes
(D-MD)

To the Editor:

The Garrett County Humane Society Inc. would like to respond to the letter in The Republican dated March 7, 2002.

This society was organized 17 years ago on the precept of care and concern. During those 17 years, our volunteers have spent many hours finding and caring for abused, lost, and injured animals. Some of the money spent on these animals comes out of their own pockets. We use this to rescue, feed, house, and get the animals the required shots. Often times, it is done for good owners who cannot afford these things. They use their own money for automobiles; time spent in court contesting cruelty, delivering food, cat litter, etc., to needy animals. The fund-raisers and personal donations help sick and injured animals and enhance our efforts in this field. Also funding from Christmas in July (founded and coordinated by Gail Miller), raffles, and garage sales goes to help with the spay-neuter program. Money from the county commissioners is used exclusively for the spay-neuter program. The Humane Society is required to provide documentation to the commissioners for the use of this money before we are reimbursed. Though the commissioners may not send flyers about the program, they are given proof the money is spent wisely. The Animal Shelter and the Humane Society are co-sponsoring Spay-Neuter Awareness Month during March. The Shelter and the Society sent letters, made phone calls, and put an article in The Republican about this program. There is an open house and tours of the shelter given by the dedicated employees.

As for educating the public, it has long been common knowledge that animal abuse and domestic violence are interrelated. Historically, a Humane Society has been around for a century, and some cases of child abuse in the courts were founded on the society's principles of humane treatment. The Garrett County Humane Society follows the guidelines set forth by them and the Washington, D.C., Humane Society. The goal is the prevention of cruelty to animals. In trying to reach the public, the society has passed out copies of Article 27 of the Annotated code of Maryland about animal care and copies of the guidelines set forth by the D.C. Humane Society. Ladies at the shelter, one a member of the Humane Society, have gone to the schools and given talks about the care and treatment of animals. Other members have taught animal welfare in their social studies classes when they were teaching. The Society does have a professional veterinarian who is a member. Wanting professionals to teach and educate people is admirable, but people with experience would be much better at no cost.

The idea of breaking our program of care and concern is ludicrous. That is why we founded our group. Without compassion, care, and concern, how can you teach the public humane treatment of either animals or people? As the saying goes, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

If you have never taken a call from a pet owner asking for help for a sick or injured animal, you might be able to say, put it down to go to "doggie heaven," but we can't. If an animal can be saved, we try. We will not see an animal suffer. That decision is not ours to make.

The great thing about America is our freedom of choice. You have the right to choose which organization you wish to join and support. Our by-laws now specifically state that no one who raises or uses animals for commercial use can join. We do not know the other organization's policy or by-laws. We hope this answers many of your questions.

OLD SHOES

A pair of old shoes has given up the ghost. As with a man, the end came when the upper parts came loose from the sole. These shoes have been friends of my feet for 21 years. They are tan oxfords with toe-caps. I remember the first time I wore them, to the Chelsea Flower Show in London. I wore a linen suit, and had a lovely gal on my arm. I was young then.

Now all these years later, the shoes are completely worn out, and I am in the middle age of life. They have been re-heeled and re-soled several times during the long generation of their life. During the past year I have worn them almost as slippers, at home and indoors. It has been awhile since they were much to look at. One friend did observe, "Those shoes have character." Now they are on the way to Goodwill.

My first sister-in-law said once about a sweatshirt I was preparing to give to Goodwill, "That thing isn't fit to be used as a rag." Perhaps that was true, but our rags are shipped to Africa where the people are glad to make very festive sorts of clothing out of them.

Shoes have a practical purpose, of course. The first shoes were probably flimsy, woven sandals made of straw or of some other vegetable or animal fiber. We can imagine the sandal in civilizations along the Nile or the Tigris as something that merely insulated the sole of the foot from the ground.

The Scottish brogue, a leather piece wrapped around the foot and laced together, was designed for additional concerns. The top of the foot was protected, as well as the bottom. The eyes through which the brogue was laced served another purpose: Water could escape from the footwear. Thus the decorations of the modern brogue (the American wing-tip), my favorite style, were once functional.

Even when all kinds of clothing were much more difficult to fabricate than they are today, the equivalent of the shoe lace served as a metaphor for the merest nothing. Abraham said to the King of Sodom, "I will not take from a thread even to a shoelatchet,...lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich." (Genesis 14:23). In Puritan England (the 17th century) wearing shoe latchets, rather than shoe buckles, was an expression of simplicity in living.

While the ultimate origin of my fascination with shoes is probably hidden from my eyes, I do remember the purchase of my first good pair of leather shoes. I was 12 years old. My mother took me shopping to a department store that was in the throes of closing its doors forever. Their shoes, like everything in the store, were on sale. The half-price pair of Bostonians I talked my mother into buying for me still cost $40. That was a lot of money in 1967.

Few stores stock shoes of that quality anymore. A few more can order such shoes. There are still a fair number of shoes with leather uppers, but the leather insole is a thing of the past, except in a few specialty lines.

When I was back in Oxford, England, last summer I bought two new pairs of shoes from the same shop where I bought my worn-out tan toe caps in 1981. Back then the shop was run by a father and his two sons. Since then the father has died, and the sons see the end. "Our lease is up in four years," the older brother told me, "and then we'll see."

Fewer and fewer people want shoes like the ones they make. The landlord has his eyes on higher rents. Even the shoe polish they had recommended for decades was bought, and the formula for the polish was promptly changed, and cheapened, by the new owners. What is their incentive to fight such trends?

The cobbler who had taken good care of my shoes for the past decade packed up his business a few months ago. Someone told me that he is now selling cars. We are supposed to buy disposable shoes just as we are supposed to buy disposable everything else. I have found a shoe store that has genuine craftsmen repairing shoes, but those gentlemen are no longer young. In a few years they too will be gone.

"Old friends are best," wrote John Selden 400 years ago. "King James used to call for his old shoes; they were easiest for his feet." There is truth in that, and yet there are shoes today, made of synthetic materials designed and made through modern technology, which can do wonders for one's feet. That cannot be denied. I have occasion to resort to them. As middle age yields to old age that resort shall be increasingly frequented.

The classic all-leather shoe feels physically good to me as something which, though dead, breathes. It is also psychologically comfortable as a work of skill and craft. My preference shall continue to be for my old friends, leather shoes which are both fine and stout.

man about the potential fire hazards and economic loss to the county. "But how do you defend the undefendable," he said about the apparent push by others for the bill.

Edwards added that local members of the Sierra Club indicated that some areas of old-growth forests still exist in the two tracts of lands.

Edwards and Hafer's amendment to the bill allowing Frostburg State University to use the lands for educational purposes was also approved by the House and Senate committees. The bill must now be approved by the House, Senate, and governor.

this process. Any proposed trails through DNR-controlled land will comply with the state's designated guidelines and procedures, including the involvement of designated and advisory boards and committees," added Green.

The task force has selected the proposal of Pittsburgh-based design and engineering firm Pashek Associates from the five proposals submitted for review. "Pashek Associates has a lot of experience developing trails in the Pittsburgh area," Green stated. "This fall they are expected to provide an updated county trails plan, plus construction documents for the proposed trail between DCL State Park and the Wisp."

Funding has been secured from Program Open Space funds and Appalachian Regional Commission funds. The Department of Transportation has given preliminary approval for the release of Recreational Trail Funds, and additional funding is being requested from the State Highway Administration. The task force will be sponsoring a local benefit to help raise funds to match federal and state funds.

The Recreational Trails Task Force is composed of chairperson Green and fellow members Caroline Blizzard, Deb Clatterbuck, Bill Atkinson, Tom Dabney, Chip Carr, Mike Gregory, Steve Hamilton, Peggy Jamison, Jonathan Kessler, Mike Logsdon, Janna Naylor, Dave Ramsey, Carl Rebele, Dave Ritchie, Paul Shogren, Adrian Spiker, Glenn Tolbert, Steve Tomb, and Barry Ritchie.

The next meeting of the Recreational Trails Task Force is set for 8 a.m. Monday, April 15, at the Visitors Center in McHenry. For further information persons may call Green at 301-387-4199.

WALKING FOR EPILEPSY — Coast to coast and top to bottom, Kansas City resident Karla Brown is walking across America to increase epilepsy awareness and raise funds for local Epilepsy Foundation chapters along the route. Brown has had epilepsy all her life, and had brain surgery in 1981 in Seattle that has rendered her seizure free since. She embarked on her 2½-year hike last March in Seattle, and by the time she has covered 9,000 miles through 35 states she will reach her final destination of Washington, D.C., in Sept. 2003. After picking up U.S. Route 50 in Reno, Nev., she has been walking due east on the same highway, and made a two-night stop earlier this week in nearby Aurora, W.Va., before sojourning on this morning into Garrett County, where she will be pushing her 300-pound supply cart through the communities of Red House and Gormen. The local break included area sightseeing and a visit to the Book Mark'et in Oakland. "One of the neatest thing I've learned on this trip is that people are so kind and so nice," Brown said. "Meeting people along the way has been a wonderful experience, and the kindness and generosity of strangers is truly amazing and greatly appreciated." Brown, who has been giving educational programs on epilepsy to schools and organizations during her expedition, has her own web site at www.efhe.org. Donations to the Epilepsy Foundation's Chesapeake Chapter may be made by contacting the chapter's Frederick office at 1-800-394-9504.

A native of Connecticut, Ryscavage holds a bachelor of science degree from Central Connecticut State College, New Britain, a master of arts degree from Ohio State University, Columbus, and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Ryscavage served with the Garrett County schools from 1973 until his retirement in 1997, first as assistant superintendent for administrative services, and then as school superintendent beginning in 1980. During his tenure as superintendent, a number of School to Careers initiatives were implemented, including the school and business partnership, tech prep program, and career development program.

Prior to coming to Garrett County, Ryscavage was a teacher in Harford County, then an administrative assistant and a facility planner at the University of Maryland. He also served four years in the U.S. Navy.

Ryscavage is a member of St. Peter the Apostle Roman Catholic Church, the Oakland Rotary Club, Regional Education Service Agency of western Maryland, the American Association of School Administrators, and the Public School Superintendent Association of Maryland, an organization which he served as president in 1988-89.

Part II: A Smoker Embarks On The Road To Nicotine Freedom

MIKE WILBURN, SMOKING CESSATION LEADER

A series by Glenn Tolbert

He hasn't terrified us with statistics about the dangers of smoking. At least not yet. Instead, Mike Wilburn of Garrett County's Smoking Cessation program is taking a gentler approach.

Take for example the notebook he gave each of us. It's not filled with photos of people gasping for their last breath of air. Instead, it asks some simple yet direct questions such as "What are five of the main reasons you want to quit smoking?"

And then there's a kind of quasi-legal-looking document that all of us in the class have to sign:

"I want to smoke and I can smoke, but I would rather live through this temporary discomfort of withdrawal and enjoy life. Signed, (Your name here)."

My personal reasons for wanting to quit smoking seem tainted with a whiff or two of vanity: I don't want to always smell like cigarette smoke, I don't want to be thought of as weak willed, I don't want to be dependent on a drug manufactured by big tobacco companies, and finally, the biggest puff of vanity, I don't want to be 50 years old with a 70-year-old face.

I guess I thought the health issues were too obvious to discuss, but many of my classmates didn't.

One man said his life depended on him quitting. Seems he loses all of the feeling in his arms at night due to poor circulation, and he's suffered from dizzy spells. At one time he nearly shouted, "If everyone knows these darn things are so dangerous, why don't they just outlaw them?"

A young woman said she is having a hard time trying to keep up with her small child because of breathing difficulties related to smoking.

But every group needs a couple of optimists, and our stop-smoking class has a unique husband and wife who have already bought a new truck with the money they're going to save by not buying cigarettes. Now that's confidence.

As for myself, well, I was one of those dozen or so people who raised his hand on the very first day of class when the instructor asked who wanted to quit smoking right away. That earned me and the other optimists in my group the right to a free packet of nicotine patches.

Seventy-two hours later and sitting in the second class, we anointed ones were asked how we did. I 'fessed up. I smoked but only four cigarettes . . . okay, maybe it was six. But that was far better than the nearly two packs I would have greedily sucked down before I signed up for the course.

I forgot to mention Larry Hagman. Remember him? All hat, no cattle kinda guy. Always wondering off into the wrong bedrooms. That was when he starred in a television serics called "Dallas." Well, he's a star in our course, too, but he doesn't wear a hat. He appears to us on videotape. During one clip he said it took him two years to quit smoking. He did it after a doctor gave him a copy of his chest X-ray and told him he could either keep smoking or live. Hagman claims he taped the X-ray onto his bathroom mirror and it provided him with the daily dose on inspiration he needed to quit.

As for me? My goal is to be totally tobacco-free by my 51st birthday, which happens every year on tax day. That may be a bad choice, since nothing stresses me out more than having another birthday or worrying about the IRS. And since they both happen on the same day, maybe I should reconsider. But for now, that's my goal. Wish me luck.

And just so this column doesn't come off as someone on a lark rather than someone on a serious quest to change his life, I'm throwing in something I'm calling "The Wheel of Death." Basically, it shows all the ways that cigarettes can either ruin your life or kill you or both at the same time. It's printed elsewhere on this page and is provided by the Centers for Disease Control. I'm carrying a copy with me to take out of my wallet and stare at the next time I want to light up. Wish us all luck.

Senate Spares Tax Cut While Paring Programs

by Kathleen Johnston Jarboe
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS -- The Maryland Senate approved its $21.6 billion version of the 2003 state budget Wednesday, despite unlikely allies who united to vote against it. Liberal senators said too much money had been cut from vital programs in order to preserve the final 2 percent of an income tax reduction begun in 1997. Conservatives said not enough had been cut in light of a projected $767 million deficit for fiscal year 2004. Still, the bill passed, 34 to 12.

"I find aspects of the budget shameful," said Sen. Paul Pinsky, D-Prince George's.

The money from the tax cut could have funded a school reform proposal known as the Thornton Commission report, Pinsky said. Without Thornton money or increased funds to the Prince George's school system, the budget ignores some of its neediest citizens, he said.

Other senators agreed that the tax cut should be delayed. One also favored a tobacco tax hike.

Tobacco and tax cut revenue could prevent cuts to school programs, fund land preservation programs, and bolster higher education budgets, said Sen. Christopher Van Hollen Jr., D-Montgomery. As it is now, Maryland's colleges are looking at tuition increases.

Conservatives attacked the budget from a different perspective.

"I don't think there has been quite enough [cutting]" considering projected deficits, said Sen. Larry Haines, R-Carroll. The current administration built its budget on an unstable foundation, he said. The budget's growth over the last eight years was not in line with personal income growth, he said.

Many senators defended the difficult decisions made by committee members who

ICE AGE

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:26 - Released 3/15/02

Although Ice Age, the new comedy from Fox Animation Studios, directed by Carlos Saldanha and Chris Wedge, avails itself of the latest techniques in digital animation, one can't help but notice the striking plot similarities between it and other recent examples of the genre. Of course it's fun, and colorful, and includes some celebrity voices, but much of its story seems...well, borrowed. Its main plot involves a small, funny, self-absorbed character who invites himself to tag along with a big, strong, grouch (you know, like in Shrek?). Together they become unwillingly attached to a human infant that doesn't talk, but coos and wiggles and giggles its way into their hearts (you know, like in Monsters, Inc.?). Finally, the group must trek across many miles with no food or water while dodging predators (you know, like in Dinosaur?). Still, Ice Age, co-written by relative newcomers Michael J. Wilson, Michael Berg, and Peter Ackerman (based on Wilson's story), has just enough originality to succeed in its own right, and that it does.

As its title would suggest, Ice Age takes place in prehistoric times, when the Earth is on its way toward a global deep-freeze. All the animals must migrate south in order to stay alive, but Manfred the mammoth (voice of Ray Romano) isn't interested in travel. Defiantly walking in the other direction, Manny soon meets Sid the Sloth (John Leguizamo), an overly friendly, lisping animal who's a lot more hyperactive than any sloth I ever heard of. Just after Manny saves Sid from a couple of vengeful and possibly homosexual rhinos, they find a human baby that is about to be eaten by a pack of sabre-tooth tigers led by Diego (Denis Leary). Snatching the child out of harm's way, they decide to find its parents. Diego offers to help with his keen tracking abilities, but really he's planning to draw Manny, Sid, and the baby into a trap. However, he bonds with the others during their arduous trek, and is soon forced to choose between his new friends and his loyalty to the pack.

This film's success is based not only upon the antics of our small group of friends, but those of a bug-eyed, prehistoric squirrel-like creature we follow off and on throughout the film in his futile attempts to secure a precious acorn. But in terms of overall quality, it is frankly inferior to the recent animated releases of Disney and Dreamworks. Its humor is mostly of the slapstick variety with very little subtlety, and the characterizations are not exactly memorable, especially given the range of talent involved. Also, the story either ignores or glosses over several practical issues (i.e., food and water) that would certainly come up in such a circumstance (I remember thinking along the same lines with Dinosaur). But despite its flaws, Ice Age is fun and mercifully short, providing your youngsters enough time to finish their popcorn, but not enough to start fidgeting. ★★★★

IN THE BEDROOM

Rated R - Running Time: 2:10 - Released 12/25/01

A sense of tension resonates through the entire length of Todd Field's In the Bedroom, a chilling drama about murder and its many repercussions in a quiet New England town. Field, in his feature debut, shows a unique style in his choices of scene; every angle seems to reveal more than first meets the eye, and every pause seems to contain some important subtext. It almost reminds me of a Kubrick film. The script, on the other hand, reminds me of Pinter. Written by Robert Festinger and director Field, from a story called Killings by the late Andre Dubus, it deals with the desperate lengths to which one will go to erase the memory of a tragic event, but the text is not simply a straightforward account; it is weighted with the undercurrent of a lifetime of withheld emotions and the consequence of things long left unsaid. It features excellent, understated performances by Sissy Spacek, Tom Wilkinson, and Marisa Tomei.

When we first meet Natalie (Tomei) and Frank (Nick Stahl), they seem like a happy young couple with no cares in the world. We soon learn, however, that Natalie, who is considerably older than Frank, is not yet divorced from her estranged and hot-tempered husband Richard (William Mapother), with whom she has two children. Frank's mother Ruth (Spacek) doesn't approve of the relationship, since Frank is supposed to be leaving for grad school in the fall and he doesn't seem to be very serious about Natalie. His dad, however, Dr. Matt Fowler (Wilkinson), doesn't see anything wrong with Frank sowing a few wild oats during the summer before his freshman year, and he enjoys having the kids around the house anyway. But things turn serious when Richard decides he wants to patch things up with Natalie and a scuffle between him and Frank ends in murder. The family is plunged into a tense court case in which Natalie is the only witness, and into the spotlight of their small Maine town. An emotional wedge is driven between Ruth and Matt, forcing them to confront issues about which they have long remained silent, and they are finally driven to desperate lengths to try to repair their disturbed tranquility and their forever altered relationship.

This is a very slow-moving drama; the pace is deliberate, but it seldom gets bogged down in pretentious stylistic gesticulation. There are long sequences where Field's camera switches between angles with no sound, giving telling glimpses of the characters, the situation, and/or the scenery, saying volumes without anyone uttering a word. Wilkinson and Spacek, reserved though they are, deftly portray the undercurrent of frustration and resentment that has been simmering below the surface of their marriage for years, waiting for an event such as this to set it off. Tomei is flustered, torn, and beautifully disheveled; her delivery is flawless as the unwanted stepdaughter of the older couple, suddenly out of her league in emotional and psychological depth. Her presence is the reason for much of the trouble between Matt and Ruth—and in fact for the film's main conflict—and she is painfully aware of this.

Good performances by Stahl, Mapother, and the rest of the supporting cast pull the film together as a whole greater than the sum of its parts. Field has distinguished himself well in his first feature outing, as have his co-writers, and Spacek and Wilkinson and Tomei prove themselves equal to the challenge of bringing his vision to the screen. ★★★★½

I AM SAM

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:12 - Released 12/28/01

At first glance, Jessie Nelson's I Am Sam may seem like a sort of Rain Man part 2, investigating what would happen if a developmentally disabled person were to father a child. But Sean Penn's character, Sam Dawson, is markedly different from Dustin Hoffman's Raymond Babbitt in many ways. While Hoffman's character was autistic and/or obsessive/compulsive, Sam's disability is mainly mental retardation, with some autistic tendencies. Therefore, Penn's Sam is more outgoing and more able to function in society than Raymond was, and, as we learn early on, even able to father a child. Penn is superb in this film, co-written by director Nelson and Kristine Johnson, with his characterization so well defined that even devoted fans will not recognize him. He is supported by excellence all around, from Michelle Pfeiffer, who plays Sam's attorney, to Dianne Wiest as his loving and helpful neighbor, to the remarkable 7-year-old Dakota Fanning, whose characterization as Sam's daughter matches Penn's expertise at every step, allowing the two of them to build a relationship so touching and real it almost forgives the writers' manipulative dialogue, which is the only serious flaw in the film.

Sam works at Starbuck's coffee house, where he sweeps the floor, carries orders to customers, and carefully arranges sugar packets in their boxes. But the first time we see him is no ordinary day: his child is about to be born. When Sam goes to the hospital and sees his new daughter, he names her Lucy Diamond Dawson, after the song "Lucy In The Sky With Diamonds" (Sam is a devout Beatles fan). This is far from an idyllic picture of a young family, however; Lucy's mother, a homeless woman, disappears after being discharged, leaving him alone to raise the girl. Knowing nothing about baby maintenance, he enlists the help of his neighbor Annie (Wiest), a reclusive piano teacher, and is soon able to feed, change, and clothe Lucy, while keeping his job and his small circle of mentally disabled friends (Brad Allan Silverman, Joseph Rosenberg, Stanley DeSantis, Doug Hutchison), who meet every week to watch videos or eat at the International House Of Pancakes.

Next comes one of those sweet montages where the specifics are never really explained (set to various cover versions of Beatles' songs), during which time we watch Lucy, played by no fewer than seven young actresses, grow from infancy to age 4. She is seen playing, laughing, swinging, and reading and re-reading Green Eggs And Ham with her loving dad, never crying, never throwing a tantrum, and never getting her butt smacked. Finally we settle on Fanning as the 7-year-old Lucy, an irrepressibly cute, blonde-haired, blue-eyed beauty who is quite precocious for her age, which in itself sets up the main conflict of the film: what do you do when the child of a man whose mental capacity is that of a 7-year-old outgrows him? Lucy's schoolteachers can't help but notice that as she approaches age 8 she begins resisting their attempts to teach her, as if she's afraid to become smarter than her beloved and emotionally equal father. She is picked up by a social worker (Loretta Devine), who tells Sam that Lucy must be put in a foster home as he is not equipped to guide her through adolescence and young adulthood.

Encouraged by his well-meaning friends, Sam chooses to take the matter to court, seeking the legal advice of Rita Harrison (Pfeiffer) mainly because of the Beatle-significance of her name (Rita, like "Lovely Rita Meter maid" and Harrison, like George). At first unwilling, Rita is soon swept up in Sam's case, but must get through some of her own domestic and psychological problems in order to help him. Meanwhile, Lucy, who wants nothing more than to return to her co-dependent relationship with her dad, rebels against the change.

This film is like a showcase of good acting set to a showcase of good music (I've not heard so many Beatle covers since the Bee Gees starred in Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band), and it succeeds despite its writers' occasional emotional pandering and queer message. In a way, Nelson & co. seem to be saying that we are all like Sam, as almost every character has some momentous mental or psychological trouble to overcome. This is a fair enough message, but it is often taken to ridiculous extremes. Its ending takes the easy way out, bringing a happy but unrealistic resolution to the story. However, just watching Penn and Fanning interact, or Penn and Pfeiffer, or Penn and Laura Dern (who plays Lucy's foster mother), is worth wading through the occasionally ankle-deep syrup. ★★★★

Two Local Men Sentenced For Manufacturing

Two local men were recently sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court on unrelated charges for manufacturing a controlled dangerous substance. Dallas Webster House Jr., 56, McHenry, pleaded guilty to manufacturing marijuana. He was sentenced by Judge Jim Sherbin to two years in the Department of Corrections, with all but 90 days of that sentence suspended. After his release from the Garrett County Jail, House will be on supervised probation for two years.

He was charged last September by officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, who recovered 10 marijuana plants from the property where House resided. The marijuana eradication operation was conducted with other state and federal authorities. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia were dismissed upon House's plea to manufacturing.

In another, unrelated case, Timothy Wayne Arnold, 19, Deer Park, also pleaded guilty to manufacturing marijuana. Sherbin sentenced Arnold to one year in the Garrett County Jail, suspending all but 60 days of that sentence. He was also fined $300. Following his release from the jail, Arnold will be on supervised probation for one year.

Arnold was charged last September by officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, who recovered six marijuana plants from his residence. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia were dismissed upon Arnold's plea to manufacturing.

nology, and computers. However, this particular program is not targeted for current honor students, but more to late bloomers who may have recently decided they want to pursue their college education."

Grant projects introduce teachers to additional subject knowledge and handson activities that can be repeated in the classroom, often using new technology. Covered topics target national and state content standards, but also bring recent research to teachers. Equally important to the projects is the collaboration between college faculty and teachers to help students with various learning styles learn more effectively.

This year the commission placed a priority on proposals that focused on additional training and support for new and provisionally certified teacher candidates in low-performing schools. Several projects will expand the professional development schools (PDS) to enhance teacher candidates' pre-professional classroom experience. PDS are pre-K-12 schools partnering with colleges both to provide teacher candidates with a place to apprentice and current teachers with the resources of a college to strengthen instruction and administration.

The awards will benefit over 1,100 teachers and more than 40,000 students from school districts across Maryland. The winning grant projects are expected to improve teacher performance and student learning.

"We've been working for over two years to put together a core group of approximately 80 teachers from across the state, half from high schools and half from colleges and universities," Priselac said. "It will be a new model, as high school and college teachers will be training together in their classrooms. We'll meet this week to set our course agenda, and the first of the program's 15 training sessions will likely take place within three or four weeks."

ams Anticipate Another inning Year On Diamond

Domination of area high school baseball is practically a tradition at Southern High School, and from the looks of Coach Jim Bosley's roster for the 2002 season, the tradition will be extended for at least one more season. The Rams are slated to open their campaign next Tuesday, March 26, at Keyser.

Even though six starters are gone from last year's 22-2 squad, a corps of All-Area selections and several other solid players are back, hoping to return the Rams for the third straight year to the final four in the state Class 1A tournament. The 2001 team, which recorded the most wins ever in a single season at Southern, lost in the state semifinals last year to eventual state champion St. Michael's.

Southern has won the WMIL and regional championships the past two seasons, as Bosley continues as the area's winningest coach by a wide margin, with 316 victories against 106 defeats, for a 75% win rate. This will be Bosley's 23rd year as head of the Southern varsity program.

In assessing his 2002 squad, Bosley said, "This group has the making for being an outstanding team. However, games aren't won anywhere but on the field."

Lost to graduation from last season's squad are Justin DiSimone, the first-team All-Area pitcher, who is now playing for West Virginia Wesleyan; first-team All-Area third baseman Steve Eiswert; first baseman Jared Fike; pitcher Josh Fitzwater, now playing for Garrett Community College; and outfielders Chris Remley and Ryan Ewing.

"Two first-team All-Area players back, however, are senior outfielder Chad Panther and catcher Brad Palmer. Also back is second-team All-Area pitcher Bryson Meyers, who has already signed to play for Potomac State College next year.

"The strength of our team would have to be our pitching, with Meyers, Tobi Stoner, and Bryan Hauser leading the way," Bosley said. "Hitting should also be solid, though, with five returning starters."

Palmer will return to his starting spot at the catcher position. "Brad is an outstanding receiver with a very strong arm," Bosley said. "He could possibly be the best catcher ever at Southern."

Senior Joel Helbig and junior Dennis Tressler will cover first base, while Stoner, a solid senior defender, will start at second. Also expected to see time at second will be juniors A.J. Bender and Brad Dugan.

Senior Ricky Reams will return to anchor the short stop position. "Ricky is a smooth fielder, and I look for him to have a big year," Bosley said.

Sharing time at third base will be senior Kevin Goralski and junior Jay Tressler.

Panther will anchor the outfield, with other possible starters including seniors Steve Skipper, J.J. Bolyard, and Meyers, and juniors Rodney Baker, Andrew Feather, and Tressler. Junior Nathan Fitzwater will be added to the outfield list after he recovers from a broken foot sustained during basketball season.

If the Rams have any weaknesses, Bosley said that it would probably be their defensive play. "Having to practice so much indoors because of the weather always takes a toll, especially on defense," he said. "But we think we will overcome this problem once we are able to be outside consistently."

The Rams have not only made the final four Class 1A teams in the state tourney the past two seasons, but four times out of the past six seasons.

Despite the outstanding record of the Southern program under Bosley, the Rams and their fans are still working to record the school's first state title.

"I'm not big on setting goals," he said, "As always, we would like to compete for the area and WMIL championships, but the region title would be at the top of the list. If you win the region championship, you make the final four, and if you get that far, anything can happen in the state tournament."

Following Tuesday's opener at Keyser, the Rams will host their annual Easter tournament on Saturday, March 30, with Petersburg and Meyersdale being the visiting teams.

The Northern boys' baseball team will also be on hand at Allegany today for a 3:30 p.m. opener.

Other sports teams debuting this week are the Southern High varsity baseball team, which visits Keyser Tuesday for a 4 p.m. opener, the Northern varsity tennis team, which visits Fort Hill for a 4 p.m. match Tuesday, the NHS junior varsity baseball squad, which visits Fort Hill for a 4 p.m. contest Thursday, March 28, while the Southern JV baseball team visits Keyser for an 11 a.m. doubleheader Friday, March 29.

The week's action continues to unfold as the Ram varsity softball team visits Fort Hill on Friday at 1 p.m., and the Northern girls' 4:30 p.m. match-up at Beall on Friday. The Husky varsity softball squad hosts Beall in a 4 p.m. Tuesday home opener before Southern pays its Wednesday visit. The NHS/ SHS junior varsity softball teams square off in a 4:30 p.m. battle Thursday, March 28, at Northern. The Husky varsity baseball team visits Westmar for a 5 p.m. Friday contest before its home opener against Mapletown, set for noon Saturday.

Lakers Record Pair Of Close Wins Over Ulster

The rainy weather played havoc with the baseball schedule of the Garrett Community College team this past week, as the Lakers were able to play only one doubleheader. They won both ends of that home twinbill, though, edging Ulster College of New York, 8-7 in an extra inning and 9-8, to up their record to 4-3.

Things look grim for the Lakers going into the bottom of the seventh inning, as they trailed by a 7-2 margin. But they rallied for five runs in that frame to knot the score at 7-7 and send the game into the extra inning. Garrett held the visitors scoreless in the top of the eighth, and Ryan Wetzel scored on a wild pitch in the bottom of the inning to give the Lakers the win.

Devin McDermont rapped a two-run homer, Evan Jackson stroked a three-run shot, and Joe Mallaney hit a solo home run to account for six of Ulster's seven runs.

Pacing the Lakers' 11-hit performance were Jeremy Shaffer with a homer and a double, and Wetzel, Dean Altavilla, and Brian Rockwell each with a double and a single.

Wetzel led off the Lakers' half of the eighth with a double to set up his winning run on the wild pitch.

Gaining the win on the mound, his second of the season, was former Southern Ram Josh Bosley, who took over in the fifth inning. [illegible] maintained the [illegible] through the second inning, Bosley took a [illegible] four runs in the bottom of the first inning. Wetzel smacked a two-run homer in the first inning and Altavilla hit one in the bottom of the Lakers' three-run second inning.

Bosley recorded a solo home run in the second and another in the fourth. He also hit two singles and scored twice. Wetzel and Altavilla each scored three times.

After the Lakers were on top by three, 7-4, Ulster rallied for two runs in the third and one in the fourth to tie the score at 7-7. The Lakers took an 8-7 lead with Bosley's second solo shot in the fourth, but Ulster tied it at 8-8 with a run in the top of the seventh.

The Lakers won the game in the bottom of the seventh when Altavilla singled, moved to second on a single by Rockwell, and came home on a double by James Funk.

Mike Prior, who took over the mound from Mike Berry in the seventh, was awarded his first victory of the season.

The Lakers were supposed to meet Ulster again on Saturday for a single game, but that contest could not be played because of weather conditions. They were slated to host Penn State Beaver for a single game on Sunday and travel to Allegany College in Cumberland for a single game on Tuesday, but both were postponed.

Coach Ed Wildesen and the Lakers are scheduled to play a single game at Catonsville this Friday, play a doubleheader at Essex CC on Saturday, meet Germantown Westmoreland at Germantown on Sunday for a single game, and travel to CCAC South next Tuesday.

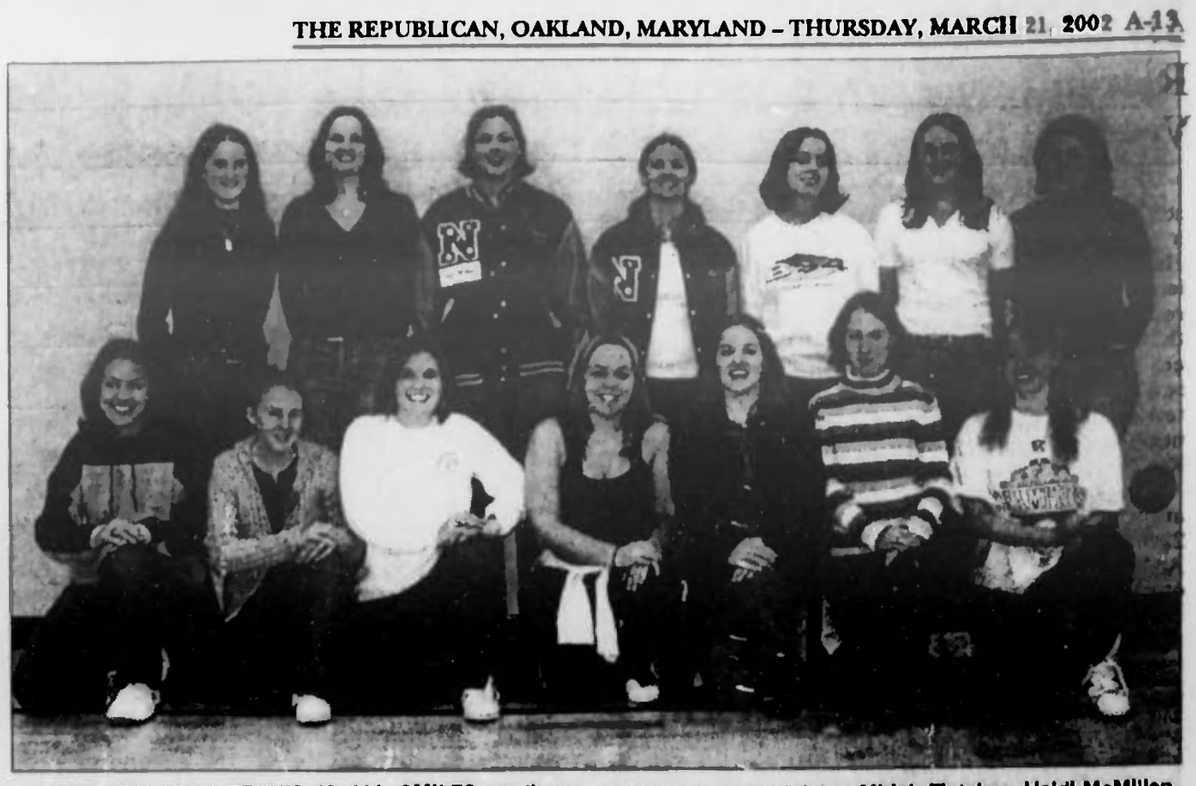
NHS SOFTBALL SQUAD ON THE REBOUND — You can take the Husky out of the fight, but you can't take the fight out of the Husky. Despite a rocky campaign last season, the Northern High School girls' varsity softball team is poised to turn the corner and get back into the win column with some superb returning senior starters leading the way. Kneeling, from the left, are Tiffany Swiger, Brandi Perez, Stephanie Hutzel, Bridget Frazee, and Amanda Friend. Standing are Jolene Brenneman, Lyndsi Butler, Amanda Frantz, Valene Synder, Brooke Butler, Emily Rawe, and head coach April Slagle. Not available for the photo was Autumn Kitchen.



NORTHERN HIGH TENNIS IS ALL SMILES as these 2002 NHS varsity tennis team players anticipate what could be a very successful season. Coming off a fine 9-4 campaign last year, the Huskies are bringing back a number of top returning players and lobbing some competitive new faces into the mix as they court a championship trophy. Kneeling from the left are Miriah Fletcher, Heidi McMillan, Andrea Green, Annie Donaldson, Ashley Robinson, Jennifer Lowdermilk, and Rebecca Stark. In the back row are Heather Lander, Nicole Sisler, Christie Flockhart, Rachel Bruch, Amber Weimer, Abbi Sisler, and Erica Maust.

Brenneman, Butler, Frazee Aim To Spark Husky Softball Renaissance

At first glance, the Northern High School varsity softball team would seem to be in a tight bind after coming off a 4-15 mark last year and installing a new head coach for the second consecutive season. However, Coach April Slagle's 2002 Husky squad has the nucleus of a unit that could turn the tide in a big way, as it returns seniors Jolene Brenneman, Brooke Butler, and Bridget Frazee — each a proven weapon at the plate. Northern will unleash those weapons this coming Thursday, March 28, during its 4 p.m. season opener at Fort Hill.

Brenneman led the entire area in hitting last season with an astounding .674 average (29-43), as she garnered All-Area first team honors. Batting in the clean-up slot, she ripped three doubles and a triple, drove home nine runs, and struck out just twice while drawing a number of intentional walks from respectful opposing pitchers. Brenneman also showed excellent speed on the basepaths by stealing 14 bases and scoring 14 runs, both good for second on the NHS roster.

Brenneman carried the lion's share of the mound work last year, the first time she had been asked to shoulder pitching duties. Although she struggled for much of the campaign, she came away with lots of valuable experience under her belt and should see a marked improvement this season.

Butler, who earned All-Area honorable mention kudos last year, batted .446 for the year, second only to Brenneman. The second baseman led the squad in runs scored with 19 and stolen bases with 16. She also whacked three doubles and recorded nine RBI.

Shortstop Frazee recorded the third highest Husky average last season at .417, and paced the squad with seven triples and 14 RBI. She stole 13 bases for the aggressive NHS team.

Northern has several strong returning starter underclassmen to supplement those seniors, including sophomore first baseman Lyndsi Butler, who tallied a .357 average last season, and junior catcher Amanda Frantz, who batted .327, whacked 12 doubles, and drove in 10 runs. Rounding out the infield will be senior and first-year player Emily Rawe at shortstop.

The Huskies' outfield will be manned by the junior trio of Valene Snyder in leftfield, Autumn Kitchen in center, and Tiffany Swiger in right.

"We have lots of girls with strong arms, and great senior leadership," Slagle commented. "We're going to work to capitalize on those assets for this season, while at the same time giving enough playing time to the underclassmen to build a stronger, more experienced team for the following year. A goal even farther down the road is to begin training one of our junior varsity freshmen for long-term pitching needs."

Husky Tennis Squad Has Seeds For Successful Year

The Northern High School varsity tennis team, which recorded an excellent 9-4 record last season, has a number of fine returning players who will bring court experience to bear against this year's opponents. The Huskies will test the waters in their 2002 debut in a 4 p.m. match Tuesday, March 26, at Fort Hill against the Sentinels, who NHS head coach Linda Wengerd said might be the toughest team to be faced all year.

"We have some seasoned veterans, and a good bit of depth," Wengerd commented in her pre-season analysis. "There are five seniors who have been on the squad all four years, and we have the returning Bi-County Tournament Doubles champion duo of Heather Lander and Christie Flockhart. Our biggest loss to graduation was Renee Meyers, who was seeded second and third at various points through last season."

The Huskies' top players of this year, in 1-4 seed order, are Lander, Ashley Robinson, Flockhart, and Miriah Fletcher. The remainder of the seeds are yet to be determined, Wengerd said, as she noted some strong competition among Amber Weimer, Andrea Green, Rachel Bruch, Nicole Sisler, and Jennifer Lowdermilk.

"We need to work on our strategy and stay focused," the Huskies' skipper said. "Our players work well together, and provide each other with excellent competition that will help us improve as a team. We're looking forward to an excellent season, and have set initial goals of taking the Bi-County Tournament and Regional Playoffs."

Garrett Swim Team To Begin 20th Season

The Garrett County Swim Team, also known as the Manta Rays, is set to begin another competitive swimuning season. This is the team's 20th season, as it was founded in 1982.

Try-outs and an organizational meeting will be held for the team on Saturday, March 23, at 10 a.m. at Alpine Lake in Terra Alta, W.Va. Those swimmers wishing to join the Manta Rays need to attend.

The team currently consists of approximately 60 members ranging in age from 5 to 18, and is led by head coach Nan Gangler. The team competes in the YMCA Summer League at the Riverside YMCA in Cumberland. There are seven other teams who also compete in this league: Cumberland, Bel-Air, Romney, Keyser, LaVale, Hardy County, and Petersburg. Several of these teams swim and compete year-round. Each year the Manta Rays is one of the largest teams, Gangler said.

The season will begin with one-hour practice sessions at the Alpine Lake pool on Saturday mornings until school is dismissed for the summer. The practice schedule then changes to Tuesday and Thursday mornings for the remainder of the season.

The competitions begin in late June and consist of four regular season meets in Cumberland and end with the championship meet in late July. Each of the four regular season meets are designed to focus on one of the four basic swimming strokes: freestyle, backstroke, breaststroke, and butterfly. The championship meet will involve races in all the strokes. In the end, individual champions are crowned in separate age and gender groups.

The Garrett County Swim Team is not designed for those who do not know how to swim, Gangler noted. It is designed for swimmers who want to refine their existing skills, learn new techniques, and to compete. Practice sessions emphasize stretching, conditioning, good sportsmanship, a team concept, and the use of proper swimming techniques.

For more information on the Garrett County Swim team including requirements, the tentative schedule, and the approximate costs, persons should call Gangler at 301-334-3467.

The Manta Rays began in 1982, coached at that time by Paula Briggs and George Collins. There were 17 swimmers that first year, and they practiced at the Wisp pool in McHenry. Practices moved to Alpine in 1986. Since the first season, the number of swimmers per year has varied from 40 to 85.

Briggs and Collins coached until 1984, followed by Vicki Skipper ('85-'87), Joanne Graybill ('88-'97), and then Gangler ('98-present). Serving as assistant coaches throughout the years have been Barb Speicher, Nancy Geisler, Madeleine Collins, Sally Marc, Suzie Sincell, John McIntee, Debbie Clatterbuck, Tammy Ewing, Dawn Scheffel, Tracy Umstot, Lloyd Sussman, Josie Redinger, Connie Gibson, and John and Judy Simson.

The team web site, which is partially under construction, can be viewed at www.iceweb.net/swim. The team's colors are navy blue, white, and green.

Women's Softball Meeting Slated

An organizational meeting for all teams of the Mtn. Top Women's Softball League will be held Tuesday, April 2, at 7 p.m. at Yough Glades Elementary School. Each team should send a representative to the meeting. Any new team wishing to join the league may also send a representative.

The games are held on Thursday nights at fields in Crellin, McHenry, and Broadford. Any individuals wishing to join a team may also attend. Persons must be at least 15 years old to play.

Items on the meeting agenda include election of officers, by-laws, and schedules. For more information, persons may contact league president Barbara Baker at 301-387-5013.

Area Speedway Review

I-79 SPEEDWAY
by Cheryl Baker-Stasiak

Interstate 79 Speedway has finalized 2002 racing schedule. The season will open with a practice session on Friday, April 12. The first racing program will be the following Friday, April 19, with the Coca-Cola Grand Opening. The Late Models, Semi Lates, AMRA Modifieds, Pure Stocks, and 4 Cylinders will take to the track at 8 p.m. The gates will open at 6 p.m. Admission will remain at $9 for general admission and $20 for the pits.

The ever popular W.Va. State Championship will return in 2002. Five events will determine this year's champion. The first of the events is scheduled for Friday, May 3, and will pay the winner $2,000. The second event is Sunday, May 26, and will pay $3,000. Races 3 and 4 are scheduled for Friday, June 28, and Friday, Aug. 2. These events will also pay $2,000 to the winner. The final event of the series will be over the Labor Day weekend. The Saturday, Aug. 31, event is the prestigious Mountain State Thunder event with the Renegade Dirt Car Series. In past years this event has drawn a large field of cars and always provides an action packed race. The series is sponsored by Kendle.

Also on tap in 2002 are special racing events for the support divisions. The Roy's Travel Trailer Semi Late Special will run on Friday, May 17. The Racersmate AMRA Road Warrior Tour will return on Friday, June 21, and the Pure Stock Special will take to the track on Friday, July 19. Shinnston Plumbing will once again sponsor the Mid-Season Championship on Friday, July 5, and Season Championship on Friday, Aug. 23.

Enduro racing will also return, as 200 lap events paying $1,000 to the winner are scheduled for Sunday, July 14, and Sunday, Sept. 15. These events have started as many as 100 or more cars in the past and are quite a sight to see on the quarter-mile oval. There will also be three 50-lap enduro events on Friday nights. The $200-to-win events will be run on May 24, July 12, and Aug. 30. There will also be a $1,000-to-win Demolition Derby on Sunday, Sept. 15. The track will also host several events for children, including gold and candy rushes, bike races, and an autograph and picture night.

Stephens Still Perfect On FSU Tennis Courts

Justin Stephens, a sophomore at Frostburg State University and a 2000 graduate of Southern High School, stretched his perfect singles record in tennis to 19-0 last Thursday to help the Bobcats record an 8-1 victory over visiting Juniata College.

Stephens won his singles match in straight sets over Juniata junior Satoshi Kimura, 6-2, 6-0, and then teamed with senior Terence Killen to win in doubles, 8-2.

Northern graduate Dave Butler, a senior, is also a member of the FSU team. After blanking Ethan Gibbel in his first set, he dropped the next two, 6-4, 6-3, and the match.

The Bobcats, who have recorded 18 straight dual-match victories dating back to the 2000 season, will play again next Wednesday against visiting Penn State Altoona.

"CHARLIE'S ANGELS" GO GLOBAL AT GCC — These members of the World View International Club at Garrett Community College — from the left, Tatjana and Marina Kravtsuk, and Haiku Sikka — are getting in the act for the upcoming international buffet benefit meal. The event, slated for Sunday, April 14, from noon to 3 p.m. in the Lakers' Café, will feature a variety of international dishes prepared by club members, plus music and art. Half of each $7 ticket sold will be donated to the Twin Towers Orphans' Fund. See story for locations where tickets can be purchased. YOUTH ART EXHIBIT DRAWS TALENT — The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, in cooperation with art instructors of the Garrett County school system, sponsored a Youth Art contest and exhibit recently. Some of the 24-entry field, which represented the work of Northern and Southern middle school art students of Frances Kenna-Shank and Marcette Denner, respectively, and the Northern and Southern high school art students of Therese Roberts and Sonia Pratt, respectively, are shown above as they were being displayed at the Garrett County Health Center in Oakland. Following a judging by local artists Cherlee Evans and Jim McNeil, the Civic Club awarded cash prizes to the following students. In Class I (grades 6-8): Laura Mauat, first place; Julie Nixon, second place; Taleene Sines, third place; and Michael Kelster, honorable mention. In Class II (grades 9-12): Kleyt Morfoot, first; Amy Umbel, second; Matthew Burner, third; and David Wolf, honorable mention. The top three works in each class will be entered in the annual statewide contest of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs when that group convenes in Baltimore one month from now. "In the past, Garrett County's art students have represented the area well, and this year's entries will be no exception," commented Bobby Anderson, who serves on the Civic Club's Youth Art Program committee along with Dorothy Cathell and Helen Earles.

2002 Student Arts Fair Set For Saturday; Schedule Noted

The 2002 Garrett County Public Schools' Student Arts Fair will take place Saturday, March 23, at Garrett Community College. This annual celebration of the arts involves students from across the county whose art work will be on display and whose musical talent will be demonstrated in a series of concerts throughout the day.

Also appearing this year will be two professional performing groups: Ilene Evans, a storyteller and actress from Voices of the Earth, and the Blue Sky Puppets troupe, which performed at the arts fair three years ago.

A grant from the Garrett County Arts Council has helped the organizers offer these events free of charge, according to a spokesperson. The day is also sponsored by the Garrett County Board of Education.

The schedule for the entire day is as follows:

•Musical performances in the auditorium, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., by Accident and Rt. 40 elementary schools, Friendsville Elementary, Southern Middle, Northern Middle, and Northern High School.

•Ilene Evans, 1 p.m., aud-itorium, presenting "Tales of Brave Children from Around the World."

•Blue Sky Puppets, 2:30 p.m., auditorium, presenting "Three Not-So-Little Pigs."

•Jason Afable and Scatterfield, 3:30 p.m., auditorium. This is a band composed of Northern High School students.

•Blockhead Puppet Workshop, noon, gymnasium. Art workshops will take place throughout the day in the gym, including mask-making, fly-tying, paper marbling, and puppet-making. Art works will be displayed there as well.

The art gallery will also be a showplace for art, all selected from the work of Northern and Southern high school students.

The day is designed to be entertaining for the entire family, the spokesperson said, and the public is encouraged to attend.

International Buffet Benefit Slated At GCC

An international buffet fund-raiser featuring culinary dishes from around the world will take place from noon to 3 p.m. Sunday, April 14, in the Lakers' Café at Garrett Community College. Hosted by the GCC World View International Club, the event is open to the public, and half of the proceeds will be donated to the Twin Towers Orphans' Fund, according to club advisor Darlene Preston.

The meal will be prepared by members of the GCC World View International Club and representatives of the International Center at Frostburg State University. Music from a variety of countries will be played during the buffet, and the private collection of international art belonging to art professor Ron Skidmore will be on display.

Buffet tickets are currently available for $7 each at Arrowhead Market, the Book Mark'et in Oakland, Beachy's Pharmacy in Grantsville, Fratz's Hardware in Accident, and the GCC Library. Persons interested in further information on the event or the GCC World View International Club may call Preston at 301-387-3010.

Andrew Crowe Will Present Violin Recital

Andrew Crowe, Mtn. Lake Park, will perform his senior violin recital at Our Town Theatre in Oakland on Saturday, March 30, at 8 p.m. Crowe, son of John and Linn Crowe, is a senior violin performance major at Taylor University, Upland, Ind., from which he will earn his degree this May.

There will be no charge for admission to the recital, but reservations must be made because of limited seating. Persons desiring to attend are asked to telephone 301-533-0204 by Monday, March 25. Callers should leave name, phone number, and the number of seats desired.

Crowe's piano accompanist will be Richard Fountain, Omaha, Neb., who is a junior music performance major. The hour-long concert will include: Sonata in A Major by César Franck, "Roumanian Folk Dance" by Bela Bartok, and "Malaguena" by Pablo de Sarasate. Crowe will perform the same works for his senior recital at Taylor University the end of April.

During his tenure as a student at Taylor, Crowe performed with the Kokomo, Muncie, and Marion, Ind., symphonies. He will be a guest soloist with the Taylor Orchestra in May, playing "The Lark Ascending" by Vaughan-Williams.

SPRING HOPE

Does the earth like each soul restore itself in stillness and quiet? Do the trees that reach for the sky
their spidery fingers not quite touching its sapphire
leafless in unabated non-motion resting? Did the night of storm and wind require this respite where shadows elongate over sheets of snow smooth untouched and all our world waits

board Road, to confront him about incidents that allegedly occurred along Fingerboard Road a few months prior. During the prior incident, the victim reported he had yelled at Ringer about his driving habits, and, allegedly, Ringer was angry because he believed the victim had spit on his car. Ringer then followed the victim to a private road.

During the October incident, the victim stopped along the road when he realized Ringer was following him to his home. Ringer then grabbed the victim and assaulted him, which included choking him and kicking him as he lay on the ground. Ringer entered a plea to the second-degree assault charge in December. The additional charges were dismissed upon his plea.

"We were concerned about proving one of the elements of the first-degree assault," explained State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch about the dismissal of the other charges. "With this plea, we are guaranteed Mr. Ringer will be held accountable, and the court has the ability to fashion an appropriate sentence in light of the facts of the assault, the defendant's background, and the impact to the victim, including his injuries. The maximum sentence for a second-degree assault is 10 years in jail and a fine of $2,500."

Water Project

problems," Petrella said. Of the eight wells drilled for the town over the years, only one has proven to be a viable source. The first seven wells either did not have enough water or their recovery rates were too slow. Well no. 8 can produce 80 gallons of water per minute, he said. Though the iron content of the water is high, it can be treated, the administrator added.

A second reliable "back-up" well, which produces at least 50 to 60 gallons per minute, is also needed. Three potential sites for the well have been selected. Petrella said a road to the sites was constructed last week, and a well-driller was "out there now." He added, however, that he could not predict the outcome of the drilling. "I can't control what's under ground [or] the weather."

Petrella said he did have some encouraging news to report. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is currently reviewing the water system plans. Once the plans are returned, which could be in two weeks, bids for the construction of the system could be put out. USDA officials indicated they would prioritize the project, said Petrella. Additional funding from the USDA may also be available to cover the contingency costs of the project. Most of the funding for the project has been from grants and a USDA loan, according to the administrator.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel suggested that Petrella prepare a project schedule on the water project for the town officials and advise them of any changes to the schedule. Beitzel also asked the administrator to make sure that funding for the project was in place. Petrella said the commissioner's suggestion was a very reasonable request and he would do so.

"We hope we've resolved some issues," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg. "We don't want to be back here with the same issues," said Dawson.

projects, and festivals throughout the county, including the Health Department's Teen Health Theatre, Old Time Music Festival, Puzzley Run Folk Life Days, Little Yough Summer Concert Series, and the Board of Education's annual Student Arts Fair. The total reported expense for those programs, however, was almost $366,000, with only about $69,000 of the costs being covered by admission fees to the events.

David Bertsch noted that more than 114,000 people attended those events, with almost 2,000 local residents participating in them. He said given that there are only about 7,500 households in the county; theoretically, one third of county households had at least one member who participated in those events.

"Our numbers speak for themselves," said Carole Perez, president. Perez, who also has a part in Our Town Theatre's recent production — The Man Who Came to Dinner — said there was a "wonderful cross section of the county" participating in the play. "It's a wonderful intergenerational atmosphere there," she said. The president noted that Our Town provides an opportunity for local youth to learn about theater. The council contributed $5,000 to the theater in FY 2001 for its general operations cost.

Trish Morgan, Spruce Forest executive director, said, "The reality of the overall picture for Spruce Forest is that without continued grant funding from the Garrett County Arts Council, our programs and activities would have to decrease...which means less visibility, less efficiency, and less social and economic impact." The Council gave $4,000 to the artisan village in FY 2001 for its general operations expenses. Morgan said that not only is the village a "wonderful tourist attraction," but it also provides artisans with a low-rent site where they can share their traditional crafts with others.

Sue Arnson cited GCAC's Gallery in Oakland as yet another reason that the commissioners should allocate funds. "I'm so proud to be a part of this organization," she said. She noted that, currently, almost 100 area residents are displaying their fine arts and crafts in the Gallery. Many of the county's artists, she said, would not have had an outlet to showcase their talents without the Gallery. Arnson added that the Gallery is also an asset to Oakland.

"It's a business, though," she added about the reality of providing that outlet for artists. Extensive renovations had to be made at the Gallery, she pointed out, and the 30 percent commission that GCAC receives from the artists' sales is not enough to pay the rent.

GCAC supporters Stan and Wendy Mopsik said they moved from Baltimore to retire in the county because of the wealth of arts here.

Commissioner Fred Holliday commended the members on their volunteerism and contributions to the county. "Everyone has made a very good argument for continued support of the council," said Commissioner Wendell Beitzel. "We'll certainly try to do as much as we can," concluded Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

The dead are:

JACOB W. SCHROYER, an old Union soldier, aged 70 years.

DANIEL KERLING, aged about 55 years.

The injured are:

GEORGE SCHLOSSNAGLE, whose skull was fractured but who will recover.

HENRY SHEIBEL, about 25 years old, who sustained injuries of such a nature to his right leg as to necessitate its amputation.

The men were engaged in raising into position a portion of a frame of a new barn on the farm of William Gles and when the timbers were a part of the way up the men stopped for a moment to rest. The massive frame work was insecurely propped by them and toppled over, going down with such force and so quick that it was impossible for them to jump from under.

Three of the men, Schroyer, Kerling, and Schlossnagle, were struck upon the heads by the falling [illegible] while Sheibel was caught underneath it and his leg pinned to the ground. As quickly as possible the timbers were raised and the men released. Schroyer and Kerling were unconscious and remained so until their deaths which occurred Tuesday, the former dying at 6 p.m. and the latter at noon. Schlossnagle was conscious at the time he was rescued but relapsed into a state of unconsciousness several hours later. He has improved somewhat since and hopes are now entertained for his recovery.

Henry Sheibel's injuries consisted of a crushed right leg from which several large pieces of bone protruded through the flesh and were extracted by Dr. Ravenscroft, who attended all the men. Sheibel was taken to Baltimore Saturday morning by Dr. Boyer, accompanied by the injured man's brother. At the Maryland University Hospital, the injured leg was amputated above the knee.

The funerals of Mr. Schroyer and Mr. Kerling took place at Accident yesterday afternoon, the former being buried in the English Lutheran cemetery and the latter in the German Lutheran cemetery. The funerals were largely attended by sympathetic relatives and friends.

Events In Garrett County Life, Big And Small, Given Ink Again In The Pages Of The Republican

by Mary Sincell McEwen

As we continue in our celebration of this newspaper's 125th anniversary, comments from our readers and our own fascination lead us continually back to what are really the simplest of news items printed over the years. For whatever reason, reports of life in days gone by engage us. We want to know how these people passed their days, and the news columns from ages past help us visualize their lives.

The writing from a century ago is so eloquent and rich, even the slightest of family gatherings or social events seem somehow romantic and charming. This week we include a number of ordinary reports from the past, reports that somehow seem particularly sweet, eloquent, or funny.

The first is a story concerning a huge reunion of the Harvey family, which all in all sounds like a wonderful day:

Harvey Family Reunion
First Gathering of the Clan Was Held Saturday With 600 Present

The first annual reunion of the Harvey family in Garrett County was held at Shook Shop school house in District 8, on last Saturday, the 18th inst. The occasion proved to be a very delightful and pleasant one for all present. The condition of the weather was ideal, the place for holding the reunion beautiful and of easy access to those from any point of the compass. The crowd was large, it being estimated that at least 600 Harveys and their family connections were in attendance, while at least a number totalling two hundred came to the place of meeting as sightseers.

Dinners for 600 were prepared and served. Members of the family from all parts of the country were present, their object being first to attend the reunion where they had an opportunity of renewing old acquaintanceships and forming new ones, which is not a hard matter to do with the members of this great family, for they are all extremely friendly and make one feel at home, wherever the meeting with old or new friends may occur.

In a speech of short duration, Mr. J. D. Harvey welcomed the people to the meeting, and during his remarks gave a history, briefly, of the family, dating back as far as 1744. Mr. Harvey, from information thought to be reliable, stated that the forebears of the Harvey family in the United States first settled in Virginia, coming from England to that settlement, and moving to the Garrett county region some seventy years ago.

Capt. James W. White, an old Union veteran, now more than eighty-one years of age, gave an account of the family and its doings since the settlement of the forefathers was made in this country, Capt. White having resided in Garrett county his entire lifetime. In his remarks he related many incidents in connection with the life of the early settlers in the county, a majority of them being in connection with the Harveys. His voice was extremely clear and his remarks were greeted with repeated clappings.

Capt. White closed his remarks by suggesting that as the hour had become late and that many of those present had partaken of an early breakfast that dinner would be in order before anything else.

The dinner was spread and the great family of Harveys gathered to partake of the many and abundance of good things prepared by the ladies of the clan, following which the program of the afternoon was taken up and in which the younger generations of the family participated. There were several special selections of music, as well as rendered selections by the choir.

The day closed with feelings of good cheer on the part of every individual present, all agreeing to meet again next year, and feeling that the day had been well spent.

SWANTON

Little Eileen Friend entertained a few of her friends in honor of her birthday on October 5th from one until four o'clock. Those present were Donald, Lavene, Morris, and Alverta Friend of Swanton, and Gladys Welch, of Newark, Ohio. Refreshments were served and games played. All the little guests had a good time.

Mrs. Lee Comp is on the sick list at present.

Mr. James Campbell, of Kitzmiller, and Mr. Ernest Shaffer, of Woodstock, Va., were pleasant visitors at the home of B. T. Bray, Sunday.

Quite a crowd attended the services at Anderson chapel on Sunday and all greatly enjoyed Bishop Murray's sermon.

We are glad to hear of the improvement of Mrs. Harriett Friend, who has been ill.

Already Jack Frost is busy with his fall work. The chestnuts are beginning to come down, much to the delight of the younger folks.

A number of our future voters registered here yesterday. Harding is sure to win now that all the women voters are busy.

BITTINGER

Last Thursday was dark and cold and dreary; it rained, and the wind was never weary. On Friday the weather man took his blow and mixed up the rain with a batch of snow. On Saturday farmers swore it would freeze and hustled around to "kiver" their peas. They worked all day with a hearty will and cussed old Dobbin to beat Sam Hill, but the clouds rolled by and the mercury rose, and not a blamed thing in the garden froze.

The County Commissioners will meet on Monday and appoint the road supervisors for 1895.

The Misses Weber will give a tea to a number of friends at their home near Oakland to-night.

Prof. Samual S. Little, the optician will visit Oakland, January 4th, at Dr. McComas' office. Glasses scientifically adjusted to suit the eyes. Examination free.

Mr. J. Lee McComas, who spent the holidays in Oakland with his parents, departed for Chicago, Ill., yesterday morning where he will resume his studies in the Northwestern College of Pharmacy.

An item from January 10, 1895:

The new summer resort, Loch Lynn Heights, is directly opposite Mountain Lake Park, and fronts on the B. & O. railroad. This new town is now being built and will be formally opened about June 30th, 1895. The company owns about 300 acres of beautiful land. The hotel will contain 200 rooms. An artificial lake has been constructed. A large ice house, steam flouring mill, an electric light plant, water works, stores, greenhouse, a canning establishment, brick and tile works, and over a hundred dwellings will be erected at once. This is building a town in a hurry. The resort will be a very popular one.

And in the same paper:

Plenty of snow and sleighing good.

There was quite a number attending the quarterly meeting at Grantsville Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Sheridan Layman and Miss Sarah Garlitz were married December 30th. Mr. Layman intends going up the W. Va. line to keep a boarding house. We all wish them success in life.

We are sorry to announce the death of Mrs. Andrew Blocher. After an illness of about 14 weeks she departed for a better world.

We notice C. C. Layman is blessed with some more boils.

The following witty jab was penned by editor Benjamin H. Sincell on May 28, 1896:

The following is the statement of some observing individual: Never judge a person by his outside appearance. A shabby old coat may enwrap a newspaper publisher while a man wearing a high plug hat and sporting a gold-headed cane may be a delinquent subscriber.

January 7, 1904

SUNNYSIDE

Everything is quiet in this part of our county, but very little stirring about by our people owing to the fear of exposure to smallpox.

It has been falsely reported that there is a case of smallpox here. So far there is but one case in this part of the country, the patient being John L. Sims, and he lives two miles from Sunnyside.

Mrs. Brenninger's family of near here are recovering from severe sickness caused by measles.

George Sanders, who has for several years been making his home at Washington, Ia., returned to his father's one day last week with a span of Shetland ponies and a buggy which he brought from his western home. His driving outfit is attractive in appearance, the ponies safe and active and as George possesses no bad habits, and the team must have exercise, it is reasonable to suppose that the young ladies around here will have happy times on pleasure drives with George.

And in the same paper, the following report appeared:

Car Load of Playing Cards Burst Up.

A rear end collision occurred at Rowlesburg on the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. Sunday. Two freights were eastbound and one jammed into another, derailing the caboose and three cars. The caboose caught fire from its stove which was upset and was consumed, as was a car loaded with playing cards. The latter was broken in the crash and the cards spilled out and were scattered almost ankle deep by the wind over the snowcrust. The sight was a novel one.

July 1, 1920:

Surprise Party.

Quite a surprise was given Mrs. William Kelley on Saturday evening, the occasion being her 59 anniversary. Early in the evening many of the neighbors of this most excellent lady gathered in and gave her a complete and unexpected surprise. During the evening refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake and other things, were served the guests, and after wishing Mrs. Kelley many more happy birthdays they returned to their respective homes, happy in the thought that they had added to the enjoyment of one whom all like and highly respect. More than thirty were present upon the occasion.

Owing to the lack of news items from this town in the columns of The Republican it would be natural for your readers to come to the conclusion that we have been drowned owing to the extreme wet weather we have been having for the past several weeks.

J. E. Kitzmiller is wearing a smile as broad as a barn door all on account of the fact that recently his home was visited by the long billed bird which left in his keeping a boy.

And, finally this week, we end with the reprint of a story requested by reader Vincent W. Schroyer of Mountain Lake Park, who asked us to find the report of his great-grandfather's death on July 29, 1902. We did find the tragic story, which appeared on the front page of the July 31, 1902, issue:

J.W. SCHROYER AND D. KERLING DEAD

Maryland Officials Crow As Job Growth Outpaces Nearby States

by Patrice Dickens
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland officials gloated Wednesday over new figures that showed the state had the 15th-fastest rate of job growth in the nation in 2001, outpacing Virginia and other neighboring states.

The numbers from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics numbers are evidence that the state "is already rebounding (from Sept. 11) and that we are well positioned for the inevitable national rebound," said David S. Iannucci, Maryland's secretary of business and economic development.

"Maryland has a resilient economy," Iannucci said, emphasizing the fact that Maryland was the "fastest growing in the Mid-Atlantic" region in a pointed reference to the state's economic rival across the Potomac River.

But Virginia officials said they also expect to rebound from Sept. 11 with a vengeance, calling the commonwealth's 2001 job figures a temporary lull.

William E. Mezger, chief economist with the Economic Information Services Division of the Virginia Employment Commission, attributed Virginia's drop to the events of Sept. 11, as well as to the loss of jobs in the manufacturing and technology sectors. Mezger said he is optimistic that Virginia will regain a higher rank next year as the economy rebounds generally, and as more money is allocated to defense, a mainstay of the state's economy.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Maryland had a job growth rate of 0.8 percent between 2000 and 2001, when the average number of non-farm jobs in the state rose from 2,450,000 to 2,469,700. The state rate was significantly higher than the national average growth rate of 0.3 percent and well above all of Maryland's neighboring states. Job growth rates, both nationally and on the state level, were down sharply in 2001 from previous years because of the recession.

The bureau said that revised data for 1999 and 2000 show that Maryland had a robust growth of 2.7 percent each year, when it ranked 13th and 15th respectively in job growth in the nation. U.S. job growth rates for those years were 2.4 percent in 1999 and 2.2 percent in 2000.

Virginia's job growth rate fell from 3.1 percent in 2000 to 0.3 percent in 2001, according to the bureau, dropping the state from eighth place to 25th place.

Other neighbors did not fare as well. Pennsylvania had a growth rate of 0.2 percent; Washington, D.C., had a rate of 0.1 percent; West Virginia jobs fell by 0.1 percent; and Delaware's jobs fell by 0.2 percent.

There has been other good news for Maryland.

It was only four months ago that two major independent surveys — one from the Corporation for Enterprise Development and the other from the Milken Institute — ranked Maryland as one of the top states in the new economy and well-positioned for long-term, sustainable economic growth.

State officials attribute Maryland's success to investments in education and technology, among other things.

"The state's significant investment in emerging, knowledge-based industries and our diverse economy helped us remain competitive and hold our own during the U.S. recession," Iannucci said in a prepared statement.

"Maryland has weathered the storm of the national recession better than most other states," his statement said. "The state entered the slowdown later than the nation, and seems to have returned to positive growth at the same time as the U.S."

Senate Spares

prepared the budget.

"A promise made is a promise made," said Sen. Thomas Bromwell, D-Baltimore County, on keeping the income tax reduction. Lawmakers raised those taxes during the recession of the early '90s under the stipulation they would later lower them.

Republicans were urged to vote their conscience, while their leader sided with fellow members of the budget committee.

"I think further cuts would hurt people," said Senate Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset.

The approved budget funds higher education at current levels and cuts some of the governor's environmental programs by $26.8 million. It also whittles future deficits by $433 million.

"This budget is lean, but not mean," said Sen. Barbara Hoffman, D-Baltimore, chairwoman of the Budget and Taxation Committee. Her committee developed the budget.

The Senate budget was balanced through program cuts and tapping one-time reserve funds. That structure mirrored the governor's budget proposal, but eliminated questionable fund transfers from sources such as Maryland Automobile Insurance Fund, an insurance program funded through subscribers, instead of state revenue, and the Emergency Medical System.

Although the governor cannot veto the budget once a conference committee works out differences between the Senate and House versions of the document, he can veto the bill that transfers the neeessary reserve funds to balance the budget. Such a move would require lawmakers to revisit budget decisions due to balanced budget laws.

"LOOK GOOD...FEEL BETTER" — Seven local cosmetologists participated in the recent "Look Good...Feel Better" training program sponsored by Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the American Cancer Society. The participants were trained in assisting cancer patients with hair and make-up techniques to help them feel better about their appearances. The participants included Marcy Kalasky from Mak'a Kuts; Tammy Kitzmiller, Brenda Blank, and Nicole Kitzmiller from Shear Fantasy; Barbara McRoble from Charmette; and Janet Cuppett and Steven Teaker from Janet's Beauty Shop. After the training session, the cosmetologists put their new skills to work on program participants. "Look Good...Feel Better" is a free, national public service program that also teaches women and teen-agers how to deal with the sociological side effects they experience during cancer treatment. Cosmetics for the classes are provided free of charge courtesy of the American Cancer Society; the Cosmetics, Toiletry, and Fragrance Association Foundation; and the National Cosmetics Association. The next workshop is scheduled for Monday, April 15, from 5:30 until 8:30 p.m. in the board room at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Anyone who is currently undergoing treatment for cancer is invited to attend. For more information, persons may call Dawna Cleator, GCMH Wellness coordinator, at 301-533-4295. Items Sought For Sept. 11: Maryland Voices

A call has been issued for submissions from all interested Maryland residents for the publication of a collection titled September 11: Maryland Voices.

The 9/11 project is to be an anthology of writings and other forms of media by Marylanders in reaction to the attacks on America on Sept. 11, 2001. The anthology is scheduled to be published in August of this year.

The call is open to all state residents of all writing and artistic abilities, according to Rus VanWestervelt, director of the project.

"We will make every attempt to publish at least a portion of every entry we receive," said VanWestervelt.

Entries received thus far include poetry, essays, journal entries, original music scores, and artwork.
